BALTIMORE AFTER DARK
On the TOWN
with the Pub Crawler

The happiest man along the Avenue this week is Jimmy Saunders, and there's fairly good reason.

Jimmy, as you know is the only franchised dealer in this area authorized to distribute the latest in electronic fire detection equipment.

You may recall he was picked as an "AFRO Young Man On the Move" a couple of months back.

Recently he installed a "smoke detection" unit in the Mondebello Drive home of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Johnson, both retired school son, both retired school principals.

As the fire detector has been preaching for lo these many months there is no foolproof method of preventing detection equipment. fires-regardless of the condition of the house or the class of the neighborhood.

"In this electronic age, every appliance is a potential fire hazard. Early detection is the surest way to cope with them," he often says.

AND EARLY" detection is exactly what saved the fashionable home of the Johnsons Wednesday.

Mr. Johnson was outside when something went wrong with a pot on the stove and flames ignited curtains.

However as smoke spiraled up the staircase past the sensitive eye of the detector, an alarm spread the message of pending disaster. Mr. Johnson and neighbors were able to extinguish the flame without calling the Fire Department and before it wreaked havoc on the house.

Like the Johnsons, Jimmy is beaming and who can blame them.

COME TUESDAY, too, Jimmy and Mrs. Saunders, along with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Robinson, Dallas Smith, George Williams, James Tyical outlet, wing to Miami, division managers of the local outlet, wings to Miami, Fla., for a five-day work and fun session at the Fountainbleu.

Jimmy Brown fans should pile into the Civic Center Sunday at 8:30 p.m. because thats' where the man with the wailing voice holds forth.

DON'T FORGET to push CORE Nights staged by Al Quille at the Casino. The experiment was so warmly accepted, that Al has expanded the project to include a night for the altimore Chapter. To our way of thinking this is one of the most worthy undertakings a club operator has tried for quite a spell.

Douglass needs ground, aerial help to improve

Douglass High School coach Roy Cragway is convinced that running help for Frank Barnett and a pair of capable receivers are essential to his Ducks if they are to improve on their 1962 Maryland Scholastic Association football record.

The Douglass eleven won only one of seven games last year, dropping five and tying the other.

Barnett, the MSA dash champion, shared the running chores last year with Bill Seaton and Jess Moore. However, Seaton and Moore are no longer around.

SPEED IS to be found in halfbacks Ron Pack and Harold Johnson, and fullback Mel Simms exhibits some power potential.

And Cragway gets some cheer from the arrival of Bernie Thompson and Xavier Quarles from the Junior Varsity squad. Both are highly promising pashers though lacking in varsity experience.

It is the Douglass mentor's hope to capitalize on the passing to Jerry Robinson and Vern Haskins with Barnett's running to keep the opposing defense "honest," for an improved campaign. Both Robinson and Haskins are 6-3 and possess good hands, as evidenced by their performance a year ago in a losing Duck cause.

THE LINE figures to pose some problems for Cragway and assistant coach Mel Cade, too. Their 1962 forwards have departed and a thorough rebuilding job is in order.

Center Hal Brown and guard Carl Davis thus far appear to be the hub of the 1963 line.

Vying for jobs flanking this pair are guards Nelson Cooper, Roscoe Thompson, Mel Simpkins and Harold Streat; tackles Al Jeffers, Wellington Rose, George Lee, Vernon Taylor and Gary Boston; Ends Haskins, Robinson, Jim Moore, Byron Thomas, Don Nelson and Charles Williams.

SEEKING THE quarterback call are Thompson, Quarles, Tom Gaithers, James Williams and Samuel Johnson.

Halfback possibilities are, in addition to Barnett, Pack and Johnson, Dave Vines, Henry Fuller and Earl Parker.

And backing up Simms' bid for the fullback assignment are Mike Jones, Robert Hayden and Michael Reed.
