MARBLES MAYBE? — No, that's not the answer. The subject which has aroused the curiosity of James and Roslyn Chatmon is a model of a tiatnium dioxide molecule used for research by Westinghouse scientists at the firm's Defense and Space Center in Baltimore. James and Roslyn are the children of William A. Chatmon Jr., 2119 Division St., a Westinghouse employee. The model was on display during a recent open house at the Defense and Space Center for families of employees.

Madison Square starts program

Madison Square Elementary School, Eden and Biddle Sts., opened its doors for the first time in September.

It is a three-level, $1,284,400 building. Attached to it is a $179,000 recreation center which was financed by the Bureau of Parks and Recreation.

Total cost of the 2.7-acre complex which includes the school, the recreation center, a spacious playground, supplies and equipment amounted to $1,978,000.

The principal of the school is Mrs. Lilly Stevenson, who has been in the school system for more than 30 years.

Mrs. Stevenson reported that 1,041 pupils, from the kindergarten through the sixth grade, are enrolled in the school which is equipped with some of the most modern conveniences.

• • •

MADISON SQUARE school is one of the very few public schools in the city which has a built - in system for closed - circuit television.

Actually, television is already playing an important role in the education of the pupils at the school. Each morning some of the classes watch selected programs on television or the radio.

The programs are either sponsored or are recommended by the public school system.

Mrs. Stevenson said that when a class is assigned to watch a particular program, instruction concerning the subject which will be watched is given to the pupils.

After the program, there is a follow - up in the classroom to illuminate the subject for the pupil.

"All of the television programs are part of a class study," said Mrs. Stevenson.

Thre are 27 teachers and the vice principal, Edgar W. Lansey, to help Mrs. Stevenson carry out her program at the school.

• • •

STUDENTS learn music, science, math, social sciences and study physical education at the school.

The school's auditorium can hold 350 students, the cafeteria, which is not open at present, can seat approximately 300 pupils and there is the gymnasium.

Although the school is open and in use, it is not completed. For example, the gymnasium and the cafeteria need more work before they can be considered open for student use.

The library cannot be used because the necessary shelves are not in place. There are a few other odds and ends which do not cripple the function of the school but emphasizes its being spanking new.

Naturally, all of the equipment is new. The pupils have modern - designed metal desks and subdued color schemes and sinks in the classrooms.

On each of the levels, there are teacher lounges. Mrs. Stevenson said that the school administration gives the teachers a choice of color of furniture which will be placed in the lounges.

• • •

THE RECREATION center which is attached to the school usually opens around 3 p.m. and closes at 10 p.m.

It is still being equipped. Already, a pool table is in place as well as a few card tables, a ping pong table and a few chairs for leisure sitting or talking.

Because of the recency of opening, the recreation center is not operating on a full schedule.

Nov. 3
The Children's Guild Inc., 2270 Park Hill Ave., will hold its open house activities at 2 p.m.
