O Give Thanks Unto The Lord; For He Is Good; For His Mercy Endureth Forever

PSALM 136:1

I AM THE WAY

Have Mercy Upon Me And Hear My Prayer

Rabbi Shusterman at Metropolitan

By B. M. PHILLIPS

What does a Jewish rabbi say when he speaks to a Protestant congregation?

If he is a man of the stature of Dr. Abraham Shusterman, Har Sinai Congregation, he says plenty.

Here is what he said at the Metropolitan Methodist Church Founders' Day, a Sunday ago.

"It was kind of my colleague Reverend Williams to invite me to preach this sermon on your Founders Day. Beginning with my friendly association with one of your pastors, the Rev. Eli Lefton, my relationship with Metropolitan has been most rewarding.

"Certainly, your present leader has been my friend and co - worker for many causes.

"When he sent me the invitation to speak here today, I knew I had to accept because he was once my president, the presiding officer of our Clergy Brotherhood, and I find it hard to say 'No' to him.

"Our congregations have had parallel history.

"In fact, until Har Sinai left Bolton Street two years ago we were close neighbors. Now we are not diverging, though we do operate in different neighborhoods, but rather working together more closely. "Parallel lines are beginning to converge.

"Of course, I have reference among other things, to the statement by Mr. Williams about my activities in the company of other clergymen in behalf of the Public Accommodations Bill.

* * *

"IT PLEASES me that you and so many others approve what we have tried to do to speed up the process of integration to which every American, every Christian, every Jew, worthy of the name is committed.

"But, let me assure you that my congregation, once your neighbor, deserves as much credit as do its rabbi and the other clergymen.

"I tell you proudly that I have enjoyed the whole - hearted backing of my lay leaders and our Temple members.

"Your church, I am told, was organized in 1833. Seventeen years later a group of young Jews, immigrants from Germany, started my congregation.

* * *

IN THE 1850's there may have been differences of opinion among Jews and Christians in Baltimore about slavery, secession and similar questions.

"But my congregation was then led by a great rabbi, David Einhorn, who was the most vocal abolitionist in the land.

"No one hated slavery more than he; no preacher was more outspoken than he. Einhorn proclaimed God's word so boldly that he was forced to flee from Baltimore.

"He placed me and all his successors in his debt by making Har Sinai's pulpit as free as any in the world.

"It is no wonder that when, along with two other rabbis, a Protestant minister and a Catholic priest, I tried to take a prominent colored leader to lunch and the newspapers printed the story and the pictures, my Temple president did not hesitate a moment.

"He told me then and the congregation were solidly behind me. 'We are proud of you,' he wired, "and proud of the stand you have taken in means to believe also in one the interest of human equality.'

"You see, a clergyman often is strengthened by his people's liberalism, just as Moses' arms were held up not by his own strength but by Aaron and Hur who stood at his side.

* * *

"LET ME hasten to speak about the ideals we have in common, the convictions which are sacred to some of us and might be called a common heritage of faith.

"Just this week, a group of rabbis from this mid - Atlantic area spent a number of days in historic Williamsburg, Va.

One of our teachers was present, a seminary professor who has written extensively on the old prophets of Israel.

"We talked about the divine imperative and tried to reach certain conclusions about those beliefs which derive from our basic axioms.

"As Jews we are committed to the central doctrine of divine unit. 'Hear, O Israel, one.' To believe this is one of one." To believe this is one of the requirements of synagogue membership.

"But to accept this truth means that we believe also in one world, one family of man, one brotherhood under His Fatherhood.

* * *

AT THAT intimate conference, we also agreed on at least five other points which I will share with you briefly.

"First, life is good. It is better than death. This is the spirit of the first part of Scripture.

"If we strive to live by this conviction we will do all in our power to enrich the lives of all God's creatures.

"We will endeavor to aid in the conquest of disease, poverty, war, prejudice, poor housing, discrimination.

"These make life less meaningful, a burden rather than a privilege.

* * *

"A SECOND ideal is that man is significant.

"By 'man' we mean all men.

"There is to be no arbitrary distinction between them

"Man per se is created in the image of God.

"What we do to hurt him is act against the Creator.

"What we do to help any

"THIRD, IT matters what we do. Naturally, we realize that 'He has the whole world in His Hands.'

But we also know that He has summoned us to be his co-workers in the completion of the task of making this a better world.

"In the ethical realm, God largely works through men, since He gave us the freedom to choose between good and evil.

"A FOURTH ideal is that harmony is a realizable goal. God forbid that it should not be so.

"Then we work for naught and all our striving is vanity.

"We know, do we not?, that Jews and Christians, colored people and their white neighbors, Orientals and Occidentals, all people regardless of differences can live together in complete harmony, understanding and helpfulness.

"We know it is possible because we have witnessed it and we ourselves have often been party to it.

* * *

FINALLY, WE are convinced that none of us loses by sharing God's blessings. This is particularly true in the realm of the spirit.

"It may be that, if there is only one coin, only one of us can possess it.

"It may be that there is a similar exclusiveness about business competition, although the better merchants seem to regard competition as a spur to progress, a stimulation to greater things rather than an impediment.

"But, between us of the church and synagogue there is no such thing as harmful competition.

"There is enough of God for all of us, enough of the blessing, enough of His Holy Spirit for us and our neighbors.

"In fact sharing is the best way to increase our spiritual wealth.

* * *

"WE HAVE theological differences but certainly your church was founded upon these principles which I have enunciated today. They are a common heritage of faith.

"What of the future?

"This is not the same world of the 1820's and 1840's.

"We have gone far along the way.

"A rabbi of the eighteenth century once watched a group of boys try to climb a ladder. "All the boys fell from the middle rung and only the rabbi's son reached the top.

"The father asked his son, 'How does it happen that the others fall and you reach the highest rung?'

"The lad replied, 'Notice that, as the others climb, they look down as if to say 'Look how far we have gone.'

"Then they become dizzy and fall.

"But, as I climb, I keep my eyes upward, upon the stars and I say, 'Look how far I have yet to go.' Thus I reach the top."

"My dear friends, of Metropolitan, we have gone far since your church and my (Temple were founded.

"But we still have a long way to go.

"So let us lift our eyes toward the stars and continue to climb."

David HUME
CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR OF MARYLAND

DAVID HUME & HIS FAMILY

THE DAVID HUME FAMILY — Left to right, Stephen Hume, 14, who will be 15 on Mother's Day; Mrs. Farlee Hume, mother; David Hume, father; David Hume, III, 17, who will be 18 on Easter Sunday. Both children are enrolled at the St. James School, St. James, Md. in Washington County. David, III, is a lay reader at the church where the family attends.

HUME
A MAN OF HIGH CHARACTER
A MAN OF GREAT ACHIEVEMENTS
A MAN YOU CAN TRUST

Here is what DAVID HUME stands for:

- David Hume believes that all citizens are entitled to equal opportunity under the law.
- He believes that qualified persons should be appointed to public office regardless of race, creed or color.
- David Hume's county, Charles County, where he resides on a farm, voted for Public Accommodations law.
- He was instrumental in having the delegates from Charles County vote favorably for the passage of the Equal Accommodations Bill at Annapolis.
- He is an outspoken advocate of the Public Accommodations Bill.
- He is unequivocally in favor of Public Accommodations laws.

Recently the Charles County Democratic Committee scheduled a reception in Mr. Hume's honor to take place at a country club on April 14.
All names of all colored Democrats were deleted from the invitation list.
Extremely disturbed about the situation, Mr. Hume refused the invitation, rescheduled the event for April 14 at his own home, Mt. Eagle, where all people regardless of race are welcome.

- David Hume believes that anyone who recognizes all people as brothers under God and practices brotherhood in everyday life will reap only good.
- His wife, Mrs. Farlee Hume, his two sons, join him in upholding the dignity of all men.

The Life Story of DAVID HUME

David Hume broke with the Democratic Party in 1961 because of lack of leadership in the party on Public Accommodations Legislation and other vital issues.

He was formerly treasurer of the Democratic Party of Maryland.

The first member of the Hume family to arrive in America from Scotland arrived as an indentured servant in chains.

David Hume was graduated with highest honors at Southern Methodist Law School and admitted to practice before the U.S. Supreme Court in 1949.

Just before World War II, he enlisted in the Navy as an apprentice seaman and served in submarine service throughout the war.

He was decorated by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz for Heroic Service and now holds the rank of Captain in the Naval Reserve.

After World War II, he settled in Maryland.

He was married in 1943 to the former Miss Farlee Eaton of Cleveland, Ohio.

Their sons are, David Hume, III, 17, who will be 18 on Easter Sunday and Stephen Hume, 14, who will be 15 on Mother's Day.

Their farm, Mt. Eagle, in Charles County near Bryantown, is a model of good conservation practices.

After World War II, Mr. Hume was a trial attorney for the U.S. Department of Justice. He participated in cases which resulted in the conviction of top leaders of the Communist Party.

He served in the Korean Conflict. Associated with Eugene L. Stewart in the practice of law; his firm deals with local, state and international problems.
