Campy's assertion called 'ridiculous'

NEW YORK —Indications are that the fireworks in the Campanella divorce have spectacular, if unfortunate, just begun.

Already beclouded by bitter recriminations, the two-year battle over their home on Long Island and alimony appears to be moving rapidly toward a series of sensational charges and counter charges.

Last week, the former baseball star sought to amend an earlier action for annulment of the 15 - year marriage to his estranged wife, Ruthe.

He asked the New York Supreme court to substitute a charge of adultery in the place of such minor allegations as cruety and desertion.

THROUGH HIS attorneys Roy asserted that Ruthe had spent the night of Sept. 30, 1962, at a Harlem motel with jazz musician Willis (Gator Tail) Jackson.

He offered as proof an affidavit signed by car-for-hire operator Roosevelt Zanders. Zanders stated that he witnessed Jackson and Mrs. Campanella at the drive-in motel on the night in question.

Filing of the new charge and the sworn affidavit triggered violent reaction from both Mrs. Campanella and the bandleader co-respondent.

It also provoked threats of serious counter - action on the part of both against Roy and Jackson.

"IT IS the most ridiculous thing I've heard from him," Mrs. Campanella told the AFRO Thursday. "And he has been guilty of saying a lot of ridiculous things.

"I have seen Mr. Jackson on several occasions at Smalls Paradise (Harlem cafe-nitery owned by baseball star Willie Mays's plain). But I doubt that we have had more than a few dozen words to say to each other.

"I'm fully prepared to prove that I was at a private women's dinner on the night in question, and that I came straight home at its conclusion.

"This I can prove," Ruthe continued, "and when the proper time comes, I shall do so. After that, you can be sure my attorney, Joseph Tanenbaum, is going to sue for libel.

"I've worked conscientiously at avoiding any situations that could possibly reflect on my behavior, and I find myself asking every day: 'How can people be so misguided?' And why?"

JACKSON, immediately upon learning of his involvement in the proceedings, consulted his lawyers, New York State Sen. James Watson and Attorney Bob Rhone.

He, too, branded the adultery accusation as "ridiculous."

Said he: "I've met Mrs. Campanella only twice, and then only on the most casual of circumstances at the club.

"On the night James refers to, I was on the bandstand at the Paradise at the time I was supposedly checking into this motel," Jackson added.

"If this matter ever comes to trial, Gene Tyler, the night manager where I was working can offer proof concerning my whereabouts.

"My lawyers tell me I've been slandered, and you can bet somebody's gonna pay for it — Zanders, Campanella or somebody."

UPON BEING contacted by the AFRO later Thursday afternoon, Campanella pooh-poohed the denials.

"She (Ruthe) was there all right.

"I got a phone call telling me where it was, and I sent my detective (Roosevelt Zanders) over to the motel.

"When the manager was confronted with our evidence," Roy declared, "he had no alternative. He didn't want his door broken down."

QUESTIONED about the rumor that he is anxious to obtain an absolute divorce so that he may be free to sue for a possible marriage to a Harlem socialite, the triple MVP winner again ridiculed the report.

"You can believe me, if I ever get out of this one I want no more of marriage," he said.

Campy and Ruthe are well known in Baltimore and Washington. Both lived in the Monumental City for several years prior to their marriage in 1948.

Roy at the time was playing with the Baltimore Elite Giants of the now defunct Negro American League.

Both Campy and Ruthe had been married previously.

The former has two daughters by his first marriage, one of whom, Mrs. Beverly Lofton, named her baby for David McKenzie. Ruthe's son by her earlier union, Ruthe also is the godmother of the child.

ing at Harlem's Lenox Terrace Apartments.

AMONG THE earlier developments in the case were Campanella's default on mortgage payments on the Long Island home, and his request for reduced alimony payments.

The default in mortgage obligations was construed by Ruthe as intentional. She told the court at a Mineola (L.I.) hearing that Roy earned enough to keep up the payments but that he refused to do so because he was determined to force her and the children out of the house.

Mrs. Campanella asserted that her husband's earnings included profits from his liquor business, and salaries as a scout and part-time coach for the Dodgers, plus revenue from a television show.

The place, nevertheless, was sold at auction last November.

SHORTLY thereafter, Mrs. Campanella was granted $200 weekly alimony, which was neither more nor less than that in a previous court order.

The motion to substitute adultery in interpreted as some quarters as a gimmick by Campy to come by an absolute divorce so that he may remarry.

Roy's name has been linked frequently with that of Mrs. Roxie Doles, a Harlem socialite, who is reportedly estranged from her husband, John T. Doles, an attorney.

Campanella vehemently denies the existence of anything "serious" between himself and Mrs. Doles.

He describes his latest action as nothing more than a desire to get rid of all marital ties "once and for all, period."

Clemson ordered to admit Gantt

WASHINGTON

The U. S. Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, sitting in Alexandria, Va., Wednesday ordered the admission of Harvey Gantt to Clemson College for the second semester.

Daniel R. McLeod, South Carolina attorney general, announced he would appeal to the Supreme Court. He indicated he would immediately ask Chief Justice Earl Warren to stay the order, pending a review.

Gantt's attorneys, however, said they will proceed at once to secure the 19-year - old's admission by filing a motion for judgment in accordance with the appellate court's ruling.

REVERSING THE decision handed down by U.S. District Judge C. C. Wyche on Dec. 21, the appellate court held:

1. Gantt, who had been studying architectural engineering at Iowa State University until November on a scholarship supplied by the State of South Carolina, is fully qualified;

2. He should be treated as all other transfer applicants;

3. The District Court should issue an injunction to secure his admission for the second semester; and

4. The injunction should include all other colored students qualified to attend Clemson.

THE STATE'S new chief executive, Gov. Donald S. Russell, said upon learning of the appellate court's ruling that he hopes the Supreme Court will uphold Judge Wyche's ruling.

Judge Wyche held that Gantt failed to complete his application for transfer and failed to prove the college rejected him soley because of race.

The three-judge court sitting in Alexandria, however found that the Charleston youth's qualification for admission is "unquestioned."

He has been attempting to transfer from Iowa State, where he has a good record, to Clemson since Jan., 1961.

STUDENTS AT Clemson learned of the court's decision ordering Gantt admitted to second semester classes, which begin Jan. 28, in a public address announcement by Dean Walter Cox. Bill Hendrix of McBee, S. C., student body president, commented:

"I feel I have the confidence of the student body in saying that the students of Clemson will react with the traditional maturity of Clemson men and there will be no violence connected with the admittance of Harvey Gantt."

During the November trial several student leaders voiced the same opinion, while others appeared willing to allow the courtroom to lend their moral support.

""WITH TODAY'S historic ruling . . ," Mrs. Constance Baker Motley of the NAACP legal staff and chief attorney for Gantt, reminded that "every Southern state has now voluntarily or by court order admitted colored to a formerly all - white state school."

No colored students are attending classes on an integrated basis in Alabama, but she noted that a desegregation decision was won in the Autherine Lucy case in 1956.

Mrs. Motley added that several have filed to enroll at th eUniversity of Alabama and others have inquiredabou enrolling at Auburn University and "we (the NAACP) will support their applications with legal actions."

GANTT'S EFFORTS to enroll at Clemson have followed the same pattern in James H. Meredith's fight for admission to the University of Mississippi.

As in the case of Meredith, rejected by the District Court, his admission was upheld by the appellate court.

Although Meredith expected to be faced with violent opposition, there are indications that Gantt will be met by a "reservoir of good will."

But as Matthew J. Perry of Columbia, S.C., another of Gantt's attorneys, said: "Just how large it (the reservoir) is remains to be seen."

McKinley faculty hits riot report as objectionable

WASHINGTON

The faculty of McKinley High School took sharp issue with "the sweeping condemnation of the D.C. Public Schools" made by the report on the violence at D. C. Stadium and the transmittal letter by the committee chairman.

In a letter to the Washington AFRO-American, the teachers said that they were "appalled" at the insinuations and over generalizations made in the two documents.

The group strongly objected to "the accusation that 'an atmosphere of lawlessness' characterized by violence, assaults (and disrespect for teachers' in the D.C. Public Schools."

The letter stressed the feeling of the teachers that they "do not rely on police to insure . . . an orderly atmosphere of peace and harmony."

It denied "emphatically" that the situation described in the report and accompanying letter existed at McKinley, adding that the faculty at McKinley preferred disciplines to be achieved "through the cooperation of administrators, teachers and students rather than by police enforcement."

The faculty at McKinley called its student body "well, mannered, cooperative, friendly" and said that visitors to the school are "enthusiastic in their praise of the orderliness and courtesy of our student body."

In their letter the faculty made the point that at McKinley "teachers are here to teach" and "students here to learn" and that any student who didn't agree with that policy were not tolerated in the classroom.

In closing the letter, the faculty stressed the fact that they did not follow up on the invitation to speak with the committee or its chairman "because it did not occur to us that the criticism of the committee and of the chairman would be so generalized as to be "unserviceable."

Diggs named to House D.C. unit

By CHUCK STONE

D. C.'s 411,737 colored people went to bed last night with visions of racial equality dancing in their heads after learning that Rep. Charles C. Diggs, Jr. (D-Mich.) had been named to the House District Committee.

Appointment of the 40-year - old Congressman was announced yesterday by the House of Representatives' Democratic leadership.

DIGGS joins Rep. William L. Dawson (D. - Ill.) as a member of the Committee, making it the only committee in the House with more than one colored Congressman on it. (There are five colored Congressmen in the House.)

Rep. CHARLES C. DIGGS JR.

For years, the House District Committee has been regarded as a political graveyard by most Congressmen and they shunned it like a nudist at a clothiers convention.

However, Southerners were usually more amenable to service and they used it as a platform for their racist views. One of these was the recently defeated Georgia representative, James Davis, whose power on the House District Committee earned him the title of "Mayor of Washington."

The present chairman is John S. McMillan of South Carolina who has never been known to take out a membership in the NAACP.

With a handful of articulate liberals, Rep. Dawson fought almost single - handed to resist Southern pressures to make the District a racial whipping - boy because of the large percentage of colored residents.

In addition to Diggs, Rep. Edith Green (D. - Ore.) and Rep. Carlton Sickles (D.-Md.) had sought membership on the District Committee and were backed by the D.C. Democratic Central Committee. However, they were unsuccessful.

that the attacks appear to be intended for all D.C. public schools. Had we anticipated this, we would have spoken sooner in defense of our administrative and our student body."

L.A. physicians donation to Kenya $50,000 in medicine

LOS ANGELES — (ANP) — Approximately $50,000 worth of medicine and hospital supplies were shipped to Kenya's only American trained physician, Dr. Mungai Njoroge of Nairobi, last week.

The drugs were donated by more than 300 Los Angeles area doctors, dentists and pharmacists in Project Handclasp. Supplies include a large quantity of drugs and many microscopes.

Vote registration drive nets 28,000

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—An intensive four-week voter registration campaign by the NAACP has brought the total number of colored voters here to over 28,000, giving this city the largest colored registration in the state. The drive increased the number of voters by 21 per cent, Rutledge Pearson, president of the branch, reported.

Mr. Pearson reported that the branch was able in 1962 to desegregate public facilities in 85 stores.

Capital Heartbeat

The complete politician, JFK

POLITICALLY, President John F. Kennedy is rapidly shaping up as one of the really big pros to live in the White House.

Take the 10-minute maneuver he pulled off last Saturday which reaped him about 10,000 hours of votes.

The President had not responded definitely to the request from Delta Sigma Theta sorority to attend its "at home" Sunday evening, although his office permitted them to list on the invitation that he had been invited.

However, after he had won the Rules Committee fight handily, he was politically secure enough to visit with a colored sorority (and not have to worry about alienating those nasty Southerners), spend 10 minutes speaking and rack up enough votes to last him well into 1968.

POLITICALLY ambitious Jean Noble and politically shrewd Beth Reeves were the big gals in this very successful accomplishment.

• • •

RALPH SHOWALTER has left the D.C. branch of the President's Committee on Juvenile Delinquency. A tragedy and his departure throws that group of adult confusion (controlled by Southern diehards like Ellenger) back just one more step.

AID NEWS - Roger Wilkins back from his three-week tour of Asia with new AID boss, David Bell — Ernest Neal, AID mission director for Sierra Leone in town for re-assignment (that leaves only one colored mission director overseas, Sam Adams.

SERIOUSLY ILL - Atty. Curtis Mitchell, one of our town's most brilliant lawyers (and indeed a fine guy) very ill in Freedmen's Hospital, after having been operated on for a cerebral hemorrhage. Curtis is such a great great guy - - do drop him a card.

• • •

BILL WOODDSON will be in George Washington for a minor operation but expects to be out by Jan. 22nd.

WOOK which was supposed to open its television station in October thinks they've got it made now and the target date is now Feb. 11th. If their programming will be as intellectually insulting and politically vapid for colored people as it is now, it just ought to be a roaring success. We buy this kind of nonsense to help make white people rich and it's why we're so backward today.

Adam Powell not retiring

REP. ADAM POWELL'S decision to retire from Abyssinian Baptist Church as full-time pastor set many racist hearts a fluttering in expectation that he was going to retire from politics.

Nothing is farther from the truth. Adam has no intention of retiring and in fact, may do even greater things politically in the next four years.

The one thing many people don't know about Powell is that he has been extremely loyal to his church. No matter where he has been Saturday evening — or how late he was up, he was up the next Sunday morning preaching at Abyssinian. He has rarely failed to appear at church in New York when he was scheduled to preach. He simply has decided to lighten up on some of his responsibilities, that's all. And he's going to be one of the most important factors in the 1964 Presidential race. Watch and see.

As for his retirement, one can only recall the story about the University of Chicago student who, after listening in anguished silence that Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins had announced his resignation, responded: "How can God retire?"

$1,000 will be the ticket of admission to dine with the President Friday evening prior to the gala.

Dining with him from Washington, D.C. will be Mr. Buford Lawson and a group from Chicago, Dr. T. K. Lawless.

"Heartbeat"? We plan to sneak into the gala!

GOP GOODIES— The Republican Party made tremendously important strides up the ladder of racial equality last week.

Ohio Gov. James Rhodes appointed newspaper publishers, W. O. Walker from Cleveland as Industrial Relations Commission director, and Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton appointed Pittsburgh's William Young as Labor Secretary.

Both were "firsts" for state cabinet posts. While they may not make Barry "That's what I like about the South" Goldwater happy, they're evidence that there are a few GOP wheels around who mean business about this racial equality stuff — and thats more than former Ohio Gov. Mike DiSalle, Pennsylvania Gov. Dave Lawrence did.

Nice going, GOP.

All-Pro tackle's father dies in Charlottesville

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Roosevelt Brown Sr., father of the New York Giants All-Pro tackle, was buried last Wednesday in Lincoln Cemetery.

Funeral services for Mr. Brown, who died at University of Virginia Hospital following an extended illness, were held at Ebenezer Baptist Church. The Rev. E. D. McCreary Sr., pastor, delivered the eulogy.

Survivors are his wife, Mrs. Catherine Brown, two sons, Roosevelt of Teaneck, N. J., the football player and Frank of Newport, R.I.; two daughters, Mrs. Lyria Hallstock and Miss Barbara Brown, Charlottesville;

A foster daughter, Mrs. Mary L. Page, Charlottesville; three sisters, Mesdames Bessie Hall, Mattie Hatten, both of Anderson, S.C., and Bertha Calhoun, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.;

And also three brothers, Frank of Royston, Ga., James of Greenville, S. C., and William of Anderson, and two grandchildren.

Asks probe of frat bias

DENVER — (ANP) — Sen. George Brown called for a full investigation into "complaints" of discrimination in social fraternities and sororities at Colorado State college last week.

Brown a member of the committee, asked CSC officials to "research the problem fully and report to the committee.

His request came during a hearing by the legislature's joint budget committee into the school's 1963-64 budget requests. It was backed up by Republican Sen. Harry Lockhart, acting chairman.

The Denver senator accused the institution of being the only college or university in the state not to have done something about discrimination in fraternities.

COLLEGE OFFICIALS, including President William Ross, denied they had any knowledge of discrimination, but said they would investigate it immediately. Brown said several informal complaints have been made at the State Anti-Discrimination Commission and to him personally by both white and colored students.
