'Damon and Pythias' showing at Harlem

One of the world's most famous legends, that of two men whose lives immortalized the word "friendship," is brought to life on the screen in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release, "Damon and Pythias," now at the Harlem Theatre.

Guy Williams, Don Burnett and two of Italy's most illustrious actresses, Ilaria Occhini and Liana Orfei, play the leading roles in the lavishly produced picture filmed in color on a wide range of locations in Italy.

Swordplay, intrigue, a suspenseful game of hide-and-seek between hunted and hunter, treachery and spectacle (1,500 extras alone were used in the film's big climactic scene) all play a part in the story of "Damon and Pythias."

But essentially the drama remains faithful to the legend of Damon (Guy Williams) the thief who at first attempts to rob the Olympian athlete Pythias (Don Burnett) but whom circumstances make him the latter's champion for whom he volunteers to give his life.

'Jack the Giant Killer' on large screen at Met

Edward Small's mammoth production of "Jack the Giant Killer," is now at the Met Theatre through United Artists release.

Filmed in Technicolor, the famous adventure story features new special effects called Fantascope, a revolutionary new system of trick photography.

The $2,500,000 Technicolor fantasy, based on the world's most famous folk legend, co-stars swashbuckling Kerwin Mathews as the storybook hero, Jack, and beautiful Judi Meredith in the role of the princess he rescues from the hands of witches and demons.

Headlined also is Torin Thatcher in the role of Pendragon, evil master sorcerer who bewitches the princess in order to capture the throne of 11th-century Cornwall, England.

Baltimore Symphony reports more than 3,200 tickets sold

The Baltimore Symphony Orchestra reports that to date more than 3200 subscription tickets have been sold for its midweek series of concerts for the coming season.

The ticket committee, under the leadership of Mrs. Robert H. Levi, has had a very active campaign contacting old subscribers for renewal and interesting new subscribers for the Tuesday - Wednesday evening series.

There are high hopes of increasing the 3500 season subscriber figure, of last season, by opening night. Tickets for the season are still available.

The orchestra's 48th season begins Oct. 9 and 10. Glenn Gould, pianist, will be guest soloist on both nights. Peter Herman Adler will conduct the Baltimore Symphony.

Ellis Larkins in triumphal piano return to his hometown

By ADAH K. JENKINS

A rippling cascade, like silver bells, on the Murphy Auditorium concert grand piano and Ellis Lane Larkins was home in his native Baltimore.

He was accompanied by his trio, with Bobby Donaldson, drummer and Bill Pemberton, bass. Also appearing were flautist, who doubled on the sax, and two vocalists.

Last Sunday's audience, largely composed of the "regulars" at concerts, was treated to a surprise - a real jazz session in the latest informal manner.

Athough some of his listeners were disappointed in not hearing Larkins in a piano solo as such, were treated to some rare piano improvisations that were executed beautifully.

• • •

THE ELLIS LARKINS Trio, obviously influenced by Debussy and the impressionists, plays a cool style, classic and detached. When coupled with the flute, it has a haunting kind of delicacy, which warmed considerably when the saxophone was introduced.

With Donaldson, the drums and cymbals were a sheer shimmer of sound that combined marvellously with the piano and bass styles favored by his fellow players.

Their third number, overcast with the blues, floated away on an unbelievable wisp of a sound that lent a eerie charm to whole business.

Pemberton, who studied bass with Krasnopolsky of the NBC Orchestra, gave the all - important beat without spoiling the tone texture that makes the trio distinctive. He also did some soloing of virtuoso quality.

Ann Williams, who coaches with Ellis Larkins, garnered prolonged applause in her numbers, especially "St. Louis Blues", with the clever alternating of melody from voice to piano.

The concluding numbers, more in the old jazz tradition, featured Hank Johnson, vocalist.

• • •

ELLIS, his son and mother, Mrs. Clara Larkins, were greeted warmly at the conclusion of the concert by many who recalled the pianist in his prodigy days.

Disc collectors who would like to hear his really beautiful accompaniments will be interested in the recent Columbia three-volume set of the late Mildred Bailey's, in which Ellis accompanies her in "Lover, Come Back to Me", one of her last recordings.

The concert on Sunday benefited the Books for Nigeria project of the Delta Sigma Chapter, Pi Beta Sigma Sorority, Mrs. Joan Stevens, basileus and Mrs. Edna D. Johnson, book chairman.

The large number of sponsors was headed by Ambassador and Mrs. J. M. Udochi, members of the Nigerian Embassy Staff.

• • •

LORENZO HANDY, who has been singing with the choir of Mt. Calvary Episcopal Church, for the past year has been appointed cantor.

Mr. Handy, a graduate of local schools, has studied liturgical music in Europe, as well as in New York and Washington. He is also a member of the Handel Choir Where he is on of the rehearsal soloists.

Brown Memorial Presbyterian Church Choral Society and the choir of Mt. Vernon Place Methodist Church will give three concerts this coming season, presenting, among other works, 8-part harmony compositions by Buxtehude and Faure.

Eugene Belt, well known organist, is choirmaster of the Brown Memorial group, which has openings for baritones and basses who read music. Rehearsals are held on Monday evenings from 8 to 9:30 p.m. at the Brown Memorial, suburban building, Woodbrook and Charles.

CALENDAR: Friday, Oct. 12 at 6:30 p.m. at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, concert by the Peabody Preparatory Senior Choir, for the annual banquet of the first biennial convention of the eastern division of the Music Teachers, National Association.

Sunday, Oct. 21 at 8 p.m. at the Jewish Community Center, Park Heights Ave., George Shirley, tenor and one of your first soloists with the Metropolitan Opera, will open the fall concert series.

Sunday, Oct. 28 the National Symphony of Washington, D.C. will open the Morgan Concert Series at the Murphy Fine Arts Building. Tickets obtained at the Music Center Concert Agency, 1123 N. Charles St. and at Morgan College Book Store.

Tuesday, Oct. 30th at 8 p.m. at Mt. Calvary Episcopal Church, Madison Ave. and Eutaw St., Nans Wundlich, noted German organist, who played at the dedication concert of the new instrument, will give a return concert.

• • •

SUNDAY, NOV. 4 at 4 p.m. at Bethel AME Church, Druid Hill Ave. and Lanvale St., Harold S. Henry, vocal soloist, with the Amanda Specials and the 50-voice Choir of Mt. Calvary Temple will be presented in concert by the U.W.M.C. Inc. The Revs. E. Hudnell and E. Knight, chairmen.

Sunday, Nov. 4th at 11 a.m. Pontifical Mass at Mt. Calvary Episcopal Church, Madison Avenue and Eutaw Street, with Palestrina's "Missa Brevis" sung by the choir, Trumpets will accompany the procession and portions of the mass.
