The ladies have been organized since 1955.

MORE BLESSED TO GIVE — Suiting the deed to the words, Floyd Bartz (left) and Frank Reddish (center) purchase tickets to Mrs. Santa's Festival of Music from AFRO reporter George Collins, on behalf of their organization, the National Beverage Association. Mr. Bartz is national president and Mr. Reddish heads the local chapter.

—Will aid needy

Festival at 6 p.m.

All proceeds will be used in the Mrs. Santa project to help needy families at Christmas.

APPEARING ON the program will be two truly outstanding choirs from the Salem Methodist Church in New York City — the Youth Choir and the Senior Chancel Choir.

These two choirs, together with their soloists, have earned a legion of fans up and down the eastern seaboard in a number of concerts.

Combined, the choirs total almost 100 voices.

The Festival will also feature the robust voice of a guest soloist, Kenneth Lockett, baritone. He will be accompanied by James S. Hammond, minister of music at Douglas Memorial Community Church.

Mr. Lockett, a brilliant artist has appeared in both this country and abroad.

THE SALEM Methodist Church Youth Choir was organized six and a half years ago with about a dozen members. Since then the choir has grown to a membership of over fifty.

The choir has appeared in concerts in New York City, Baltimore, Washington and Virginia.

Louise Kemp, the director and organizer, is a native New Yorker and has received all of her education in New York City: City College of New York, New York College of Music, and Columbia University.

Miss Kemp is the contralto soloist of the Chancel Choir of Salem Methodist Church. She studied with Ethel Hardy Smith, the late Julius Gutman, and at present, is studying with Jean Deeb.

The organist for the Salem Choirs will be Leonard Matthews, Licentiate and Fellow, Trinity College, London.

Mr Matthews has appeared in a number of recitals and has served as accompanist for choruses as well as soloists at Carnegie Hall.

He is organist - choirmaster of the Salem Church and holds master of sacred music degree from Union Theological Seminary.

With these fine artists on the program, The Festival promises to be the musical highlight of the season.

We suggest that you purchase your tickets early.

Serving as ushers will be members of the Martinque Club, Mrs. Justine Chandler, president.

dispatches on his safari had him saying that he didn't mean it that way, stating that his remarks were "personal" and not those of official U.S. policy.

BUT THEN Africa officials were up in arms all over the continent about his "dirty creed."

In Tanganyika, U.S. Ambassador William K. Leonhart went aboard the Ethiopian plane when it touched down to tell the senator that the Tanganyika government had decreed in effect for him not to set foot on the ground.

Uganda and Kenya followed suit in the growing African tide against the "dirty creed."

Honor Roll

Mrs. Santa takes pleasure in paying a salute to the following organizations for their purchase of blocks of tickets to the Festival of Music.

Through supporting the Festival, they are making it possible for Mrs. Santa to help needy families during the holiday season.

—Marine accused

believe him. Then I looked in his face. He looked like a beast. I thought of my children and I knew I had to fight for my life," she said before pausing.

"I saw the knife and put up my arm, and he stabbed me in the arm. Still trying to fight him off, I tried to kick, but he stabbed me in the leg. I grabbed the knife and bent the blade, cutting my hand as I did so," she continued.

MRS. HARRISON said several small boys playing in the street rescued her by beating her attacker off with shoes until two men came along and finished the job with an automobile jack.

She said doctors gave her four blood transfusions during emergency treatment at the hospital.

Just as Mr. McAllister completed his questioning, Mrs. Harrison volunteered a plea for the marine:

"Since this happened I would like to say that he is a person, but it's hard for me to tell what kind of person he is.

"I can't hold malice in my heart. I have recovered. I don't want to hurt him. His own conscience will hurt him much more than I can. He has led a lonely life."

JUDGE MANLEY then asked was there a romance involved. "We were friends," Mrs. Harrison answered.

"I tried to be his friend, but I was hurting—myself. He thought I belonged to him," she added.

"He was getting like a child. He depended on me," I knew I had to get away from him, Mrs. Harrison replied when Judge Manley pressed the romance question.

Mr. Freedman then began his cross - examination.

"What is your name?" Mr. Freedman asked.

"What do you mean, what is my name?" Mrs. Harrison countered.

"You are listed here as Ruby Harrison, is that your name?" Mr. Freedman repeated.

"That has nothing to do with the case," the hostess answered.

AFTER overruling the state's objection, Judge Manley ordered Mrs. Harrison to answer.

Mrs. Harrison then testified that she had been married to a Leroy Davis for 13 years and that they are separated but not divorced. She identified the Harrison man as a friend.

When asked why, "in your opinion," did Sgt. Damon attack her, Mrs. Harrison replied that he "was insanely jealous."

TESTIFYING in his defense, the Marine admitted that jealousy triggered the assault.

"I was jealous and lost my head," he told the court.

Sgt. Damon, who reiterated earlier statements that he has given Mrs. Harrison large sums of money during their friendship, estimated from the witness stand that he had given her "between $12,000 and $15,000 dollars."

He also indicated that a love triangle contributed to the incident.

The Marine said he entered the service in 1943 and has earned 47 credits in business administration from Stanford University. He told the court the duties of his outfit included transporting the President in helicopters.

While ordering a medical examination before disposing of the case, Judge Manley remarked:

"This is something you wouldn't expect from a person of your background."

Sigma Iota Pi will sell tickets to Festival of Music

The Sigma Iota Phi Sorority will be giving the AFRO's Mrs. Santa a hand over the weekend, when its members conduct a door to door campaign to see tickets to the Festival of Music on Sunday at Polytechnic.

Ten girls from Eastern, Forest Park, Douglass and Western, comprise the membership of the group.

Eloise Washington is president; Vashti Smith, vice president; Fredrica Coffee, secretary, Merle Jones, treasurer.

Also selling tedsets on Saturday will be the Omega Delta Tau Fraternity of City Colleges, Donald Cooke, President.

—When is a lawn

is to encourage tenants themselves to care for the land in front of their apartments.

"The best evidence of this is that we conduct flower, garden and lawn campaigns as a part of our effort to promote this idea. We provide free seed, lawn mowers and rakes.

"It would be against our policy to rake a lawn that had already been raked. Our maintenance men have more than they can do as it is."

It was Mr. Gay's opinion that only "unusual circumstances" would warrant arbitrary raking by housing project crews.

"We'll check this situation though," said Mr. Gay, "And let you know our findings."

Meanwhile, those autumn leaves fall by Lafayette Court windows and the great lawn controversy continues.

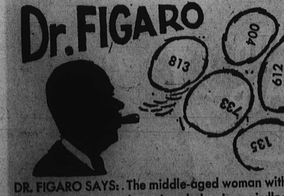
Dr. FIGARO



DR. FIGARO SAYS: The middle-aged woman with the nice figure may be only a bulge in a girdled cage.

ANNAPOLIS DOINGS

By ELOISE RICHARDSON

Short talks were given by Elliott Roberts, assitant superintendent of the hospital and Mrs. Brucye Hemilton coordinator of Volunteer Services.

The patients also presented a fashion show, sponsored by the Recreation Department of the hospital, with Mrs. Odessa Murray, staff member, in chaiirge. She was assisted by the nearly-new shop chairman, Mrs. Maude Stratton.

The auxiliary, which has a five - point working program sponsors a canteen, nearly-new shop, occupational therapy, coffee hours and a cart service at the hospital for the patients.

RECENTLY, Miss Sarah Jones, supervisor of elementary schools in Anne Arundel County, and a member of the auxiliary board, was chairman for a clothes shower for the nearly - new shop, sponsored by several schools of Anne Arundel County.

Miss Jones, a very enthusiastic champion of "helping those who need help," is to be congratulated for this fine effort, which she also sponsored last year.

In connection with her effort, patients of the hospital were given clothing to wear, and they served as models in a fashion show for other patients of the hospital. The show proved to be a real highlight in recreation for the patients.

The Recreation Department under Josephus Lee, with Mrs. Murray in charge of the models, sponsored the program.

Those principals who assisted with the shower were Mrs. Helen Smothers, Lothian School; Mrs. Helen Brown, Pumphrey; Miss Dorothy Taylor, Friendship; Francis Noel, Adams Park of Annapolis; Frank Hebron Harmans School, and Mr. Smith, vice-principal of Freetown.

Others who participated were Mrs. Ardenia Parker and Miss Madeline Randolph, teachers of the Parole School at Annapolis, Mrs. Mary Brown of the auxiliary board and a visiting teacher of Anne Arundel County, Miss Nan Wright, chairman of the Annapolis Branch of the Women's Auxiliary and a teacher in Annapolis.

Beatrice Watson and Mrs. Lillman also participated.

RHO CHAPTER of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity brought out many along the Eastern Seaboard recently as its annual Harvard Moon Ball, held at the fabulous Cherry Hill Inn out from Philadelphia.

Bessie and Horace Small (Dr. and Dr.) of Denton, Md. and Dr. and Mrs. P. Custard Howard of Coatesville, co - hosted a group of guests.

Among those at their table were the beautiful Small twins, Sylvia and Bubby, Jerome (Jerry) Horne, and Shelba, Richard Wright of the Wright family in Philly, the petite and brilliant Marie Carter, bank teller, of Brooklyn, N. Y., John Rayfield of Philly, the William H. Richardsons of Annapolis, Md., Dr. and Mrs. Charles Henry (Beatrice - that fine pianist and organist) of Dover, Del., Dr. Robert Henry, that charming and attractive Elizabeth (Fuzzy) Dix school mom and her hubby, William (he's now a first on the board of Delaware State College) of Bridgeville, Del.

Also her charming sister, Vivian Graham (school mam) of Wilmington. There were also the George Joneses (petite and pretty Augusta) of Philly, the popular Dr. Edwin Fassett of Cambridge and Dr. Edwin Fassett of Cambridge and Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Marion of Princess Anne, Md. He's the popular Ph. D. on the Maryland State College faculty, also there was lly school marm, sister of Madline Cooper Barton love-Cooper Boden.

After the dance, guests strolled up to the hotel suite of the Smalls and enjoyed more refreshments and plenty of good food.

THE WILLIAM H. RICHARDSONS enjoyed a fine concert by the Hampton Institute Choir on Saturday evening at Delaware State Annapolis teacher, Mary College.

The choir of about 40 voices, which sang a cappella mostly, stunned its audience with its distinct enunciation and rich harmony.

Its pianissimo (which is usually the hardest of tones to cultivate) was unusually clear. The diversified program as a whole stood out.

The obligato solo which accompanied Haizon's "Deep River," was not only beautiful, but sounded more like an instrumenfal a c c o m p a n i ment to the choral background.

The male voices also created the same effect. An unusual selection on the program was a Christmas cantata entitled "The Ballad of the Brown King." Lyrics were written by the famous author and poet, Langston Hughes, and the music was composed and arranged by the fine musician, Margaret Bond. Margaret is a Chicagoan.

'Messiah' set at Sharp St.

Handel's "Messiah" will be presented by The Great Hymns Choir, Daniel Ridout, Sr., director, at Sharp Street Methodist Church, Dolphin and Etting Streets, Sunday night, Dec. 9, at 7 o'cock.

Mrs. Audrey McCallum, regular accompanist of the choir, and teacher of music at Dunbar High School, will be at the piano.
