15 professional tips from I.W. Harper

The Prized Kentucky Bourbon

1. Stir when it says stir, and shake when it says shake. Shaking a clear drink, like a Martini, makes it cloud up.
2. When shaking or stirring, be thorough. Shake means shake!
3. For stirring, use ice cubes; for shaking, cracked ice. But ice only; not ice and water.
4. Pour liquor over ice, rather than dropping ice into liquor ... the liquor will chill better.
5. If you're caught short without pre-chilled glasses in the refrigerator, fill your glasses with crushed ice while you're mixing the drinks. Then dump the ice and pour.
6. Remember that one ice cube makes 2 to 2½ ounces of water.
7. Use only fresh fruit, and make sure it's thoroughly squeezed.
8. When you're cutting peel for a drink, remove the white under part; it's bitter and useless.
9. Want to make a Daiquiri (pronounced professional flair? Add a drop of milk to your mix before shaking.
10. Soak lemons in cold water for fifteen minutes to get more juice from them. Then roll them on a hard surface.
11. Rub the edges of the bottle with waxed paper before pouring to prevent dripping. An occasional rub will do.
12. Rinse ice cubes with a few glasses of cold water to get rid of the snowy look.
13. Don't stir carbonated beverages vigorously.
14. Keep simple syrup—sugar and water, premixed—on hand for the most efficient way of sweetening drinks. It will dissolve; plain sugar will often present problems.
15. Use clean glasses—with clean ice—for seconds. Just a drop or two of a stale drink can ruin a fresh one.

Another good tip... mellow your next drink with

... it's always a pleasure!

—Stormy B & P election

"I felt Mrs. Holmes had done an excellent job, presented a fine program for our women, but I am opposed to setting aside the constitution. It is a very bad precedent, and could become the rule rather than the exception!"

The organization's constitution allows the president to succeed herself only once.

Once the delegates decided not to set aside the constitution to retain Mrs. Holmes for a third term, the election went smoothly.

* * *

THE DAY after the emotion-paced election, Mrs. Bryant spoke to the Washington AFRO-AMERICAN. At that time, the new president had not had the time to formulate a program.

She did say she and her officers would "seek to formulate a constructive education program...the youths of today are the adults of tomorrow.

"For those of us who have had a degree of success...we must help others. And of course, we are interested in a civil rights program," she concluded.

* * *

RECORDS were set in order and turned over to the new officers on Monday. Retiring officers met with the new officers at the hotel on the same day. Mrs. Bryant indicated that a program would be formulated "as soon as possible."

* * *

THERE were 239 full voting delegates, and 9 delegates with half votes. The half votes come from $100 life members. Fully paid members, and members-at-large have one full vote at all elections.

* * *

OTHER national officers are: Mrs. Margaret Belcher, first vice-president, Columbus, Ga.; Mrs. Grace Sivler, second vice - president, Los Angeles, Calif; and Mrs. Ethel Moore, third - vice president, Newark, N.J.

* * *

MRS. EDITH T. WILSON, treasurer, Ohio; Mrs. Edyth I. Harris, financial secretary; Mrs. Marian Hughes, recording secretary, Long Island, N.Y.; Mrs. E. Finch Morris, corresponding secretary, Philadelphia; and Evelyn Redeross, assistant recording secretary, Newport, Virginia.

* * *

MISS EUREKA WHORD was elected editor of the organization's official organ, Responsibility."

All were installed formally at the closing meeting of the convention, the National Award's Luncheon on Sunday.

* * *

REP. JAMES ROOSEVELT (D., Calif.) was the guest speaker. His speech followed the convention theme, "Five Steps to Freedom."

He urged the 25,000-member organization to contact their congressional representatives urging them to support the civil rights bill.

He said the bill was not as strong as it should be, but must be supported.

* * *

AMONG those who received awards at the close of the five-day national meeting were Rose Booker of Long Island, N.Y.; Rosalin Fisher, chairman of the board of the Northwest Settlement House in Washington, D.C.;

Pauline Virgil of the Shiloh Baptist Church; Florence Allen Holmes, the retired president; and Sandra Burke, who received the National Youth Award.

* * *

ROBERT KENNEDY, the U.S. Attorney-General spoke to the group the first day of the convention. This meeting was held at the Asbury Methodist Church.

His speech followed the convention's theme but stressed education as a means of employing colored youth.

The next regional meeting of the organization is scheduled for Baltimore, Md. with no date set as yet.

The 1964 convention is scheduled for New York City, and the 1965 convention will be in California.

School Board hears prayer argument

A debate between pro-school prayer and anti-school prayer spokemen consumed most of the Board of Schools Commissioners regular meeting yesterday (Thursday).

The Rev. Irving Murray, pastor of First Unitarian Church and chairman of the Maryland Branch of the American Civil Liberties Union, appeared before the Board to state his objections to a plan for voluntary school prayer advanced two weeks earlier by Francis B. Burch, former city solicitor.

"A majority can never use the machinery of the state to practice its belief," said the Rev. Mr. Murray." He went on to comment that he saw no way that voluntary school prayer could be conducted in a school "without involvement of school officials and personnel."

* * *

IN TAKING strong exception to the Burch plan for children to hold their own religious ceremonies in the school before the opening of classes, the minister called such an arrangement "a mockery" of the recent Supreme Court decision banning school prayer.

The Rev. Mr. Murrary said said he could not "understand what all the fuss is about" regarding school prayer and said such school exercises "were sterile, ineffective."

"All the time prayers were held in schoolrooms, juvenile creasing," said the minister. creasing," said the minister.

Mr. Burch was given permission to answer the Unitarian clergyman. He observed that the Supreme Court was careful to use the word "required" in describing the prayers it had ruled unconstitutional.

Mr. Burch said the Court in banning "required" prayers did not say that voluntary prayers were to be eliminated.

Leonard Kerpelman, attorney for Mrs. Madalyn Murray whose case resulted in outlawing school prayers, appeared also before the Board. Mr. Kerpelman said he was in agreement with the Rev. Mr. Murray and that as an Orthodox Jew could personally point to the experiences of his children in predominantly Christian public school classrooms.

* * *

HE QUOTED New Testament verse which said in effect that prayer was a silent private affair. "It is a parental function," said the attorney, regarding prayer instruction "not a school function."

Mr. Burch said he would seek to have the U.S. Constitution amended so that prayers could be restored to the classroom through his newly formed organization, the Constitutional Prayer Foundation, Inc.

In other school business, the Board approved new jobs and promotions within the Department of Education; heard reports on teacher recruiting and placement, school vandalism and pupil drop-outs.

Dr. King urges nonviolence 'to stump the Bull Connors'

"We face a crisis in our race relations", Dr. Martin Luther King told a standing-room only audience at Howard University Wednesday

The meeting climaxed a two-day conference on nonviolence.

Non-violent action is the most potent weapon civil rights forces possess in this confrontation between the forces of liberation and the forces of domination, he observed.

"The gains we have made in our struggle have come through nonviolent action. If we had turned to violence I am sure that we would not have accomplished as much as we have," Dr. King emphasized.

* * *

HE NOTED that the nonviolent student movement had desegregated restaurants in over 300 cities throughout the South, that the freedom rides had established almost complete desegregation in public transportation, and that the Birmingham demonstrations had revitalized the civil rights movement throughout the country.

The Administration told him in January that civil rights legislation could not be achieved in 1963, the Rev. Mr. King told the 2,200 people in attendance.

After the Birmingham non - violent demonstrations, the Administration changed its priorities, he said.

* * *

A RESORT TO violence would give the enemies of the movement the excuse to crush it that they have been looking for, he noted.

"A Bull Connor knows how to deal with violence. He doesn't know how to deal with nonviolence," Dr. King added.

Returning to the subject of legislation, he said he supported the bill that the House judiciary Sub committee approved.

* * *

"IT IS BETTER to have a strong bill watered down than have a weak bill face similar treatment," he observed.

Dr. King had been invited to Howard to give its Annual Gandhi Memorial lecture.

The chapel and both campus auditoriums had to be used to accommodate the overflow crowd that had come despite the torrential downpour.

"I'M NOT HERE to say that violence never works . . . . History shows that violence has often brought temporary victory, but it can not bring about permanent peace," Dr. King emphasized.

"An eye for an eye philosophy leaves everybody blind," he added.

Many people do not understand the nonviolent concept of love he observed. "It is absurd to urge an oppressed people to love their oppressors in an affectionate way."

Attacking those who say that more time is needed since only time will change men's hearts. Dr. King said "A law can't make a man love me but it can keep him from lynching me."

"The heart can't be legislated but behavior can be regulated," he added.

When questioned on his views on de facto school segregation such as exists in Washington, Dr. King said that he believed in transporting students to integrate schools if housing patterns prevent natural integration.

"We will never have an integrated society as long as we have schools that are segregated by the housing situation".

* * *

DURING A PANEL discussion Tuesday evening, Thomas D. Kahn, Workers Defense League, New York City, raised the question of whether the student non-violent movement's success depends on effectively changing th larger areas of endeavor such as housing and also in changing the attitudes of the adult population.

Clarence Mitchell, director, Washington Bureau, NAACP, suggested that some of the techniques used by demonstrators had originated elsewhere such as in the labor movement.

* * *

DR. ARTHUR I. WASKOW, Institute of Policy Studies, said a new approach to American education has arisen out of the non-violent movement.

* * *

DR. E. FRANKLIN EDWARDS, professor of sociology, Howard University, traced the history of the non-violent campaign, pointing out that the NAACP had been foremost among the

He also cited the leadership of the church in the struggle and the interracial character of the movement.

Dr. Fredric Solomon read a paper prepared jointly with Dr. Jacob R. Fishman, Howard University, which described the attitudes of students involved in the movement.

* * *

OTHER PARTICIPANTS during the conference were: Dr. Elias Blake, Jr., Howard University; Prof. Frederick W. Hamlin, Jr.; Arnold Trebach, administrator, Defender Project, National Legal Aid and Defender Association; Berl I. Bernhard, staff director, U.S. Commission on Civil Rights;

* * *

Larry Gibson, president, student council, College of Liberal Arts, Howard; Dr. Evans E. Crawford, Howard; Miss Jean Fairfax, American Friends Service Committee; the Rev. Walter E. Fauntroy, pastor, New Bethel Baptist Church:

John Lewis, president, Student Non - Violent Coordinating Committee; James Meredith, president, James Meredith Educational Fund and Mrs. Gloria Richardson, chairman, Cambridge Nonviolent Action Committee.

BURHA warns against exterminating Company

The head of the Baltimore Urban Renewal and Housing Agency has issued a warning against telephone calls from an exterminating company in which the firm has been claiming Agency authority to inspect homes in the Windsor Hills area.

Richard L. Steiner, BURHA director, emphasized that his Agency never authorizes any private firm to inspect any Baltimore home for any purpose whatso-ever—either inside or outside urban renewal areas.

Nor," he declared, "do we ever endorse the work or the work or the product of any private firm"

"Any homeowner, moreover, who suspects he is being approached under false pretenses should immediately call the Better Business Bureau (Mulberry 8-6986), which will check into the records of the firm in question. The matter should also be reported to the Maryland Home Improvement Commission (Vernon 7-9000) the Police Department or the State's Attorney's Office," Mr. Steiner said

"In addition, if BURHA approval, endorsement or authorization of any sort is claimed, we would very much appreciate being informed of the fact (Saratoga 7-3400)."

The only organization known to issue approvals in an urban renewal area is the Harlem Park Neighborhood Council, a private group representing the citizens of the area, which has compiled a list of approved contractors for the use of its members.

Watchdog

A watchdog that's always on guard to protect you . . . that's one of the many roles the telephone plays in your life.

For your telephone is constantly on duty, ready to help you in little emergencies and big ones—when a call to the doctor, the fire department, or the police may be urgent.

It's hard to imagine what life would be like without a telephone watchdog to sound a call for help when trouble arises.

And, at all times, "man's best friend" (and woman's, too) is a constant companion. It helps you keep in touch with family and friends and saves you hundreds of steps.

The telephone is still one of the biggest bargains in your family budget. Use it often.
