Panel of civic leaders named as "Woman of the Year" judges

Five of Baltimore's top feminine executives have accepted assignments to serve as judges for the "Woman of the Year" contest now being sponsored for readers of this newspaper by The Greyhound Corporation and The Baltimore AFRO-AMERICAN.

Mrs. Lula Patterson, women's editor of the AFRO AMERICAN, today announced the names of the judges who will supervise the selection of the winner of the "Woman of the Year" award and her two "Court of Honor" attendants.

The theree honorees will be feted at a luncheon to be held on Saturday, Oct 19 at which Joe Black, special marketing representative for Greyhound and former Major League pitcher, will be toastmaster. Black is well known to Baltimore residents as a graduate of Morgan State where he was also a renowned athlete.

• • •

THE WOMEN who will serve as judges and their affiliations.

● Mrs. John Rich, executive secretary of Women Power.

● Mrs. Raymond Hunt, executive director of the Baltimore Dental Authority.

● Mrs. Lena K. Lee, attorney, and representative of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Baltimore.

● Mrs. Kelly L. Jackson, representative of Baltimore Church Women.

● Mrs. Alfred T. Dixon, national officer of ISIS.

ALL READERS of the AFRO - AMERICAN age are being urged to clip the entry blank carried on the society page of this issue and to cast a ballot for the candidate of their choice; the woman they feel has made the outstanding contribution to Baltimore's progress during the past year through participation and leadership in community activities.

Black, making advance arrangements for the gala affair at which the winning woman and the two runners up will be presented with engraved Revere silver bowls, came to Baltimore on Sept. 21, during which time, he also escorted a group of youngsters to the game between the Orioles and Senators.

Ballots will appear in each issue of the AFRO - AMERICAN until Oct. 5 and the final deadline for consideration is midnight, Oct. 9. All ballots presented personally or postmarked before that time will be considered. Decision of the judges on the winner and the runners-up will be final.

Readers may vote as many times as they choose and an entry blank is not necessary as reasonable facsimiles of the ballot are acceptable. Each blank should consider the woman's qualifications for being entered along with her address.

The contest is limited to women living in the Baltimore area.

IN CONCERT FOR ZION BAPTIST CHURCH — Miss Adele Addison noted concert soprano will sing at the Constitution Hall Sun., Oct. 13 at 3 p.m. The concert is co-sponsored by the Zion Baptist Church, the Friday Morning Music Club and the Haves Concert Bureau. Mrs. Richard Atkinson is the Zion Baptist chairman. Rev. Carlton Veazey is minister.

Mitch Miller and his "Sing Along Gang, over fifty-strong will appear here in person for one performance only at the Civic Center on Monday.

In addition to the bearded maestro and his celebrated choristers, the program will star Leslie Uggams, popular young vocalist on Miller's TV offering and specially show, soloists Bob McGrath, Mary Lou Ryhal, Jack Brown, Adrian Revere, Hubie Hendrie, Keith Booth, Phil Olson, Bill Ventura, Paul Friesen, Stan Carlson and Jess Randolph.

The evening's program will consist of the sort of musical fun that has made TV's "Sing Along With Mitch" one of the top-rated programs in the nation.

• • •

STARRED IN the presentation however, is Miss Uggams, the twenty-year old songstress who has become a regular fixture of the "Sing Along" program.

Leslie who has emerged as an immensely popular entertainer in her own right (.witness her recent starring engagement at the Flamingo, in Las Vegas and posh supper clubs across the country), has been a television star for the past thirteen years, and is currently one of the most promising young stars in the was seen on Broadway last recording field as well.

Aide at Hampton in lecture series

VALENCIA, Spain — Dr. Hugh M. Gloster, chairman of the Communications Center and Director of the Summer Session at Hampton Institute, is now serving under State Department auspices as a lecturer in American literature at an English seminar conducted in Cracow, Poland. This seminar was attended by 160 Polish teachers and students specializing in English.

After completing his work at Cracow, Dr. Goster proceeded to Lublin, Poland, where he gave a series of lectures on American writers at the only Catholic university in the Communist world.

HASSLE OVER CIVIL DEFENSE

By MAX JOHNSON

No city agency here in recent years has stirred controversy such as that now swirling around Baltimore's Civil Defense Organization.

Some city officials and the public look with favor on the organization, as a necessary protection in the event of a nuclear attack against this country.

Some other city officials and the public charge it's a wasteful, inefficiently operated arm of the municipality and ought to be abolished immediately.

They charge further the Civil Defense program is no protection for the people of Baltimore or any other city struck by a nuclear bomb.

• • •

THIS CONTROVERSY has reached such a boiling point a public debate will be held Monday, beginning at 9:30 a.m. in the City Hall Board Room, on whether the Civil Defense Organization should be continued in Baltimore.

Congressman Clarence D. Long (2nd D.) will head a group of proponents.

City Comptroller Hyman A. Pressman, long an outspoken critic of the agency, will head a panel of opponents.

To acquaint its readers with the current operation of the Civil Defense Organization, the AFRO visited Major Gen. Richard G. Prather, its director, Wednesday.

He has been director since January of last year, and has headquarters in the basement of a Fire Department station on E. Cold Spring La., plus a small staff on the fourth floor at City Hall.

While the organization was under considerable fire prior to his administration, some are saying much of the current criticisms are based on dislike of Gen. Prather.

• • •

HERE ARE some things Gen. Prather told the AFRO.

Baltimore's Civil Defense Organization is operating on a current budget of approximately $279,530.

Federal and state funds provided leave a net cost to the city of approximately $141,000.

Considering the city's 939,000 population, this is a cost of slightly over .14 cents a year to each person.

Civil Defense has a salaried staff of 22 persons, including Gen. Prather.

These include 14 professionals, seven clerical and one custodian.

Only the custodian is colored.

• • •

"ONE colored man applied for the job of shelter officer." Gen. Prather said, "but then decided he didn't want it. Several colored have passed through here in the clerical department."

Clerical and professional jobs with this agency come through the city's Civil Service Commission.

The salary range is from $4,800 to the director's $12,000 a year.

There are 8,000 volunteer workers, an estimated 40 percent of whom are colored, the general said.

"We have more volunteers now, than when I came to this organization," Gen. Prather said.

• • •

AN ARMY survey some time ago showed, he said, shelter space available for 867,000 of the city's estimated 939,000 population.

Arrangements have been made or are under way, Gen. Prather revealed, for shelter space with a 486,-836 capacity.

Stocked to date with survival supplies, some up to a 14-day period, are shelters to handle 324,665 people, he said.

A count of the listing of such shelters on the organization's statement as of June 1 shows 354 throughout the city.

Here's the count by police districts:

Northern—71; Eastern—25; Southeastern—40; Southern—22; Southwestern—23; Western—14; Northwestern—; Central—122.

• • •

GEN. PRATHER, in answer to the criticism that has been levelled at his Civil Defense Organization here, had this to say to the AFRO:

"Our mission in Civil Defense is to provide the maximum possible protection for citizens of Baltimore in case of a nuclear attack against the United States.

"We are working toward that objective under what I consider a sound, realistic program, a program that has the full approval and support of the Office of Civil Defense, Department of Defense.

"Under Federal law, Civil Defense is the joint responsibility of government at all levels, Federal, state and local.

"It is a primary responsibility of government to protect the lives and welfare of its citizens.

"It's inconceivable to me that any responsible government official would seriously consider or suggest the elimination of Civil Defense, an essential element of our national defense."

• • •

The Critics

CRITICS OF the city's, Civil Defense Organization are looking at the setup in a far different light than Gen. Prather.

Mainly, they charge that the manner in which the organization has been operated here is a needless waste of taxpayers' dollars—dollars that could better be used for other municipal purposes.

Here are some of the expressions of the critics, as made to the AFRO:

CITY COMPTROLLER PRESSMAN—

"Civil Defense has wasted hundreds of thousands of dollars in Baltimore without accomplishing anything. Those who wish to continue the program say that we ought to spend more money in order to get results.

"No amount of money would be sufficient to protect the people of a city if it is struck by a nuclear bomb.

"There are enough such bombs and the means to deliver them in both Russia and the United States to destroy all big cities in both countries many times over.

"Civil defense was effective in World War II before the atomic bomb, but it is of no use now.

"It has been wisely said that if World War 3 comes, "The living will envy the dead.' "

• • •

COUNCILMAN HENRY G. PARKS JR. (4th. D.)—

"I'm sincere in the fact that every city agency has to justify its existence.

"So when an agency is doing an ineffective job, it should be eliminated.

"The needs are so great in the field of education, the Police and Fire Departments, we can't afford any waste."

• • •

CHARLES N. PERRY, former civil defense coordinator—

"The present director and highly paid staff have not shown any interest or leadership in the extravagant do-nothing program that they have wasted endless thousands of the taxpayers money on in the past four years.

"If his honor, Mayor McKeldin, wishes to look up Public Law 920, Part B, Chapter 1, Appendix 1, 81st Congress, dated April 15, 1963, he will find a civil defense must exist in each state, sub-division, etc., and therefore if the Mayor and City Council would abolish the local Civil Defense Organization it will then become the responsibility of the state and/or Federal government to function an active civil defense.

"Please remember, the shelter and training program is the Federal government's plan and not that of the cities' organization.

"If the abolishment should take place, I promise citizens of Baltimore City they will then have a sound civil program plan and the citizens will have a chance for survival should a nightmarish thermonuclear attack or disaster take place."

Cousins get together but 1 gums up works for them all

There was a meeting between cousins last July 26 at Mount and Saratoga Sts.

As of Sept. 17 if two of them never see the other one again . . . it'll be too soon.

As recounted before Criminal Court Judge Edwin Harlan the impromptu reunion went something like this:

Two of the cousins — James Harrison, 17, 1600 block W. Fayette St. and James Kinsler, 18, 1900 block Edmondson Ave. — were the first to arrive at the intersection.

While the young relatives were chatting about people places and things, testimony showed, along came a non-relative, John Rountree, of the 600 block N. Calhoun St.

• • •

NOW MR. Roundtree is an aged man, and the cousins decided that he was a bit inebriated.

However, Mr. Roundtree disputed this, claiming he had polished off, "only one beer."

At any rate, the cousins, for reasons best known to themselves, decided that the non - relative was a promising source of cash to finance some venture that appeals to the young.

They yoked him — or at least they attempted to yoke him, Mr. Roundtree told Judge Harlan.

Before the cousins were able to extract his loot from his pockets, however, another cousin (not related to the above - mentioned relatives) also arrived on the scene.

He was Surrie L. Cousins, police detective, assigned to Chief Inspector George J. Murphy's Special Headquarters Squad.

• • •

WITH HIS partner, Det. William A. Burke, the uninvited Cousins nabbed the two other cousins and charged them with assault and robbery.

While all this was going on, another real cousin, James Harrison, 16, 313 N. Bruce St., also known as "Half - Pint," reached the site of the unscheduled getting together of relatives and non-relatives.

Testifying in their behalf, "Half - Pint" told the court that the cousins weren't giving the non-relative an unfriendly greeting.

Instead, the shortist and loquacious witness declared, "they told him (Mr. Roundtree) that "you are drunk, why don't you go home' "

Intentionally or otherwise, this version of the meeting differed slightly from that of Detective Cousins and his partner.

While cruising the area in an unmarked car, they testified, they heard a man scream for "help!" When the officers halted their car along side the relatives and non-relative, the former took off up the alley.

The chase was of short duration because, in this case, youth wasn't served as is customary in most normal foot races.

• • •

FOLLOWING THEIR denial that they were not running because they were caught in the act of robbing Mr. Roundtree, the cousins told Judge Harlan they were running because "Half-Pint" told them a girl wanted to see them "and it was important."

"Half - Pint" explained the unusual haste at the sight of the unwanted Cousins this way.

"The girl told me to tell them she wanted to see them because she wanted to go out."

"I think they were going out on a hustle."

"When they heard this, they all hustled, didn't they," Judge Harlan racked wryly.

• • •

"HALF-PINT," who had been absolved of all blame by the other two cousins, then broke up spectators when the prosecutor asked him where was he while the others were running.

"I was running, too."

"Where?" asked the prosecutor.

"Behind them!" answered "Half - Pint" boldly.

Judge Harlan wasn't exactly touched by the explanations of the impromptu meeting of cousins and sentenced the real cousins to three years in the Reformatory for Males.

Moral — a Cousins is not necessarily a cousin.

See state giving JFK higher vote than 1960

Maryland will go for President John F. Kennedy at the Democratic National Convention, and he will carry the state in next year's general election by at least 25,000 more than he did in 1960.

New York's Gov. Nelson A Rockefeller will be the Republicans' presidential nonee.

These are the crystal ball predictions of W. Harry Haller, insurance - real estate broker in Frederick, Md.

Senator J. Glenn Beall cannot be re-elected, he contends, but the state's Republicans could retain his seat with the candidacy of Congressman Charles Mathias (6tr D.) and Newton I. Steers could win Mr. Mathias' congressional seat.

• • •

MR. HALLER sees U. S Attorney Joseph Tydings winning the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senator, but holds he will lose to Mr. Mathias.

State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein will not be a candidate for the U. S. Senate, he states, but will have clear sailing for governor in 1966.

The Republicans will retain the First and Sixth Districts House of Representatives seats, according to Mr. Haller, and have a good opportunity to take the Second District.
