BALTIMORE AFTER DARK
On the TOWN with the Pub Crawler

The Rock and Roll show at the Royal this week has had its share of problems. First there was the wave of "uninvited guests" who converged on the theatre without warning.

They were FBI men who raced there when reports reached them that some of the loot taken in that East Baltimore bank heist showed up at the cashier's office.

Manager Steve Moore said the G-Men staged a four-hour vigil waiting for the rock and roll lover(s) who planked down the suspicious bill. But it was to no avail.

Apparently the culprits recognized the "guests" pronto and figured they were not there to catch rock and rollers Tommy Hunt and Mary Wells.

No attempt was made to use the tickets.

• • •

THEN ON TUESDAY Tommy, who created a stir when he collapsed on his last visit here, again fell ill and had to miss up his turn on the stage.

Steve said the singer was stricken with a heart attack Sunday in the middle of the show. Mary Wells also lost in a bout with laringitis so the two head-liners were put out of action before the one-week stand could get off the ground.

So Steve and Jack are working their "Won't Appear Due to Illness" sign overtime.

It's little wonder then if Tommy's fans take a serious look at the title of his hit recording, "I'll Never Know," when he is booked in at the Royal.

• • •

OLD TIMERS along the Main Drag are drowning their sorrow at the passing of Edward Gonzales Lipscombe, "Pretty Eddie," who died in New York early this week.

An Avenue fixture, Eddie was a career seaman and husband of Bernice Lipscombe, popular hostess at a favorite uptown spot, the meeting place of the last of the "real live ones."

Eddie's legion of friends said good-bye at final rites at the Arlington Phillips Funeral Home Thursday and burial followed in Arbutus Cemetery.

"He was a good guy" was the eulogy paid him by friends and acquaintances in shops, clubs, and halls along the one-time Street of Fascination.

THERE ARE GRIPES Aplenty . . . from patrons of a certain restaurant who are unable to understand that "25 cents per man service charge" collected from certain diners.

This one must be looked into further!

• • •

UPTOWN frequenters Tuesday got a bang out of the dual between WEBB's Eddie Morrison and Dave Beckham.

Eddie, who also doubles as representative for major suds firm, bet Dave a couple cases of the stuff that he was wrong as two left shoes when h e (Dave) questioned his (Eddie's) authorative" findings on the size of goblets distributed by the firm.

Eddie lost. By the way, he distributes the goblets

Don't forget to drop on the folks whose signposts are found on these pages. They promise a bit of relief in an otherwise season of grey dullness.

Camp Mohawk opens June 24

It may be mid - winter in Baltimore and its environs but both campers and the administrators of YMCA Camp Mohawk are thinking about summer on the Patuxent River.

"J A. B. Calns, chairman of the operating committee of Camp Mohawk has just announced the opening date for summer camping as June 24.

Camp Mohawk is located at Huntingtown in Calvert County at historic King's Landing on the Patuxent.

Both boys and girls enjoy vacationing at Camp Mohawk. There will be six weekly periods from June 24 to Aug. 5 during which boys will be in attendance and three weekly periods from Aug. 5 to Aug. 26 for the girls.

For information call the Camp Mohawk Office, Central YMCA, LExington 9-7350.

Tawes rapped for mental hygiene cuts

The board of directors of the Maryland Association for Retarded Children, Inc. at its quarterly board meeting unanimously adopted a resolution deploring Governor Tawes' action in cutting the capital improvements budget of the Department of Mental Hygiene by 4½ million dollars.

The resolution "strongly recommends that the Governor reconsider his action" and calls on member units of the State Association to express "their indignation at Governor Tawes action."

Hundreds turned out for the Towson's Partner's Club Formal Party. Though their arrival was fog hampered, the palm - bedecked American Legion Hall and its gay decorations immediately conveyed the feeling that the evening would be a wonderful one. And it was!

Partner's Club president, Mrs Margaret Harris, lovely in shocking pink chiffon over taffeta, told of the club's history. They are proud of their contributions to charitiable causes.

Mrs. Harris' guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Adams, Clarence Frazier, James Gardner, Richard Powell, Ralph Williams, William Mason, William Johnson, James Perry, Joseph Berry, Joseph Campbell, Norman Smith, Alfred Owens, Lawrence Pinder, Mrs. Doris Adams and Misses Margaret Thompson and Patricia Harris . . .

CATONSVILLE is becoming famous for its lavish buffet parties. Last week the Suter Road home of jovial Lee Miles and charming wife, Nora, was the locale of a smorgasbord coupled with good music and parlor games galore.

Enjoying the fun-packed evening were the Edward Coes, Horace Browns, Charley Gordons and Misses Linda Wright and Mildred Kelly.

Invitations are in the mail to Pinnie Ross and Ann Drayten's En Semble's Elegantes scene Sunday Jan. 27 at the Sheraton Belvedere Hotel.

Two of Catonsville's most popular young matrons, Florence Brown, Sellers Point secretary, and Audrey Coe, Washington government girl, will model.

And is it nice to know that friends in Aberdeen, Md. get the AFRO to keep up with our column!

We stopped in Aberdeen via Elkton, our home town. Friends had decided that since dear friend Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, post co-ymissary cashier, was always being thoughtful of others, a surprise house warming would be a way to show our appreciation.

Dot, as she is affectionately called, and her mother and two children, "Tuffy and Peggy," have just recently moved into their new Washington St. home. And was she surprised?

THERE WERE Pat Debow, the Arler Lakes, Henry Johnsons, Fain Browns, Cicley Ames, Lester Moores, M/Sgt Archie Evans, Ishner Pipron, Samuel Ricks, Robert Jones, Lt. Paul Reeves, Finley Lane, Capt. Anderson McManus, Hadley Jones and Eric Swartz, also Mrs. Marvin Tyson, Sylvia Hall and Lucille Woods.

And were the girls lovely!

Send get-well cards to Mrs. Mary Johnson, Turner's Station. Mary was ill earlier this year and is now home-bound again. Also, (little Lake Chapter 1KM Youth group) Lanthia Perry. Lanthia is recuperating from a bout with the virus. Her address is 3131 Sequoia Ave.

MT. WINANS NEWS

Commission on worship to sponsor dinner

The Sarah O. Collins Guild held their Annual Party and gifts were distributed to the members at the home of Mrs. Blanche Powell, 3521 Lynchester Rd.

Mrs. Margaret Moore of Pasadena, Calif. visited her sister, Mrs. Cerrine Parker of Huron Street.

Funeral services for Danzel Cook of 2642 Ridgely St. were held at Mt. Winans Methodist Church on last Tuesday. The Rev. Herbert R. Pratt officiated.

Mr. Cook, born and reared in Mt. Winans, was the son of the late John D. Cook, contractor.

In addition to his widow, Mrs. Eura Cook, he is survived by two daughters, Zelma Mullins, and Iantha Cameron; a brother, Lloyd Cook; 4 grandchildren and other relatives.

• • •

THE COMMISSION on worship of Mt. Winans Methodist Church will sponsor a dinner this Friday, Jan. 18, at the church. Lemon Jones is chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. John Molloy spent their holiday with her sister in Winston-Salem, N.C.

ANNAPOLIS DOINGS

By ELOISE RICHARDSON

The annual membership drive of the Anne Arundel County Branch NAACP will close on Jan. 31.

A recent report showed that Bates High School faculty 71 teachers has brought up its mark to 50 per cent, according to Dallas Pace, solicitor.

The Adams Park School with 22 teachers has made a 100 per cent report in membership, and the First Baptist Church with Charles Tyler, solicitor, made a 50 per cent showing.

The report further shows that the Annapolis Shriner's Club has taken out a life membership and has paid its first installment.

On Sunday Frances E. Noel, the principal of Adams Park School, and chairman for the northern end of the county, accompanied by Mrs. Lula Hardesty, general chairman, and Mrs. Beatrice Coates were visitors in the interest of the campaign at the John Wesley Methodist Church at Glen Burnie.

CITIZENS ARE urged to support their NAACP Branch, particularly during this crucial period.

It is up to all colored citizens to support the only organization of its kind working in the cause of the group. If you have not paid your membership, contact the chairman, Mrs. Hardesty at 80 Franklin St. or by phone at Colonial 3-4177. Dr. Theodoré Johnson is the local president.

An observance of much significance on Sunday evening was the Emancipation Proclamation program held at the Second Baptist Church in Annapolis.

The Rev. S.J. Mack, pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Church at Glen Burnie and the chaplain at Crownsville State Hospital, was the speaker. He used as his subject "What Are We Going to Do with Our Freedom?"

Music was furnished by the James E. Adams Chorus from his church. Mrs. Mary Brown, visiting teacher with the Anne Arundel County Board of Education, read the original Emancipation Proclamation.

Mrs. Juanita Diggs outlined the hymn and Mrs. Ulysses Brooks offered prayers. The program was sponsored by Mr. Francis Diggs and was presented by Mrs. Pearl Swann.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Laura Harris and Mrs. Oliver Kyler. The Rev. Norris Morgan is the pastor.

THIS YEAR Annapolis was well-represented among debs at the Maryland Debutante Ball. Miss Laura Mae Wood, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood, took fith place for a scholarship award of $10.

She was also declared the most agressive candidate of the Charm School, showing the "most improvement" during the Charm School sessions.

A senior at Bates High School, Miss Wood is an academic student, and is a member of the Zinos, a group connected with the National Sorority of Phi Delta Kappa, Alpha Mu Chapter, the Tri-Hi-Y Club of the Northwest Street YMCA and the school band.

Lloyd L. Lusk of Nashville, Tenn., profesor of music at and director of the school chair, and his three young daughters, Abheda, 15; Wergena, 12, and LaWanda, 8, were house guests of their brother-in-law and uncle, Dr. Roy J. Jones and family of Washington, D.C.

Dr. Jones is head of the psychology department at Howard University, Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Lusk, deceased, was the sister of Dr. Jones, the former Miss Pauline Jones, a native of Longview, Texas.

PINCH HITS FOR MAYS — Washington Senators outfielder Chuck Hinton (right) had distinction of pinch-hitting for "Sultan of Swat" Willie Mays at Tops In Sports Banquet in Baltimore Monday night. Mays, bedded with flu at his San Francisco home, could not be present for Civic Center ceremonies. Hinton accepted crown for him as Baltimore Mayor Goodman made presentation.

Olivet leads Methodist midget cage standings

Unbeaten in three outings to date, the Mount Olivet Hawks are sitting atop the standings of the Methodist Church Midget Basketball League.

During the past week, the Hawks took the measure of the Union Memorial Dodgers, 21 - 13, dealing that team its second loss in four starts.

R. Randall, with 8 points, led the winners, though Dennis Thompson's 9 tallies for the Dodgers were tops for the game.

• • •

UNION MEMORIAL on the other hand, with R. Jackson hitting for 7 points, edged the Metropolitan "A" Mets, 23-19, and the Metropolitan "B" Mets kept pace by turning back Eastern Methodist, 22-13.

R. Conyer was the big gun for the "B" quint in the latter contest. He tallied 20 points in the winning effort.

In the week's other league game, the "A's" won a low-scoring contest from the "B" team, 11-5.

The standings follow:

Team	W	L
Mt. Olivet - Hawks	3	0
Union Memorial - Dodgers	3	1
Met. "B"	2	2
Met. "A"	2	2
Eastern Methodist	1	3
Sharp St. Methodist	0	3

GAMES WEEK END

The Baltimore Clippers, still very much in the running for the American Hockey League's eastern division honors, face another big week-end of ice hockey starting tonight (Friday) when they entertain the defending champion Springfield Indians at the Civic Center.

Following the clash with the Indians, the Clipp ers travel to Cleveland for a Saturday night engagement and then shuffle off to Buffalo and a meeting with the western division leading Bisons.

Reggie Watts head of football board

REGGIE WATTS heads Maryland board

The Maryland Board of Football Officials elected its first colored president at its meeting Monday night.

Reginald (Reggie) Watts, longtime football, basketball and baseball official and one of the most respected members in the field, was the choice.

Watts, vice president of the organization the past two years, succeeds retiring president Lou Ko
