MUSICAL MOMENTS

AFRO critic writes her column on concert in Paris

By ADAH K. JENKINS

PARIS: Of the glittering array of musical events, we thought it more exciting to attend a typical Parisian event rather than one by international artists who will, no doubt, be appearing in the United States later this season.

Hence, we found ourselves being wisked (almost literally) thru the maze of Paris traffic to the Solle Goveau for a concert by the Radio of Paris.

This ensemble of 60 musicians (including 15 women) was conducted by Manuel Rosenthal, in concert versions of two one - act operas.

The concert was calculated to please the cohservatives as well as the modernists, since the first offering was by Bizet, the Romantic French composer, and the second, "The Comedy on the Bridge" by the contemporary Marcel Michalovic.

As he so successfully recreated the Spanish atmosphere in "Carmen", Bizet caught exotic flavor by the skillful use of melodic and rhythmic idioms of the East.

The arias offered ample exhibition of the vocal capabilities of the four soloists, with special honors to the mezzo - soprano and bariton. A mixed chorus of 20 enhanced the dramatic effects.

• • •

ROLLICKING FUN and excitement of the comedy were carried on in rare form by five soloists. Both they and the orchestra seemed thoroughly at home with the not fall on the ear too harshly.

Monsieur Rosenthol held his forces under admirable control in both performances, with the orchestra having an edge on the soloists in the finer points of musician, score that is modern yet did ship.

An additional feature, which we were told is customary at the less formal French concerts, was a brief resume of each opera by the narrator, in this case, a very attractive young woman.

Concert time began at 9 p.m., in deference, no doubt to the late dinner hour prevalent in Paris.

LONDON — WESTMINSTER Abbey for 10:30 Matins (Morning Prayer) on Sunday, Oct. 13 the Feast of the Translation of St. Edward, King and Confessor and founder of the Abbey ("Translation" means the taking of his body to its final resting place in a shrine behind the High Altar).

As soon as one passed thru the heavy carved portals and into the shadow of the pillars that reach an almost unbelievable height to the vaulted arches there is a feeling that truly "the past meets the present".

The services were held in the King Edward Chapel, one of the most beautiful in all Europe, with its gold embossed altar. At Matins, followed by Procession and Holy Communion, we witnessed the awe inspiring pageantry of the Church of England.

The double choir, including the world famous Westminister boys, was especially thrilling, heard in their home setting, with their ethereally beautiful tones amplified by the marvelous acoustics of the Abbey.

The Anglican Chant was used for the "Venite" and "Benedictus" at Matins, with the responses by Thomas Tallis, 16th century English composer. One of Britain's most noted musicians, Vaughn Williams, was represented by his "Te Deum in G", with the grandeur of the trumpet - like opening themes and the striking contrast of the subdued petition at its conclusion.

For the Procession, which formed at the chapel altar, the arranged anthem used was one by Henry Purcell, the most noted of the classic English composers and organist at the Abbey from 1679 to 1695.

The communion Service was from the pen of Sir Charles Stanford (1852 -1924) and a special Sequence for the Feast of St. Edward, was taken from a two - volumed Missal written at the Abbey in 138 4and still preserved as one of its chief treasures.

November 3 and 4 the Maryland State Music Teachers Association will convene at the Francis Scott Key Hotel, Frederick. Advance registrations may be made with Mrs. Evelyn Ransom, 1328 Mitcher St., Kensington. For information call Mrs. Virginia Carty de Lillo, chairman of the local committee.

STUDENTS COMPOSERS residing anywhere in the Western Hemisphere are elligible to win awards totalling $18,550 in the 1963 Student Composers Awards Sponsored by Broadcast Music Incorporated to encourage the creation of concert music by young compsers.

The closing date is Feb. 15, 1964 and contestants must be under 26 years of age on Dec 31, 1963.

Awards range from $250 to $2000. The panel of judges is headed by William Schuman, president of Lincoln Center. Contest rules and entry blanks are available from Russell Sanjek, BMI, Inc., 589 Fifth Ave. New York 17, N.Y.

AT THE HARLEM — Richard Chamberlain listens to some advice from Claude Rains while the latter's daughter Joan Blackman, looks on in this scene from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Twilight of Honor," now playing at the Harlem. Chamberlain plays his first motion picture starring role as the defense attorney in a sensational murder trial in the Perlberg-Seaton production. The picture also stars Nick Adams and James Gregory and introduces exciting newcomer Joey Heatherton as the teen-age girl involved in the murder.

Top artists appear in Regent's film

A glittering array of talent was assembled to make "The Condemned of Altona," the Titanus production which is now at The Regent Theatre.

Producer Carlo Ponti and director Vittorio De Sica cornered the top star market with the signing of Sophia Loren, Maximilian Schell, Fredric March and Robert Wagner to head the cast of this polgnant drama which was inspired by a play by the famous Jean - Paul Sartre.

The scope of this talent is indicated by the fact that the cast and creative staff hold seven Academy Awards, in addition to other honors.

"The Condemned of Altona" also reunited director Vittorio De Sica with Miss Loren, the talented director-actress team which has made several pictures together including the critically and publicly acclaimed "Two Women," for which Miss Loren won her Oscar.

OSCAR-WINNERS Sophia Loren and Maximilian Schell team in the dramatic "The Condemned of Altona," Carlo Ponti-Titanus production directed by Vittorio De Sica. Filmed in Germany, the 20th Century-Fox release is now at the Regent Theatre.

First-Run Films

Sammy Davis in Met's 'Johnny Cool'

Making his bow as an executive film producer, Peter Lawford had assembled one of the most brilliant contingents of celebrated Hollywood and TV personalities for guest star appearances in his film about underworld vengeance, "Johnny Cool," held over at the Met Theatre through United Artists release, and co-stars Henry Silva and Elizabeth Montgomery.

Tapped for cameo characterizations by Lawford for this powerful film drama, his guest stars contribute a gallery of polished gems of individual performances.

Sammy Davis, Jr., plays the role of "Educated," a method" crap-shooter who uses "instructed" dice, and dresses like a banker.

Joey Bishop plays a comedy role as a Los Angeles used car salesman, and gives it his unique and individual touch.

'Dr. Kildare' in top role at the Harlem

Richard Chamberlain, who has become the idol of millions of television viewers as Dr. Kildare, plays his first starring role in a feature motion picture in Metro-Goldwyn - Mayer's "Twilight of Honor," now playing at the Harlem.

In this tense and absorbing courtroom drama, based on the best-selling novel by Al Dewlin, Chamberlain's role is a far cry from that of his famous doctor portrayal. He plays David Mitchell, a small town attorney who is appointed to defend a man accused of wantonly murdering the community's leading citizen.

Together with Chamberlain, the Perlberg-Seaton production, filmed in Panavision, stars Nick Adam as Ben Brown, who faces the murder charge; Claude Raines as Art Harper, an elderly attorney to whom Mitchell turns for advice and encouragement; Joan Blackman as Susan, the latter's daughter; James Gregory as Norris Bixby, the prosecutor; and Pat Butram as Cole Clinton, the murdered man.

Our Good Neighbor of the week is lovely Mrs. Anne Greene, wife of Richard Greene, a Government employee. Mrs. Greene is the mother of a charming daughter Beverly, 15, who is in the tenth grade at Douglass High School. The Greene family resides in the 3400 block Holmes Ave.

Our neighbor is a native of Columbia, S. C. but has lived in our town for over 20 years.

Mrs. Greene received her schooling at Booker T. Washington Junior High School and Douglass, majoring in business education.

Among her club affiliations are memberships in the Valiant Ladies (president), Urban League Guild and advisor to the Welcome Youth Group (a neighborhood organization).

Our neighbor is a member of the Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church where she is a member of the Pastor's Aid, senior choir No. 2 and is working with the Woman's Day committee.

Our neighbor's hobbies include reading, bowling and watching TV. Mrs. Greene likes to recite the 23rd psalm and sing "Jesus Lover of My Soul."
