this vital matter — ought to come out and say so forceably.

It's ridiculous to have desirable housing available closed to colored in some city areas — and colored families crowded together in others.

It's just as ridiculous as having schools with available space in some areas — and over-crowded schools in others.

Housing should be available to persons solely on the on the basis of their ability to pay.

City Councilmen and others who argue otherwise are making themselves look extremely silly.

AFRO, Greyhound launch contest for 'Mother of year'

The Baltimore AFRO-AMERICAN and The Greyhound Corporation have completed arrangements for a "Woman of the Year" contest to select the woman in the Baltimore area who has made the most outstanding contributions in community leadership.

Joe Black, special marketing representing for Greyhound and a nationally- known leader in community programs, will preside at an awards luncheon here on Oct. 19, when the winner will be presented with a trophy.

The two "Court of Honor" attendants, the women ranking next highest in the final balloting, also will be honored on this occasion, receiving runner-up trophies.

Beginning today, and in subsequent issues of the AFRO readers will find detailed instructions for voting in the contest and an entry blank to be submitted on behalf of their particular candidate.

Black, former Major League pitching star with the Brooklyn Dodgers, Cincinnati Red and Washington Senators, will be in Baltimore on Sept. 21 to work with the Afro-American on final phases of the contest.

In working out arrangements for joint sponsorship of the contest by the Afro-American and Greyhound, Black told the AFRO-AMERICAN he felt the balloting would have some important side benefits.

"This is not only a contest to select the Woman of the Year in the Baltimore area, it also becomes an activity that will serve to focus attention on the achievements of many others who have made outstanding contributions in their paricular line of endeavor," Black said.

The AFRO-AMERICAN will announce shortly, a blue-ribbon committee of judges who will screen the various candidates and announce the ultimate winner of the three top awards.

In selecting candidates for this top award, the Afro-American urges readers to weigh their qualifications objectively, bearing in mind that the winner should be a leader with accomplishments in some important phase of community activity.

Women leaders in the fields of education, politics, religion, youth work, crime prevention, and combatting juvenile delinquency should receive consideration.

Readers are urged to vote early and frequently in the contest.

The first entry blank for the balloting is printed on this page.

Space is provided to explain why this candidate was nominated and if necessary to elaborate readers may attach the information on a separate sheet of paper.

How To Enter Contest

- Fill out entry blank, explaining why your choice should be named Woman of the Year.
- Enclose the candidate's name and business or house address.
- The contest is limited to women residing in the Baltimore area.
- Mail your entry to Woman of the Year, Afro-American, 628 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore 1, Md.
- All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight Oct. 12, 1963.
- Enter as often as you like. Remember that each entry must be on an entry blank from the Afro-American or a reasonably exact facimile.
- The winner will be selected by qualified judges and be notified by Oct. 19, 1963.
- The winner will be guest of honor at the Woman of the Year Luncheon scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 19, 1963, at which time she will receive an award.
- Other finalists will also be invited to attend this luncheon. The host for the luncheon will be Joe Black special marketing representative of the Greyhound Corporation, co-sponsor of the award.

HST says intermarriage violates tenets of Bible

NEW YORK — Former President Harry Truman, regarded by many as an advocate of civil rights, Wednesday drew the color line at intermarriage.

"Would you want your daughter to marry a Negro?" asked Truman when a reporter inquired if the former President thought racial intermarriage would become widespread in the United States.

THE MAN FROM Missouri said he felt interracial marriage violated tenets of the Bible and added, "I don't believe in it."

Replying to Truman's question about marriage, a reporter said he would want his daughter to marry the man she loved.

"You haven't answered my question," said Truman. "She won't love someone who isn't her color. You'll edit the man she goes out with. I did, and mine married the right man."

THIS ISN'T the first time the former chief executive has expressed his feelings in matters relating to civil rights. Regarding the FEPC, he was staunchly against it. He declared at one time if anyone ever tried to tell him how to run his business, he'd kick him out of the place.

When Gosden and Correll were on a widely publicized tour seeking a "Kingfish" for their unlamented "Amos and Andy" TV show, they called on Mr. Truman then in the White House.

"Try Tuskegee," he reportedly advised him, "you'll find a lot of them there."

Miss Cooper bride of Philip M. Lee

Miss Jacqueline Agnes Warfield Cooper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Cooper, and Philip Martin Lee were married in St. Peter Claver Catholic Church, Saturday morning at ten.

The bridgroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lee.

The Rev. John Tyne SSJ officiated at the double-ring ceremony, and the program of nuptial music was provided by Paul Neal, organist, who also sang.

THE BRIDE, given in marriage by her brother, James E. Brown, was attended by Mrs. Barbara Flanders as matron of honor.

Her wedding gown was of white petit-sorie with Chantilly lace, made with fitted bodice and "leg-of-mutton" sleeves. Her bouffant veil held by a head-piece which featured a center bow, and she carried varied white flowers with satin ribbons.

MRS. FLANDERS wore gold petit sole, street-length, and carried green pompons with yellow streamers. Accessories matched.

Bridesmaids wore mint green frocks, identical to that of the honor attendant, and carried bouquets of yellow pompons. They were Misses Olivia Copeland, Wendy Parker, Gloria Lewis, Helen Neal and Tammara Barbour.

Olivia Brown, flower girl, wore white lace on organza, a chapel veil head piece and carried a basket of assorted flowr petals. Dwayne Dorsey was ring bearer.

JOHN AVON LEE was best man. Ushers were Robbert Jones, Earl Crawley, Charles Lee of New York City, and Vernon Thornton.

The bride is a former member of Tots and Teens, was junior counselor for the YWCA and assistant advisor for St. Peter Claver CYO.

Mr. Lee is lay instructor for the Confraternity of Christine Doctrine and president of the St. Martin's Guild.

A RECEPTION was held at the home of Mrs. Joseph Snowden, 3218 Massachusetts Avenue.

Guests were introduced to the receiving line by Mrs Florine Washington. In the line were Mrs. Pearl Young, aunt of the bridegroom; James R. Brown, brother of the bride; and the members of the wedding party.
