A survey of the fall season's television programming discloses that viewers will be seeing more racial integration.

Mindful of the continuing pressures from our group, producers appear to be planning greater employment of colored people, both in the speaking roles and atmosphere players. Some shows are being written around the race issue also.

A recently filmed "Ben Casey" segment concerns a colored baseball star, played by Sammy Davis Jr., who requires an operation to save his sight.

A CBS series, "Great Adventure," has filmed a drama entitled "Go Down Moses." It concerns the underground railroad of pre-Civil War days and stars Ethel Waters, Ruby Dee and Brock Peters.

Several other series have cast colored people in continuing roles. For instance, a hospital show, "Breaking Point," will feature a dietitian played by Virginal Capers. Also "Mr. Novak," concerning life in a big city high school, will have Vince Howard as a history teacher. Bob Williams will be a factory cut-up in "The New Phil Silvers Show."

IT SEEMS one solution to the high school drop-outs problem is about to get underway, providing the opportunity to solve this problem if accepted.

The National School of Home Study, which has been chartered by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York, is offering a home study course. This course may be completed as quickly as spare time permits, entitling students to a special high school diploma.

The special diploma is is called a High School Equivalency Diploma and it receives general acceptance by colleges, universities and other accrediting agencies as a local High School Diploma.

It is also accepted in business and by Civil Service for employment purposes, and helps "drop-outs" to pass the State Equivalent Diploma exams.

An informative Home Study High School booklet is being offered free of charge to serious-minded persons who need a High School Diploma. Requests should be made to the National School of Home Study, Dept. B.S.P. 31, 3511 Kent St., Kensington.

BOY SCOUT TROOP NO. 515 with William E. Brooks as scoutmaster, proudly presents a display of work in art and crafts at the GAC Finance Corporation on West Street. The work being shown is part of the activity program the group has conducted this year.

The group is sponsored by the Frontiers International, Francis S. Noel, president. The display represents the keen interest that the youngsters have shown in using some of their recreation time for projects.

Family parties are always enjoyable because the "family has fun together," Mrs. Dorene Russell in Capitol Hills Manor entertained relatives on Labor Day. They were Mr. and Mrs. Willis Johnson and daughter, Greer, Mr. and Mrs. James Brashears, Misses Jan and Donna Cutler and Pamela Baden, Messrs. Thomas R. Baden, Sr., Everett Whitehead and Dexter Cutler.

MRS. GEMIMA KIDD honored her family at a barbecue luncheon on her back lawn on Labor Day. Guests included Mesdames Teresa Williams, Mary Chew, Dorothy Day, Annabel Johnson, Hattie Holand and Daisy Moulden. Also, Ike Johnson Jr.

Plans are underway for a testimonial banquet to be given in honor of the Rev. Leroy Bowman, pasor of the first Baptist Church. The occasion will mark the 21st anniversary of his pastorate. For additional information persons may contact Charles Walker, Arthur Scott, Floyd Bundy, Oscar Kidd and Dr. Samuel Callahan.

Mrs. Teresa Williams recently returned home after visiting in Pittsburgh with relatives.

Mrs. Mary Chew and family, Mrs. Phyllis Brooks and son, Michael, spent the Labor Day holidays in Atlantic City. They travelled on the excursion with the Rose Club.

Mrs. Naomi Randall hosted the meeting of the Non Se Conda Club recently.

Those in attendance were Miss Louise Diggs, vice-president; Miss Dorothy Jones, secretary; Mrs. Bertina Larkins, chaplain; Mrs. Gemima Kidd, business manager; Mrs. Sarah Hutton, treasurer; Mesdames Martha Wallace, Marion Parker and Alethia Parker.

TRUSTEE DAY was observed at Mt. Moriah AME Church on Sunday. N. Jerome Edwards was the speaker and the senior choir sang.

Annapolitans are welcoming Mrs. Elizabeth Diggs back to the city after a number of years. Mrs. Diggs, who was formerly Elizabeth Jones of this city, is the widow of the late Dr. Paul A. Diggs, who was dean of men at Bethune - Cookman College in Daytona Beach, Fla. Mrs. Diggs was a counselor for freshman girls.

It is a real pleasure to hear her singing with the choir of Asbury Methodist Church again. At one time, she was a popular soloist in the city before her marriage.

PTA council backs budget

Proposed Hanlon Park center to be shifted

Residents in the Hanlon Park area have won their fight to block the proposed erection of a recreation center in the park.

The Board of Recreation and Parks voted Tuesday to use the $100,000 allocated for the center to build one instead at Mt. Olivet and Phelps Lanes.

J. Alvin Jones, board member, stated that residents of the Hanlon Park area objected to the proposed center because there was already one in the sector sufficient for such needs.

On the other hand, Harold S. Callowhill, dirctor, Bureau of Recreation, told the board the residents fo the Mt. Olivet — Phelps Lanes sector were anxious for a recreation center.

The new building will be called the Hilton Recreation Center.

GIANTS GET WILLIES — Oft-repeated wheeze about Willie Mays be-Giants, was proved last week when star centerfielder was hitting the blood of the San Francisco spell during ball game and had to retire. Attending Willie (24) are Cubs catcher Dick Bertrell (6), coach Whitey Lockman (left) and trainer Frank Bowman. Since Mays departed, Giants fell far off pace of league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

Quarterback shift may help solve Carver woes

QUARTERBACK SHIFT-Ms Faced with a massive rebuilding job, coach Charley Robinson is resorting to the dangerous experiment of shifting an established quarterback out of position as a first step toward respectability in the upcoming schoolboy grid race.

When Robinson surveyed his Carver Vocational High School eleven early last week, he discovered that he had only three players back from the 1962 eleven that finished third in the Maryland Scholastic Association's B Division last year.

* * *

IN HIS initial move to offset some of the glaring inexperience, the Cub mentor tapped his holdover quarterback, Ron Epps, to halfback. Epps, a sprinter of some repute, figures to give some measure of speed and experience to the Carver running game.

Veldon Parham, upped from his understudy role to Epps, does a good job of passing. Epps also may be counted upon to throw on option plays.

But the next problem is to find someone to catch the passes. Graduation cut a wide swath through the ranks of Cub flankers last year, so the inevitable search is now on for replacements in that area.

* * *

IF NUMBERS can encourage Robinson and his assistant, Don Coleman, they have it in prospective ends and backs. But both are well aware of the big jump from junior varsity ball to varsity play in the MSA, even though the Cubs won the league's JV crown in 1962.

Ends Reggie Bolling, Charles Howell, Arnold Adams, William James Claude Harper, Dennis Skipper, and Reginald Scriber join with 12 halfback hopes as potential receivers.

Outdoor Tips

TEACH COLD DOG NEW TRICKS

It's going to be cold this winter and your dog will be the first to agree.

Why not fix a small space in his house where you can put a lantern with no danger of dog hitting it and starting fire.

Lantern's heat will be mighty welcome when the arctic blasts blow.

FOGGY FROGS

A little green frog is one of the finest fall baits a man could want to feed to a big old hungry bass or northern or even a mossy-back brown trout.

BUT getting one of the little squirmers into its harness is such hard work. Many fishermen forget it and use minnows.

Try this: Hold the frog on its belly. This will temporarily put it to sleep while you slip it into its rig.

SPARE FIRING PIN

Handy types (who know how to install one) can carry a spare firing pin by boring a hole in gun's stock and slipping in.

Butt plate holds the spare pin in place.

POCKET MINNOW BAG

Here's a way you can make a small minnow bucket that will fit in odd places: Fit a plastic bag inside a lady's nylon stocking.

Strong nylon mesh holds the plastic securely and the plastic holds the water. You supply fish.

MEDICINE FOR MUSKIES

Often fall fish smack lures with a savage foretaste of the long hunger that lies ahead.

But muskies and pike can still exercise your temper with their characteristic trick of following a lure only to turn away at the last minute.

Here's a way to stop 'em Get alive sucker and rig it in harness and mount it under a bobber.

Now cast the whole rig out about half as far as your usual artificial casts go. And just let it stay there.

Fact is, the big pike follow in the plug or spoon, turn away and find themselves eyeball to eyeball with the real thing.

Can they resist? Sure, they can.

But sometimes they can't. And that's how trophies are born.

BEAUTIFUL BOW STRING

A good fly line dressing rubbed on your bow string will keep it waterproof, pliable, shining and new.

ICE SAW

A chain saw can double as an ice saw.

Powerful blade slices through the thickest flows with ease, make hole cutting tasks a breeze; that is.

SILENT SQUIRRELS

Old trick for squirrels is to rub two pebbles or nuts or marbles or shell hulls, etc. together to make a sound like a bushytail chattering.

Another is to carry a silent dog whistle.

A noiseless blast while a squirrel is running away will often nail him in his tracks wondering what that crazy new sound was.

Broncos home for ACFL tilt with Falcons

The Baltimore Broncos return to Baltimore's Westport Stadium tomorrow (Saturday night to host the Utica (N.Y.) Falcons for their second home game of the Atlantic Coast Football League season. Kick-off will be at 8:15 p.m.

The visitors, coached by former Syracuse University All-American, Fred Mautino, competed in the league's first season last year, but the Baltimore entry is new to ACFL competition this year.

* * *

THE TWO teams exchanged opponents in the first two weeks of the season. Both clubs lost to the New York Crusaders, one of the league powerhouses, while the Falcons took a close decision from the Pittsburgh Ironmen and the Broncos dropped their first road game to the same club.

Last week Baltimore met the Capitols at Harrisburg, while the Falcons were at home to the Ansonia (Conn.) Black Knights.

* * *

THE BRANCOS have installed a system of multiple defenses to strengthen this phase of play and compensate for their lack of size.

Bucky Montgomery, offensive end and flanker back recently cut by the Washington Redskins, has joined the squad as a defensive halfback to bolster a secondary weakened by the injury to regular Buzz Durham, sidelined for the season with a broken foot.

On offense Coach Joe Bartlinski's forces are concentrating on a wide-open attack to take advantage of an abundance of fine receivers and outside runners.

* * *

THE ATTACK is built around the passing of Quarterback Pete Pompey, ex Morgan State star; the running of Ernie Veltan, recently of the New York Jets of the AFL, and Ray Bartels, ex-Penn-Md. League scoring champ, and the pass-receiving of Ed Buettner, who caught 87 passes for 18 TD's in 1962, and Hezekiah Braxton, ex-Baltimore Colt and San Diego Charger flanker back.

The defense is led by former Colt halfback Jesse Thomas.

Thinness of Poet could prove undoing

With only 36 candidates at hand, Dunbar coach Sugar Cain has threatened to take the field for Maryland Scholastic Association football games this year with prayer-book in his bosom.

Cain will be beseeching the powers that be to spare his Poet squad from injury. Hurts to any key men may well prove the undoing of Dunbar as she aims to improve on her 3-5 record in last year's MSA Division A campaign.

* * *

SEVEN OF last year's team are back, but lack of size even among them may also be a deterrent.

Willie White, himself a mere 5-6, will be entrusted with running the team. He showed sufficient savvy while serving in a reserve role last year, but his throwing may suffer from the need of getting the ball away before he is blinded by big opposing rushers.

* * *

WITH LUCIUS JACKSON at 194 and Felix Pride at 162, the bulwarks of the line, Cain knows he must rely on speed to exert any pressure whatsoever on his opponents.

He has that in halfbacks Curtis Miles and Arthur Davis, who have been joined by Ralph Curry, top Jayvee carrier of 1962. But little can be expected of them unless they get the necessary blocking.

In the air, White's targets will be a fairly capable pair—big Jim Files and Ed Hooper—but there again Dunbar followers will have to yearn for protection from injury.

After the starting eleven, the Poets are not likely to frighten anyone—LACY.
