of the proceedings. Mr. Taylor said "CORE has nothing to hide. We would have preferred an open meeting with the press in attendance but EOC, as I understand, usually has these meetings in executive session with the press barred."

IN OTHER EOC Business, Warren Buckler, commission chairman reported on Wednesday that city government departments were resisting his agency's attempts to get full information on hiring policies in municipal government.

Mr. Buckler affirmed what has been published elsewhere in the past:: that the Park Board permits a gun club to use public land in Gwynns Fall Park although denying participation to colored tax-payers and that the office of the chief constable of people's Court has no colored workers save a "token" constable appointment.

On the downtown store picketing issue, the meeting resuled in a stale mate.

Equal Opportunity Day chairman to be interviewed chairman of "Equal Opportunity Day" for the District of Columbia will be interviewed on WWDX Radio's weekly "Shades of Opinion" this Saturday Oct. 19th (7:20 to 7:30 p.m. will center around problems encountered by minorities in achieving economic progress.

Nov. 18th ha been set aside for the commoration of Equal Opportunity Day.

The 'Day' is being held in conjunction with the celebration of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address and the stress it lays upon acknowledgement of the public's responsibility to provide equal opportunities for all regardless of race, colore or creed.

Unique 'cocktail party' staged by 4H members

Millersville and Gambrills 4-H Club members paid tribute to their parents on Sunday, at the home of one of their leaders, Mrs. Delma Gross of Millersville, Md.

They honored the Mother of the Year, Mrs. Janita Holland of Millersville, with a crown and bouquet of orange and yellow dahlias, backgrounded with white chrysanthemums. The Fathers of the Year were Rufus Poole and Joseph Gross, who received 4-H pins.

The guests were the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. James E. Adams, pastor of the John Wesley Methodist Church in Waterbury, and Mrs. Sylvia R. McMillan, the home demonstration agent. The guests were accompanied by their sons, James and Andre Adams, and Mackie McMillan.

The youngsters wanted an evening social, to show their parents how well they could plan a party.

The soiree was a cocktail hour, and the ingenuity of the members brougt forth an array of mock cocktails made of pale dry ginger ale, with olives and onions frozen in ice cubes.

The old fashions were similar, with golden gingerale, and orange and lemon slices

The repast displayed hors d'oeuvres of crab, chicken and egg salads with cocktail crackers, and numerous cheese spreads.

Other delicacies arranged on grapefruit and purple cabbabe, included pickles, cheese bits, olives, Vienna sausage, and celery sticks stuffed with cheese fillings.

THE TABLE'S center piece was made of gourds, placed on large yellow, golden and green leaves highlighting the 4-H and American flags.

The fireplace mantle was decorated with autumn leaves and branches, with a large pumpkin centered and pom poms, pears and acorn squash around it.

Soft lights from the service table, showing dainty cocktail napkins highlighted the decor.

Exhibited on the sliding doors of buffet, was project literature, the the club uses during their year.

The members with supervision of their leaders planned and made all the managements and preparations. The girls also displayed dresses that they had made for a previous project. The dresses were hung on frames made of pastel sheets and contrasting crepe paper.

The girls were dressed in a variety of cocktail dresses, but Miss Queen, beautiful-pleated full bottom, with a lace top lined in blue, made with long sleeves and the back cut down to the waist and matching accessories, was the belle of the evening.

The hostesses for the evening were the club officers, Misses Margaret Howard, president; Delores Queen, secretary, Betty Ann Queen, treasurer, and Brenda Hamilton.

Other members of the club are Misses Eva and Regina Hamilton, Georgiett and ly dressed in blue taffeta, Hatie Sevell, Verel and Janett Queen, Phyllis Alton, Mary, Annie, Barbara, and Alice Jones, Diane Edwards, and Shirley and Lydia Whitakers.

The young men included Harole Poole, Eric Palmer, Clarence Queen and William Howard. The leaders are Mrs. Geraldine Poole and Mrs. Delma Gross.

'Alvin Ailey Dance group to perform at Coppin

Coppin State College will begin its 1963-64 evening events with a concert by the Alvin Ailey Dance Theater Tuesday, at 8:15 a.m. in the Thomas Pullen Gymnasium on the college campus at 2500 W. Nroth Ave.

Mr. Ailey, the company's founder and choreographer, has been acclaimed by critics as one of the most multi-talented artists appearing on the stage today.

To his credit are performances on films, television, and stage.

Among the musicals in which he has been featured are "House of Flowers," Harry Belafonte's "Sing Man, Sing," and "Jamaica" with Lena Horne.

His legitimate theatre appearances include the Broadway production of "Tiger Tiger Burning Bright" with Claudia McNeil, and "Call Me By My Rightful Name."

The Alvin Ailey Dance Theater attempts to fuse dance forms with music, song, and acting techniques to express dramatic themes and moods.

The company has performed at some of the nation outstanding festivals, including Jacob's Pillow, Lew Spoleto Festival Ball and Central Park's Shakespeare Theatre.

In 1962 the dancers were sponsored in a 15 week tour of Australia and the Far East by President Kennedy's Cultural exchange Program and they will avpear in Baltimore after having performed in Rio de Janero last month.

The Coppin concert is open to the public without charge.

UNCOMMONLY COMMON

There are few things you see more frequently than the telephone. Virtually everybody has one.

This is what makes your phone so uncommonly useful.

Friends, neighbors, stores, doctors, business associates—you name it—can be reached so easily by telephone. You save time, trips to town and all kinds of trouble.

Your phone gives you convenience that's indispensable—that can often make the impossible possible.

That's why low-cost telephone service is so uncommonly high in value.

obviously proposes—the colored voter will no longer be in the majority in this district.

It must be remembered that the Baltimore Urban Reswal and Housing Agency's destruction of homes in the colored areas has already wrecked havoc with such registration in the Fourth.

This contention has been stated here repeatedly in the past.

Colored citizens, who constitute over a third of the city's population, should have one district where they can elect public representatives of their choice.

Such an area should not be destroyed by gerrymandering action.

THE JEWISH people have a district where they can elect their own, the Catholics have such a district—so do the Polish people.

This is not just a question of giving the Pollack faction opportunity for new strength in a new Fourth District of the organization's making.

There is the ugly matter of the gerrymander itself.

So, here's another challenging thing—to arise in these challenging times.

This requires quick buffer action by citizens and organizations of the Fourth District.

to the public, including health clubs, carnivals and garages

This is so inclusive it would make unlawful such discrimination in services furnished by ambulances, funeral homes and even cemeteries, except those operated by churches.

Public places of services and accommodations would be required by law to open their doors to all citizens.

It would be unlawful to discriminate in offering a public service.

THE PROVISION covering educational institutions would outlaw discrimination in kindergartens through the city's colleges and universities.

Included would be private institutions, such as business and vocational schools and nursery schools.

One exclusion would be parochial schools of instruction.

Mayor McKeldin's package provision covering health and welfare services would outlaw discriminatory practices by public, voluntary or private organization engaged in such services which receives public funds.

This would require services to all at any hospital, nursing or convalescent home, community centers, day or resident camps.

Only exclusion would be health and welfare service agencies operated by a bonafide religious denomination, primarily for members of its faith.

THIS, THEN, is the coverage of Mayor McKeldin's package of civil rights proposals which would make Baltimore a total city for its minority citizens.

The package, as it now stands, would take such minorities, particularly the colored citizen, far along the road tooward full citizenship in Baltimore.

Violators of any provisions who persisted would be subject to contempt of court action.

It is one of the most inclusive human rights packages ever presented anywhere.

Mayor McKeldin, a Republican, is seen by most close observers as in uniquely favorable position in sending his package to the all Democratic City Council.

If it passes, he can share a major portion of the credit for initiating the move.

If it fails passage, he can blame the Democratic Council.

MAYOR McKELDIN said he is putting the "full weight of this administration" behind the proposed ordinance.

He said further, during a briefing for newmen last Friday, he was not prepared to sacrifice any part of the ordinance for passage of the rest of it.

Thomas D'Alesandro, City Council president, has stated since the ordinance was drawn the housing provision would likely meet with considerable opposition in the Council

Meanwhile, William D. Shaefer (5th D.) Council vice president and chairman of the Judiciary Committee which now has the ordinance, has announced hewill schedule public hearings within a couple of weeks.

In addition to Mr. Schaefer, here are the other members of the Council's Judiciary Committee who will decide in what form the package of rights proposals will reach the Council floor:

THOMAS WARD (2nd D.), vice chairman; Henry G. Parks Jr. (4th D.); Clement J. Prucha (7nd D.); James J. Duffy (1st D.); John A. Pica (3rd D.), and Dominic Leone (6th D.)

Current speculation is that eight of the 11 majority needed of the 21 votes in the Council are already solidly behind the proposed ordinance.

These are the three votes of the Fourth District, the four of the Fith and Mr. D'Alesandro's approval.

The three votes of the Second District are in some doubt, according to an AFRO survey this week, as these councilmen said they wanted opportunity to study the ordinance before comment

Also in doubt are at least two of the Third District's four votes.

Almost solid opposition is seen, however, in the three votes each of the First and Sixth Districts.

the Aug. 28 March on Washington.

He listed these as (1) determination to achieve; (2) rigid self - discipline; and(3) the decision "to pay your own way."

The March, he said proved "human beings can do anything if they want to do it badly enough."

The fact that thousands of police had nothing to do, he declared, proves the "remarkable self discipline displayed by the more than 200,000 marchers, each of whom seem determined that 'I shall not be the one to cause this march to be a failure.'

Fourth District Democrats, the speaker asserted, could learn from this example that they must exercise the same kind of self - discipline to stay together and avoid splits that "play into the hands of the political bosses."

THE FACT that "nearly everybody paid his own way to Washington offers the lesson to Fourth District Democrats "that even those who have little can pay their way if they want to." he said.

The organization was commended for raising its own funds to pay for its new voting machine. Dr. Fleming urged the members to make special efforts to teach teen - agers how to use the machine and to become registered voters when they reach the age 21. — MACKAY
