Armstrong cited for defense

For a great individual effort in helping to contain the vaunted running game of Cities College led by Tom Duley, Douglass linebacker William Armstrong was awarded a watch by Claude (Buddy) Young during half-time of the Poly-Calvert Hall game.

William's dogging defensive tactics against Duley's offensive moves were largely responsible for an 8-8 tie game with the power-running City squad.

U.S. still hoping for Congo solution

WASHINGTON — Official Washington is hopeful of a happy ending to the civil strife that separates the Central Congo government from copper-rich—Katanga region, but the attitude now is "wait and see."

While the United States has no quarrel with Cyrille Adoula's government at Leopoldville, it has yet to be convinced of Moise Tshombe's intentions at Elizabethville.

A State Department spokesman, recently returned from the Congo, reported Friday that both sides in the rift are "obsessed with the unification of the Congo."

• • •

THIS OFFICIAL, who insisted on anonymity, said rich South Kasai has been reintegrated into the Congo economy and gave the opinion that the present situation "can't drag on much longer."

In speaking of the bankrupt UN forces in the Congo, the official asserted that "one way or another," a way will be found to keep the 18,000-man force there.

Meanwhile, a new draft of a federal constitution for the Congo, which Adoula presented Thursday to the heads of 16 provinces at Leopoldville, appeared unlikely to satisfy either Tshombe or other provincial leaders.

So far there has been no official reaction from Elizabethville on the 212-article Adoula draft which was prepared by experts on constitutional law —provided by United Nations from Switzerland, India, Canada and Nigeria.

• • •

AMONG THE key provisions are those sharply limiting powers of the draft constitution provincial police powers and revenues and taxes from mining concessions equally between the Central Government and provincial authorities.

Relocation to be topic at CPHA's fall luncheon

A "Relocation-Gateway or Dead End?" a question facing our community in the battle against slums, will be discussed by four local experts at the annual fall luncheon meeting of the Citizens Planning and Housing Association to be held Tuesday, 13, at 12:30 p.m. at the Zion Lutheran Church, City Hall laza, Holiday and Lexington Sts.

William Donald Schaefer, vice-president of the Baltimore City Council, will discuss the conservation program.

Richard L. Steiner, director of the Baltimore Urban Renewal and Housing Agency, will speak on the role of public housing in relocation.

Harold C. Edelston, executive secretary of the Health and Welfare Council, and William M. Rawlings supervisor of general adult education for the Baltimore Public Schools, will discuss what these agencies are doing in the field of tenant education.

668,369 pupils in public schools

More children are enrolled in the public schools of Maryland than ever before, according to figures recently compiled by the Research and Development Division of the State Department of Education.

Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, said 668,369 pupils are now in state schools, an increase of 32,019 over last year, and the largest yearly increase ever.

Baltimore city ranks over the 23 counties with a total enrollment of 180,750, Dr. Pullen said.

Iotas planning Sun. broadcast

The program will be heard at 3 p.m. Participating will be Mrs. Isabel McConnell, the sorority's president; Miss Evelyn D. Wilkey; Mrs. Fannie Poulson; and Mrs. Mabel C. Waters.

Others taking part include Gladys Ball, Helen Weatherford, Mary Ames, Sarah Diggs, Bertha Green, Anna Wilson, Marian Philips, Marian Ranson and Francis Mackay.

Something going on at Carver High all the time

"There is something going on around here at all times," declares James Williams, second shift custodian foreman at Carver Vocational-Technical High School.

Mr. Williams, who has been with the Department of Education for 15 years, and his three-man crew, begin their workday at 3 p.m., just about the time the last student leaves the building for the day.

There will be plenty going on around the school for the next 16 hours, because keeping a school going is a seven-day around-the-clock job.

Mr. Williams' crew begins cleaning, dusting, dry mopping and emptying waste paper baskets in what he calls a "13.2 acre area." The work through the night school classes which begin at 7 p.m.

After Mr. Williams' crew leaves at 11 p.m., the bulk of the cleaning will be done by an 8-man crew that comes on to work until 7 a.m.

• • •

THIS CREW takes up cleaning where the second shift leaves off, does the heavy mopping, buffing and scrubbing to ready the school for the next day.

Meanwhile, three shifts of other workers keep watch on the three huge boilers which supply heat and hot water for the school, steam for the press shop and cosmetology classes and water for the swimming pool.

John Curtis, second shift foreman, said these workers also must check the swimming pool filter, which continuously cleanses the pool water, refill hall fire extinguishers, check the substation power boxes and look in on the roof-top greenhouse.

The greenhouse, requiring water and constant temperature control, means someone has to be at the school over the weekend, in addition to the building watch, Mr. Curtis said.

He said he and his brother, Thomas, second shift foreman, alternate weekends caring for the greenhouse.

• • •

MR. CURTIS stations one of his crew in the boiler room. This man is also charged with cleaning the locker and shower rooms and the auxiliary gymnasium after the attendant leaves at 5 p.m.

The boilerroom man must also see to it that there is hot water for showers for after school football practice and other sports, Mr. Curtis said.

Amid all this cleaning and maintenance, the school is alive with other activities. Clubs meeting weekdays from 3-4:30 p.m., and organized play in the gymnasium sponsored by the Department of Recreation, from 7-9 p.m., 5 days a week.

On top of this, there is a full slate of night school classes meeting four days of the week.

And sometimes at night, or on Saturdays and Sundays, organizations use the cafeteria or auditorium for programs, dinners or parties.

Thus, it seems, as Mr. Williams said earlier, "There is something going on around here at all times."

Mrs. Welcome thanks voters for support

In her first formal statement since election victory Tuesday, Mrs. Verda C. Welcome today thanked voters for their support and expressed her deep regret that Robert C. Watts and John Hargrove had not been reelected to city judgeships.

Mrs. Welcome, first colored woman state senator in Maryland's history, said:

"The tragedy of this entire election is the loss of two good men from the bench. The change in the manner of the election of our judges has caused the absence of these two capable and worthy people — Judge Hargrove and Judge Watts.

"Out of this really catastrophic situation has emerged lessons that we, the electorate, should never forget. There will come a time not too long hence when some remedial measure may be taken.

"This is an area of deep concern to me and one that will remain in the foreground of my thinking.

• • •

OF HER ELECTION, Mrs. Welcome said:

"This is the culmination of many months of efforts and sacrifices on the part of a large number of people. They believed, as I did, that it was time for a sweeping change in the Fourth District.

"We needed a fresh breeze in the district that would blow away the cobwebs of the past, that would create a vigorous political atmosphere.

"We, representing the new frontiers, made so bold as to challenge the old, in a fight that simply had to be won, if the people were to throw off the heavy hands of bossism.

"This was no ordinary foe that we faced, but a craft and wily opponent, well schooled in the field of politics. To many it might have seemed that we were as David, daring to challenge Goliath.

"However, we had certain forces on our side that were not be denied. They were truth and the people.

"Together, they have brought us the victory. I feel altogether humble in the face of what has been done to make this possible. But in feeling humble, I also feel proud, for through our efforts, we have shown that we have come into our political maturity.

• • •

"FAR FROM being an end, our victory is but a prelude of other things to come. From what has been accomplished, other people will take fresh courage.

"If we stand together, the future is ours.

"My heart goes out in humble thanks to each and everyone of you who has helped to make this victory possible. My deep thanks to all of you.
