THAT IT has been a success is evidenced in the fact that the project has been adopted and expanded by the city.

Harold S. Callowhill, superintendent, Bureau of Recreation, said the city has officially dubbed the expanded program, "Street Club Worker Project," and will follow the technique used so successfully by Mr. Smith.

It will consist of a senior supervisor, secretary and four workers.

Examinations for the positions are being prepared by the City Civil Service Commission.

They are expected to be ready the latter part of this month, Mr. Callowhill said.

Until the city adopted the project, it was sponsored jointly by the Recreation Department and Welfare Council and financed by grants from the Playground Athletic League Endowment Fund, established by Robert Garrett.

IRONICALLY, AS things developed, Mr. Smith apparently did his job too well.

As of today, his service with the council is terminated.

While using up leave accurred over the past three years when he "was too busy to take a vacation" the social worker will be casting around for job prospects.

He readily admits, however, that he'd like nothing better than to become senior supervisor of the new project. "Oh, yes, I plan to take the competitive examination when the time comes," he said.

Recalling his first attempt to crash the strange world of street gangs, Mr. Smith said his ability to throw a football was the key to his success.

"For several days I had gone to this particular area trying to establish contact with the gang or its leader," he remembered.

"As is their custom, these youngsters regard a strang- er as being either a cop or a freak. They won't talk to you or let you talk to them.

"THIS DAY, however, I was watching a street touch football game. When the ball fell on the sidewalk near where I was standing, I TOSSED IT BACK.

"Say, mister, you throw a pretty good pass," Mr. Smith said one of the youngsters conceded.

"This was my entre," the social worker said.

This exchange broke the air of suspicion and apprehension on the part of the teenagers, Mr. Smith said, and they engaged in a brief sidewalk conversation.

After showing them he was interested by asking about their families, school, and other activities, Mr. Smith said the youngsters invited him back to the neighborhood.

"I went back three or four times and didn't see a single one of them," the one - man reformer said.

"I later found out they saw me every time I went there," he smiled.

FOLLOWING SEVERAL months of frequenting alleys pool halls, and the like, Mr. Smith said he convinced the youngsters to organize.

Mr. Smith said he was convinced the youngsters of his intentions, he said, they disappeared when fire struck the home of one member of the group, killing a baby, according to Mr. Smith.

Going to the aid of the family of nine children and no father, the social worker said he helped the distraught mother make burial arrangements for the child and directed her to other community agencies which eased distress caused by the tragedy.

As an outgrowth of such guidance and counseling to other parents and teenagers in the area, Mr. Smith said he won complete acceptance of the neighborhood gangs.

Stressing the importance of "meeting such youths on their level," the social worker said he rarely dressed up and made himself an integral part of the communities in which he worked.

PLAYING THE role of a Big Brother, Mr. Smith said he has conferred with police, Juvenile Court attendants and Judge Charles E. Moylan in trying to rehabilitate boys who got off on the wrong track or who gave warning they were about to.

Eloquent testimony to the esteem in which the youths hold Mr. Smith was evidenced at closing ceremonies last week.

The boys gave him an expensive watch as a going - away present.

"It was the greatest ego booster I've ever had. The work was hard and steady. Now I'm satisfied it was worthwhile."

Mr. Smith lives at 4109 Barrington Rd. with his wife, formerse Miss Helen Johnson, a medical secretary at Charles St. Hospital and two children, Harry 2nd, and Rohn.

He is a native of Rocky Mount, N. C., and has lived in Baltimore since 1954. Mr. Smith earned his master's degree in Social Science at Howard University in 1960.

fore the official opening of school.

WITH THE help of John Wood, principal, Mrs. Woods was taken to Provident Hospital, six blocks from the school at 1316 Druid Hill Ave.

She never regained conscious. Death was due to a heart attack.

Funeral services will be held Monday noon at Providence Baptist Church, Edmondson and Fremont Aves., with the pastor, the Rev. Marcus G. Wood, officiating.

Mrs. Woods will be buried in the Arbutus family lot. The body is at Holland Funeral Home.

A NATIVE OF Weems, Va., Mrs. Woods was the last of five children born to the late Carrie Blackwell Rainey and Solomon F. Rainey. Her father, until his death in 1934, captained fishing boats. Her mother died in 1923.

The other child, Solomon J. (Bootsie) Rainey Jr., died five years ago.

The Rainey family moved to Baltimore while the children were babies and settled at 1712 McCulloh St., where they spent all their lives.

Daughter, Geneva, always a friendly person, followed her own advice to 'smile and keep your chin up.' She was a neighborhood favorite. Everybody in the Northwest Baltimore area where they lived knew Geneva.

MRS. WOODS attended Douglass High, graduating in 1924; two years later, she finished what is now Coppin State Teachers' College. In 1933, she earned a bachelor's degree at Morgan State College.

She held two master's degrees, one from Columbia University, awarded in 1939, and a second in guidance, which she earned at New York University in 1955.

She also did summer study in guidance at the University of Southern California.

A LOVER OF children, Mrs. Woods was an example of the dedicated teacher who extended herself beyond the classroom.

It was not unusual for her to take her children on trips, invite them to her home for supper or special treats after school hours.

Before she joined the Bristoe faculty, as teacher of related subjects, Mrs. Woods was assigned to the Junior High No. 131, Druid Hill and Biddle.

This is the century - old building heated by pot-bellied stoves. Despite the poor facilities, Mrs. Woods was able to bring beauty to her classroom — colorful exhibits abounded.

This writer took special notice of her ingenuity on a recent school board tour.

MRS. WOODS was active in a number of groups in her church. She was, as a relative said, the kind of person who could be depended on to help 'give a helping hand.'

She was also a member of Womanpower and an ardent Red Cross worker. She belonged to the woman's auxiliary of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity.

She was the first executive secretary of the Md. Colored Teachers' Association equal salary committee.

Her professional affiliations included membership in the Public School Teachers' Association, the Md. State Teachers' Association and the National Educational Association.

IN ADDITION TO her husband, she is supervising specialist in physical education in the schools; two daughters survive.

One: Miss Lenore J. Woods, a junior at the University of Southern California, is a 1963 debutante.

Mrs. Woods will be buried in the exquisite blue chiffon

why the governor had been invited, the station said:

"Governor Wallace, along with other members of the panel, was secured in order to set up a reasonably balanced discussion and to fulfill our responsibilities to fairly present all sides of a controversial issue."

Dorchester County's Senator Frederick C. Malkus will join the Alabama governor.

Expected to take the opposing side on the question of integration will be Dr. Irene Diggs, professor of sociology at Morgan State College, and Stanley Mazor, director of the Human Renewal Project for the city.

Another complaint has arisen because neither the speakers opposing the Wallace - Malkus stand has been in the front line of the civil rights movement locally.

THE NAACP in commentary on the issue, said:

"We of the NAACP have been in the forefront in the fight for constitutional rights, but never have we or will we fight to deny an American citizen, who believes in the constitution, the right to speak his mind.

"The constitution gives him the right and all law - abiding citizens will fight to keep that right alive. Freedom of speech, is, we consider, one of the basic freedoms.

"The honorable Governor from Alabama does not, in our mind, fall in the category of 'law abiding citizens' since he has openly on several occasions, defied the opinions handed down by the Supreme Court.

"Yet, we will still fight to give him his right to speak. Any picketing or demonstrations that result from his speech are purely on the basis of his previous actions against the opinions handed down by the Supreme Court of the land and in open defiance of the President of the United States.

"Let the Governor speak, for as he speaks he will again, if he runs true to form, show his utter contempt for the laws that he swore to uphold."

Says colored struggle must be linked with other peoples

HAVANA, Cuba—Robert Williams at last broke through the American press "blackout" with the publication of the fact that twice this year he requested of Mao Tse Tung, leader of the Chinese Republic to make a statement in support of the colored American's struggle for human dignity.

That statement was made by Mao August 8 at a rally of 10,000 people including African diplomats and delegations.

I interviewed Robert Williams the day after the Cuban and SAmerican press published the request and the text of Mao's statement.

Learned that at the height of the Birmingham crisis, Mr. Williams had made the same request of Nkrumah of Ghana and Ben Bella of Algeria who made their statements of support at the Addis Ababa conference.

THE FUTURE phase of the struggle of colored American, as Mr. Williams sees it, will need the participation of the colored people themselves; that they must start to link their struggle with the peoples of Latin America, Africa and Asia.

Colored Americans must begin to see the falsity of their struggle as purely internal, he pointed out. He agreed with an important part of Mao's statements in which Mao emphasized that the racists oppressors of colored people are in the minority, constituting 10 per cent of the population of the world, while colored people and their supporters over the world make up 90 per cent.

COLORED PEOPLE can only be a minority if they allow the anti-colored power groups to make them and the world believe that the struggle is an internal problem.

The colored man needs to present his case to the whole world to make his oppresion known and to correct the false picture of the black man socially and intellectually backward, as the colored people as being successfully integrated into the American society.

The American press and the government's psychological Welfare Unit struggle for the minds of men over the world and the black people must enter the struggle on the same psychological basis.

The counter attack to be expected as the colored people take their struggle into the sophisticated arena of psychological warfare will be the epithet of communism to frighten and confuse the black masses and intimidate the black bourgeoisie.

IT IS important to consider, Robert Williams believes, that the American power structure ends up by giving communism all the credit for being in the forefront of all these great rising human aspirations and influencing the downtrodden to feel that there must be something powerful and mighty good about it.

From Havana, Cuba, Robert Williams operates "Radio Free Dixie," an hour long program to meet the needs for communication among colored people and to bring the militant message to the black people. This is at impossible task for many other news media under the threat of loss of advertising support and similar economic pressures.

In the planning stage, this is an information center to send out to the international press services news of the racial struggle in the United States.

All patrolmen assigned to a radio car, even if he is not the operator of the vehicle, must have a special Police Department license, with the exception of Western District patrolmen.

In this district an officer without a license is occasionally assigned to a car with an officer who has a license.

CENTRAL DISTRICT, commanded by Captain George H. Deuchler, has two of whom are used in radio cars.

In the Northwestern District, Captain Edwin E. Tayler, commander, there are 7 colored officers, and three are being used.

The Eastern District, according to its commander, Captain W. Robert Franck, has 19 colored officers, five of whom are being used.

Two out of three colored officers in the Southwestern District are vehicle operators, said Captain James F. Cox, district commander.

There are no colored qualified drivers in the Northeastern District, according to Captain Joseph A. Mahrer. There are three colored patrolmen assigned to this district.

In the Northern District two out of ten colored patrolmen are being utilized. This district is captained by Edward A. Mooney.

Southwestern District has 13 colored officers, four of them are being utilized in radio cars. Captain Frederick T. Dunn is the commander.

The Southern District, commanded by Captain Elmer Z. Bowen, has 10 colored officers, three are driver-city insurance through Mr. Pressman's office which cost $327,816 a year.

At Riggs Warfield Roloson, there have been colored applicants for clerical work.

R. L. Fisher, personnel director, said none has met their qualifications.

Riggs Warfield Roloson handles city policies which cost taxpayers $33,989 a year.

Pat O'Malley and Standard Accident Insurance handle together, under jurisdiction of the comptroller's office, policies which cost taxpayers $16,224 a year.

Neither has a desegregated office staff.

UNDER PRESSURE from the Interdenominational Ministers Alliance, contractors doing work for the city have set up a policy of desegregation.

The state has such a law covering contractors.

Insurance companies driving benefits through contracts with the city have been likened by interested observers to contractors handling city construction jobs.

Here, too, Pressman is warning to the segregated insurance firms seeking city business.

Annapolis DOINGS

By ELOISE RICHARDSON

The Anne Arundel County school enrollment has increased by 3,750 pupils and students to a total of 51,200. This means more teachers, more classrooms, with at least 96 in makeshift quarters, and more school buses and expanded experimental instructional programs.

Wherein there were only 2,010 educators in the school system before, this year the total is brought up to 2,160. However, the good news is that these will be only one school on double shift.

There are three new 24-room elementary schools for the Northern area of the county and three more will be ready by January, 1964. Another is expected to be ready for occupancy by Thanksgiving, according to Dr. David S. Jenkins, county school superintendent.

The Board of Education's policy on desegregation will apply to the last two grades in the county system, this fall, within the step-by-step plan, which has been in effect for about six years.

Team teaching, which involves all teachers and gives students the benefit of many experts, is being expanded and experiments in individualized reading, ungraded classrooms and in new programs in mathematics and science, will also be developed.

GRADUATES from Anne Arundel County high schools have been accepted by 165 colleges in 35 different states including the District of Columbia and the state of Hawaii.

Twenty-three colleges in Maryland have enrolled Anne Arundel County graduates. These include the local junior college, state colleges, private colleges, the U.S. Naval Academy and Johns Hopkins University.

Other county include six colleges in Michigan, five in Massachusetts, five in West irginia, four in Connecticut and Florida, three in South Carolina, three in Georgia, also Delaware, Tennessee, Rhode Island, Indiana, New Jersey, Oregon, Washington, Utah, California and New Hampshire.

A highlight social affair of the Parole area in Oaklawn Ave., was the lovely garden-patio-dinner party given on Saturday evening.

The very gracious hosts, Mrs. Naomi Randall and Mr. William (Bill) Matthews honored her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson (Elizabeth) of Baltimore.

Guests wandered from the flower-bordered garden which was dotted here and there with gaily-lit Japanese lanterns, to the spacious patio, which is built around a sprawling mimosa tree.

Along with the serving of cocktails were appetizers of smoked oysters, deviled eggs, Mexican style, and a clam dip.

THE delicious dinner menu consisted of Imperial crabs, corn-on-the-c o b, country-cured ham, French-fried shrimps, mixed salad and hot rolls.

Among other out-of-town guests, who "twisted" into the wee hours of the morning after the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Julius Randall, Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Brown, all of Washington, D.C., and Mr. and Mrs. William Gray of Baltimore.

Local guests were Messrs. and Mesdames Joseph Spriggs, Harrison Spriggs, Felix Ferguson, Walter Brown, James Turner, Robert Randall and Lawrence Ballard, Mrs. Harriet Gaud and Miss Lilyan Burrell.

Angela Bryant, attractive Bates High School coed, spent the summer in Providence, R.I. with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Nowling (Elizabeth). Angela will make her debut in Washington this fall at the Maryland Debutante Ball and will finish Bates in June.

Mrs. Francis Diggs in Bestgate Road had as a recent house guests, her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Norwood and children and Mrs. Emma Garner, all of Darlington, S.C. Mrs. Garner and the Norwoods are teachers in the public school of South Carolina.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES Queen of Arundel-on-the-Bay attended the funeral of Mrs. Minnie Worrells Coley in Goldsboro, N.C. last week. Mrs. Queen is on the faculty of the Parole School.

Mrs. Coley was the mother of Mrs. Beulah Diggs of the Bates High staff and Mrs. Ethel Thompson on the faculty of the Parole School.

About 40 telegrams and numerous cards were received from Annapolis and the area from friends. Mrs. Coley had spent her summers here for a great number of years and was loved by many of the people in Annapolis, and especially by those in church circles.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Baden (Mary and Tommy) just returned from Wilmington, Del. and Atlantic City, cation with relatives and friends.

Mrs. Blanche McRae, popular school marm of Baltimore and a lovely hostess, entertained friends at an enjoyable cook-out at her summer cottage on the Magothy last Sunday.

AFTER THE serving of cocktails, guests were served very delicious barbecued chicken and spareribs, corn-on-the-cob, a mixed green salad and watermelon.

Those who spent a most relaxing afternoon and evening were Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Sherrard, Mrs. Virginia Gunn, Mrs. Bernard Harris Sr., Mrs. Gertrude Urquhart, Mr. Guy Bailey and Mrs. A. Jack Thomas, all of Baltimore and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Richardson of Annapolis.

The Sherrards, Camilla and Clifton, have just returned from South America, where they spent time in Rio De Janerio, Brazalia, the new capital, Bahia and Recelpe. Enroute home they visited in Caracas, Venezuela, Camilla is a teacher in the Baltimore School system and Clift is a store clerk with the Department of Education.

COURTESY CALL—Harold J. Jennifer Jr., new assistant director of Baltimore's Civic Center, called on Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin Wednesday morning, just before starting his first day on the job. With him were Paul Weiss, executive secretary of the Civic Commission, and Douglas S. Tawney (partly behind Mayor McKeldin), executive director of the Center. Mr. Jennifer is second in command under Mr. Tawney.

Police seek man, 31, in murder case

Police are seeking a 31-year-old man in connection with the slaying last Saturday of Nathaniel B. Middleton, 22, of the 700 block W. North Ave.

According to police Mr. Middleton was stabbed with a three-inch pen knife, during an argument with an intruder who had forced his way into his home at 4 a.m.

He was taken to Maryland General Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival at 5:30 a.m.

Mrs. Mary B. Wells, 29, who occupied a second floor apartment in the same house, said that she had heard a noise at her front door, and that when she opened it Mr. Middleton was leaning against the side holding his chest and breathing heavily.

"Then he fell to the floor, and looked as if he were unconscious. I dragged him into my apartment and called the police," she said.

Young mother dies; step-father charged

When Mrs. Josephine Maddox, 38, died Wednesday morning, after being on the critical list for a week, her 66-year-old stepfather was charged with murder.

Mrs. Maddox, according to police was shot twice in the left chest and once in the hip, last Tuesday because of a disagreement over a beating she was giving her four-year-old child.

Police said that before Mrs. Maddox's death, she accused her step-father, Murrill McLain, of shooting her.

Mrs. Maddox was taken to University Hospital where she was admitted in critical condition.

Several hours after the shooting, McLain surrendered to police. He was charged last Wednesday morning in Western District with assault by shooting with intent to kill, and was released on bail of $2,500.

He surrendered again to police Wednesday morning when he learned of his stepdaughter's death. He is being held without bail pending a preliminary hearing in the Central District Homicide Court.

Liberty Heights apartments okeyed

The planned construction of a 14-unit, three-story apartment house at 3701 Liberty Heights Ave. was approved Tuesday by the Board of Municipal and Zoning Appeals.

The developers had requested to be allowed to construct 18 apartments there.

The board rejected another appeal to allow the operation of a woodworking and motor repair shop in the rear of 1805 W. Baltimore St.

Among the cases scheduled to be heard the coming Tuesday, beginning at 1 p.m. in Room 231 City Hall, is a request to allow a junk yard operation at 2367-69 Frederick Ave.

White House has no comment on DuBois

A White House spokesman refused to confirm or deny that President Kennedy failed to send condolences to the widow of Dr. W.E.B. DuBois, world renowned scholar, who died in Accra, Ghana.

Reportedly, the President was the only head of state who did not officially note the death of brillian author who was American born but renounced his citizenship to become a citizen of Ghana.

Dr. DuBois was given a state funeral at Christiansborg Castle in Accra.
