BALTIMORE AFTER DARK On the TOWN with the Pub Crawler

Thanks to the legion of nite people, a lot of underprivileged children will have a chance to see and hear some of the talents heretofore reserved for the privileged.

One such nite person is Phyllis Robers, pretty thrust who spelled Ethel Ennis at the Red Fox for several weeks.

Jerome Scruggs, the youthful but dynamic leader of the House Rockers, whose aggregation is favored by all real down groups when it's time to throw a big one, is another one falling in this category.

Jerome and Phyllis are joining other entertainers who have volunteered to donate their time and tales to the AFRO - Regent Annual Christmas party for needy children at the Regent Theatre on Christmas Eve.

They are typical of the big-hearted entertainers who think of others, as well as themselves during the joyous season.

Like entertainers, there are others around town who care for those who ordinarily get little care at Christmas or any other time.

FLOYD BARTZ, who doubles as head man at North End and president of the local chapter of NNLBA.

Because of Floyd and Frank Reddish, Dotson's nice guy, and national prez of the beverage men, a lot of little ones will have more than bleakness at Yuletide.

Frank and Floyd gave the Mrs. Santa Fund a healthy helping hand and on behalf of a bacth of grateful youngsters, the Crawler sez thanks loads, fellows.

• • • •

THE JOLLY JAX, a brothers' group of high power artists, should also be mentioned.

Carroll, Herman, and Jerry Hill, who leave the Casino Sunday for an extended road trip, asked us to convey their regrets to youngsters at the Mrs. Santa's Chrismas party because they won't be able to make it.

By the by, you have just three more chances to catch this dynamic trio at the Casino.

Another longtime show biz sparkplug, Flink Johnson, returns to the Main Drag this serve for tre first time in many a moons.

Flink and his entourage opens an extended stay at Andy's Club Bamboo this weekend. It going to be wild, knowing Flink.

Elsewhere around town, the New Colony, Adams Cocktail Lounge, Alpine Villa, Jones Coctail Lounge, Knotty Pine, East Side, the Overall (honest to goodness), are making ready for the visit of Jolly old St. Nick.

Kleeco is already ready, if Walter's decorations are indication.

Bus Hicks, our girl Joan are prepping to lay merry jingles on gayliters finding themselves in the cozy confines of Maceo's.

THE JETTS can not move from Mrs. Carter's home because of a lack of furniture and clothing.

"The kids and I only have the clothes on our backs," said Mrs. Jett.

One of her sons, Earl, has no shoes at all.

The other children are wearing bedroom slippers.

"They had better shoes," said Mrs. Jett, "but they were burned up."

Unless something happens, the mother and the children will be confined to the house, at least until the winter is over; for they do not have coats to wear.

In the clothing line, only Mr. Jett was fortunate. Some of his shirts, trousers, and shoes were saved from the flames.

Of the furniture and other household goods, the Jetts managed to salvage only two small tables and a few whatnots.

THE FIRE broke out Wednesday afternoon when Mrs. Jetts went to make a phone call and to buy her three-moth-old baby some milk.

Despite the 22-degree temperature, she wore a sweater and peddle pushers topped only by a light coat more suitable for rain than for sub-freezing weather, as she did not expect to be away from home for any time.

While she was away from home she heard the sirens of fire engines and like many people, did not pay any particular attention to the excitement.

It was not until she returned home that she realized that it was her house that was on fire.

As soon as Mrs. Jett entered her block, neighbors informed her that her children had been led to safety and were in a house across the street from her home.

The children are James 6; Clayton 4½; Sylvester, 2; Earl 1½, and Marcelline, three months.

Firemen are still, investigating the cause of the fire.

To the Jetts, this isn't the important question.

The important question is: "How do we start to build our lives again?"

The Jetts don't know.

Does anyone?

cording to the weather. When it gets colder, I put more clothes on. When it gets warmer, I take some off."

Despite Baltimore's 12 degree weather even lower temperatures are forecast for the freeze is moving southward weekend. Another Artic freeze is moving southward to plunge the temperature to near zero levels.

If the temperature continues to fall, new records will be established for the city. Relief is not expected for several days.

Pioneer stenographer dies after 18 months

Mrs. Johnson, a native of Blackton, Ark., came to Toledo 20 years ago. She had been in municipal employment for 18 months.

13 tan players All-Pro choices

NEW YORK — Thirteen colored players were chosen on the Associated Press first and second all-pro teams of National Football League, last week.

Picked on the top offensive team were tackle Roosevelt Brown of the Giants, guard Jim Parker of the Colts, and halfbacks Bobby Mitchell of the Redskins, and Don Perkins of the Cowboys.

Named to the first defensive team were end Willie Davis of the Packers, tackle Roger Brown of the Lions, and corner backs Dick Lane of the Lions, and Herb Adderley of the Packers.

IN ADDITION to the eight tan athletes on the 22-man first squad, five were selected on the second all-pro squad.

These were running backs Dick Bass of the Rams, and John Henry Johnson of the Steelers, on offense; corner backs Jimmy Hill of the Cardinals, and Erich Barnes of the Giants, and safety Willie Wood of the Packers.

HE'S ALL-PRO ANYWAY — Though switched from the tackle position where he has been named all-pro the past four years, Jim Parker made it anyway — as the NFL's best offensive guard — in selections announced early this week. Parker and the Baltimore Colts close out their 1962 season Sunday at Memorial Stadium, opposing the Minnesota Vikings.

Colts ready for finale; FG block thrill for R.C.

BALTIMORE The Baltimore Colts will conclude their season at home Sunday, taking on the Minnesota Vikings. The Memorial Stadium kickoff is slated for 2:05 p.m.

Halftime entertainment will be provided by the Prince George (Va.) High School Band, with their dancing Starlettes to be featured.

Coach Weeb Ewbank's Steeds will be gunning for a 7 - 7 record against a Minnesota team that staged one of the most exciting duels in Memorial Stadium history a year ago, bewing 34-33 on Steve Myhra's final - play, 52-yard field goal.

ON LAST Sunday's leaping block at the goal line of Bob Khayat's 40-yard field goal attempt, Colts end R. C. Owens, who played a dozen games with San Francisco's American Basketball League team last winter, confessed:

"I would have been tagged for goal - tending for sure on that play. It would have cost two points in basketball but it saved us three points on the football field.

THE KICK looked plenty good from the start, then it started to plummet downward, floating crazily. It was tough to judge. Luckily, I timed my jump just right and managed to get my full hand on it.

"After I knocked it down it was a 'hot ball' and I had to hustle to get on it before the Redskins made the recovery.

"I was first stationed in front of the goalpost in 1960 when I was with San Francisco, but this was the first one I ever blocked."
