Irma G. Dixon, Harvey A. Epstein and Ernest D. Young are the candidates with the Pollack faction support.

Running on Mrs. Welcome's ticket as independent Democratic House candidates are Murray Abramson, incumbent, and Clarence M. Mitchell 3rd, a popular young man who has campaigned as a "Civil rights candidate."

The Welcome campaign has the blessings of Gov. J. Millard Tawes and his statewide running mates, and has had this support since way before the May primary.

As a result, Mrs. Welcome is presently seen as a winner by a comfortable majority.

The Democratic House candidates have no opposition of worth from the virtually unknown Republicans bucking them.

The Pollack faction backed the gubernatorial candidacy of George P. Mahoney in the primary, and has remained mum on support of Gov. Tawes in this general election.

MR. MAHONEY, meanwhile, has just announced his support of Gov. Tawes and his state-wide ticket.

The Tawes ticket of the Governor for re-election; Daniel B. Brewster for U.S. Senator; Louis L. Goldstein for comptroller; Thomas B. Finan for attorney general, and Carlton R. Sickles for congressman - at - large, appears to be headed for an untroubled victory.

One possible exception might be Mr. Sickles, who is opposed by the hard campaigning Newton I. Steers Jr., the Republican candidate for congressman - at - large.

Mr. Steers, whose wife is a half sister to President John F. Kennedy's wife, has been campaigning throughout the state since the May primary, in a strenuous manner seldom seen in these parts.

Only other Tawes ticket candidates expected to get any opposition of worth are the Governor and Congressman Brewster.

The Republican's Frank Small Jr. is not seen by any observers, others than his own staff, giving Mr. Tawes anywhere near a tight race for the governorship.

FORMER CONGRESSMAN Edward T. Miller, the GOP U.S. Senate candidate, is sure to poll a respectable vote, but not one in the opinion of close observers to worry Congressman Brewster, who is undoubtedly the most popular member of the Tawes team.

The picture looks equally as bleak for Republican hopefuls in other Baltimore districts and the surrounding counties.

In Baltimore County, the Democratic Birmingham-Pine faction is seen emerging a winner from the county executive post down through the State Legislature.

Anne Arundel County's seven House of Delegates seats are considered by observers in Democratic hands.

Whatever closeness there is here will be between the state senatorial candidacy of J. Nelson Stark, Democrat, and Joseph W. Alton Jr., Republican, and that due solely to the latter's popularity.

IN ADDITION to the picture in Baltimore's Fourth District, here is the way things are shaping in the other city districts for this election.

FIRST DISTRICT

The Democrats' Senator Joseph A. Bertorelli is unopposed, and there is just one Republican, Sam Raevala, running for one of the district's six House seats. This is a strong Democratic district, and Mr. Raevala's chances are seen very dim.

SECOND DISTRICT

This is another strong Democratic district, where this party's members number 25,000 to 6,400 Republicans.

Senator Joseph V. Mach is opposed for re-election by the Republicans' David Shaw. Mr. Shay has campaigned hard, but Senator Mach has a powerful political machine.

In this district also, there is just one Republican candidate, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Matthias, running for one of the six House seats. The overwhelming Democratic power is expected to carry all six House seats.

The most exciting thing about the races in the Fifth District (Senate and House) is the glaring lack of any semblance of a contest.

Incumbent Sen. Paul A. Dorf is expected to get little more than token opposition from Republican William C. Raith, whose first name is still unknown to many district voters.

The "Pollack tie," a heated issue in prior elections, has been given little notice in the campaign leading up to Tuesday's voting.

Although James H. (Jack) Pollack, Northwest Baltimore political leader, engineered a "free ride" for his son-in-law Mr. Dorf, it also cost him concessions which reduced his influence in the race for the seven House of Delegates seats.

* * *

OF THE six incumbents, none claim allegiance to the leader. They include members of the rival Kovens-Goodman faction and independents.

The only contested Pollack-backed candidate is Gerald Siegel, nominated to run for the new seat the District drew following passage of reapportionment legislation.

Three incumbents — Maurice A. Cardin, Sol J. Friedman, and Edgar P. Silver — are running under the Kovens-Goodman banner. Mr. Friedman went over to the K-G side after bolting the Pollack faction.

Another incumbent, Marvin Mandel, chairman of the city's delegation, is also a former Pollack ally, but now heads up a "Third Force" with City Councilman Solomon Liss.

Edgar P. Silver and Alexander Stark are independents.

Mr. Stark triggered the anti-Pollack rebellion when he left the faction following the close of the special session of the General Assembly last spring.

The Democratic slate is favored to trounce the GOP hopefuls who include:

Samuel Barber, Claudenia Brown, Louis C. Carliner, Richard M. Hartman, A. Leroy Jackson, Luther B. Miller Jr. and C. Nelson Sigler.

SIXTH DISTRICT

Other than the Fourth and Fifth, this is the only other city district where there are colored State Legislature candidates, and they are all Republicans.

Augustus D. Knox, businessman, is running for the Senate seat against Council-man William L. Hodges, Democratic nominee.

Mesdames M. Elizabeth Greer, Viola Z. Scales, Miss Edna M. Middleton and Joseph C. Woodhouse are Republican candidates for the district's six house seats, now held by five Democratic incumbents.

This district is also overwhelmingly Democratic, with 39,500 of this party's members, and 8,600 Republicans.

There are 8,600 colored Democrats and 4,500 Republicans of this race registered here, and they joined forces in a protest vote in the May primary which knocked off Senator George W. Della, who had been in the State Senate since 1939.

This protest vote allowed Councilman Hodges to win the Democratic senatorial nomination.

The approximately 13,000 colored voters in this district are in a far minority to the 35,000 white citizens regisered.

Trade unit backs labor bias charges

DETROIT — The Trade Union Leadership Council, composed largely of Negro members of the United Automobile Workers, AFL-CIO, has passed a resolution commending the NAACP board of directors for its "prompt espousal of support" for Herbert Hill, NAACP labor secretary, who is carrying forward an NAACP campaign against discrimination by labor unions.

The resolution, adopted at a general membership meeting of the 9,000-member organization here on Oct. 22, also recorded its "unqualified support" of Mr. Hill in the "fight against discrimination in the ILGWU, other unions and management."

THE RESOLUTION asserts "there has been no refutation" of the NAACP charges that the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union discriminates against colored and Puerto Rican workers in job assignments and in appointments and elec-

ALPHA FRATERNITY AWARDS SCHOLARSHIPS—Top row-post-graduate and professional school winners are Carl E. High, University of North Carolina; Frederick A. Christian, Wayne State University; Jimmie L. Franklin, University of Oklahoma; Walter J. Hardy, Jr., University of Wisconsin. College students are Reginald Lewis, Morgan State College; Walter J. Frazier, Fisk University; Hamilton E. Holmes, University of Georgia; Channing D. Smith, Virginia Union University.

Alpha announces scholarship awards

Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity continues the awarding of scholarship and fellowship funds to college and post-graduate students based on academic and extra-curricular attainments of the applicants.

This year, Dr. Clifton R. Jones, director of Educational Activities, Alpha Phi Alpha, and professor Sociology at Morgan State College, announced that the number applying was higher than ever and the competition greater in all categories since the first awards of $100 each to students at the Covention in 1928 at Atlanta, Ga., and now about 22 awards with a minimum of $450.

Some recipients of the awards are Carl E. High, Raleigh, N. C., graduate of Clark College, Atlanta, Attending the University of North Carolina, studying for Ph.D. in Business Administration; Frederick A. Christian, Lagos, Nigeria, West Africa, graduate of Allen University, now at Wayne State University, for M.A. degree in Parasitology;

Jimmie L. Franklin, Corinth, Mississippi, graduate of Jackson State College, studying for M. A. in History at the University of Oklahoma, Walter J. Tardy Jr. Detroit, graduate of Tennessee A. and I., now first year medical student at the University of Wisconsin Medical College, and one of the very few non-whites ever admitted for medicine.

UNDERGRADUATE Scholarship Awards are Reginald Lewis, Baltimore, senior student majoring in Political Science at Morgan State College, William J. Frazier, Gary Ind. sophomore at Fisk University majoring Electrical Engineering;

Hamilton E. Holmes, Atlanta, senior, University of Georgia, pre-medical student; Channing D. Smith, Middleburg, Va., junior, Virginia Union University, student in Biology; Jerome A. Atkins, Newport News, Vir., junior student, Electrical Engineering at Howard University.

Dr. William H. Hale, general president of Alpha, and president of Langston University, Langston, Okla., says that the fraternity is studying the possibility of increasing the $450 each to $1,000, but is confronted with the great number of deserving students.

Therefore, it might be preferable to double the students covering more applicants, he said.

Dr. Clifton R. Jones is man of Educational Activities Committee, that made the selections of the winners. Committee includes Harold Buckner, St. Louise, Mo.; Bishop Marquis L. Harris, Atlanta, Dr. Elgy S. Johnson, District Teachers College, Washington; Harold Jones, Berkeley, Calif.; Dr. Rayford Logan, Howard University; Dr. Lionel H. Nelsom, Morehouse College; Dr. Gus T. Ridge, Kentucky State College, Dr. Oscar W. Ritchie, Kent State University, Kent, Ohio; and Dr. Milton S. J. Wright, Wilberforce University.

W. A. C. Hughes to defend James

W. A. C. Hughes Jr., dean of Baltimore's civil rights lawyers, has been appointed by the court to defend William James, who surrendered Tuesday as the sensational escape from the Jail.

Mr. Hughes, who is the only Republican candidate for Municipal Judge in Tuesday's election, said that James, accused of double murder during a holdup, has been in and out of mental institutions since he was 9 years of age.

He has been an inmate of Crownsville State Hospital five times.

A graduate of Boston University and a practicing lawyer in Baltimore for more than 30 years, Mr. Hughes will appear on the Charley Roeder political program on WCBM at 11:30 p.m. Friday.

Justice to get tough as 'Ole Miss' unmasks

By MARY STRATFORD

The "trick or treat" maneuvers between the United States Government and students at the University of Mississippi headed toward a showdown this week when the Justice Department threatened contempt of court arrests for students involved in new demonstrations against the enrollment of James Meredith in the former all - white university.

In a sought of Halloween-ish affair, some students at Ole Miss have been "tricking" the U.S. Government with defiance of the law despite the fact that the Justice Department has benignly "treated" the students to what has amounted to immunity from arrest.

* * *

THAT THE Justice Department would have to pursue a stronger course against segregationist students at Ole Miss has become apparent in development this week which can hardly be blamed on "red - necks" or outsiders.

In the past, the Justice Department and the press have taken the position that outside elements provoked the violence on the Ole Miss campus the night of Mr. Meredith's enrollment which left two dead and upward of 75 injured.

Instead of filing charges, the Justice Department officials turned their names over to the university administration which subsequently warned the student body that further demonstrations could result in disciplinary action by school officials.

On Wednesday night, military policemen found a budding arsenal in a men's dormitory on the campus adjacent to Baxter Hall where Mr. Meredith is living.

The military policemen removed a dismantled pistol, a dismantled M-1 rifle, several tear gas grenade from the dorm, a five-gallon gasline can and a large supply of fireworks.

The search of the dormitory was touched off when someone threw a "cherry bomb" firecracker from a window, injuring a soldier. Mr. Meredith, who was eating in he student cafeteria was not hurt by the 100 milling students who gathered in the area, though he returned to his own dormitory while excitement ran high.

If it knows, the FBI has yet to make known who is supplying the students with dangerous equipment.

ON TUESDAY, a U.S. marshal, Frank Hartley of Omaha, was injured wren a bottle was thrown through the window of a car transporting Mr. Meredith to his dormitory.

Mr. Meredith and three other marshals in the car were not hurt. The bottle was thrown from a group of students standing in the doorway of the dorm where Mr. Meredith is staying.

Soldiers on the campus have become the target of thrown bottles and exploding firecrackers.

STUDENT affairs dean, L. L. Love has warned students that they face federal court action if there is further violence. He disclosed that Deputy U. S. Atty. Gen. Nicolas DeB. Katzenbach, who has returned from Washington to Ole Miss, intends to charge students arrested in the new disturbances with contempt of court.

The "get tougher on students" policy comes belatedly, and only after an interim in which a harte core of students refused to accept the role offered them by apologists, that of being innocent misguided prankster's rather than scheming members of a mob already proved capable of murder.
