BALTIMORE AFTER DARK
On the TOWN with the Pub Crawler

There is a lot to be said in connection with the recent successful convention of tan beverage men held at a downtown hotel last week.

First and foremost it gave life and breath to the theme of the gathering — "Impact of Colored Citizens on the Beverage Industry."

Selective buying, equal job opportunities, housing, school dropouts, and other compunulty ills were topics which got the attention of representatives of the manufacturing, distribution and consumer ends of the industry.

An appraisal of the three-day meet leaves several impressions — all of which are favorable.

An interpretation of the mood and temper of the gathering gives fair warning that colored consumers will no longer be content with "token employment policies" practiced by some firms in the industry.

* * *

IT IS also apparent that manufacturers, distributors, and dealers who have adopted a genuine policy of equal job opportunity will get the loyalty — the financial variety — of a group that spends millions annually in beverages.

Charles T. Williams, himself exhibit "A" of what can happen when promotions are based on merit alone, the vice president of Schenley Distillers put it best:

"It is time for the industry to stop hiring colored representatives to serve the colored market," he declared.

"All we ask is an opportunity to perform. It is no longer necessary for companies to hire colored persons in 'front jobs' and call them representatives of the firm.

"Representatives of what?" the executive asked shrugging his shoulder, a gesture which implies the obvious answer — "nothing!"

Mr. Williams, a vice president in every sense of the word, and the first of his race to achieve this lofty position in the industry, also had a word for groups and individuals involved in the equality struggle:

"It is extremely important that we recognize and support those firms which show their appreciation for our business by using our skills.

"By the same token we should use every weapon at our command to bring pressure on those who don't."

* * *

THIS ADVICE is part and parcel of the techniques now getting top billing from individuals and groups dedicated to bringing about changes in all facets of life for colored America.

The frequency of the word "impact" and stirring orations by community leaders exploring where we fit in the industry and the community gave the convention an atmosphere strikingly different from that generally associated with persons involved in the business of manufacturing, distributing and dispensing beverages.

"We must have freedom now in jobs, education, housing, and the community at large," said the Rev. Robert T. Newbold, while addressing the panel, "Impact of the Colored Revolt."

Miss Shirley M. Kyle and Edgar M. Ewing, urban renewal experts, gave the physical and human side of "Impact of Urbanization."

Henry G. Parks Jr., 4th District Councilman, lead the panel on "Impact of Promotions," and William J. Curtis, president, and publisher of National Leader, the only colored beverage journal, discussed "Impact of the New Marketing Approach."

Findings and conclusions were numerous and wide-ranging, but all pointed to one inescapable fact:

"We're ready!"

CLASS WAS Interwoven throughout the convention from beginning to end. The brilliant fashion show by the Pauline Brooks models was, without doubt, the best one showcased by our folks in many a day.

Hospitality rooms, sponsored by breweries and distillers, left nothing to be desired.

The cabaret dance, where elegantly gowned ladies and fashionable clad gents gave a new look to the once-off limits Southern Hotel gave more evidence that we're on our way and more importantly, know where we're going.

Executives and members of the host chapter, headed by national president Frank Reddish, did themselves proud.

They are:

Floyd Bartz, chapter president, and operator of the North End Lounge, Charles P. Tilghman, vice president, Sphinx; Milton Hardrick, secretary; Maceo Paysour, financial secretary, Maceo Lounge.

Walter Thomas, Kleeco; Walter Brown, Uptown; Theophilus Jones, Jones Cocktail Lounge, were executive committeemen.

Others include Joseph Quill, Little Joe's; Askew Gatewood, Red Rooster; Robert Haynes, Lamport, William Adams, executive board; Leon Winborne, Bridge; George Walker, Jones's Paradise, Louis Harris, Katy Korner;

Top riders eye Pimlico meet

PIMLICO, Md. — Seldom has a race meeting in Maryland attracted the wealth of riding and training talent which is being assembled for the 28 - day meeting at Pimlico, starting Wednesday and running through Dec. 14.

Walter Blum, currently well ahead in the race for national riding honors, heads the list of prospective jockeys for the Pimlico session and he'll be joined by a very illustrious group.

* * *

ONE OF these will be Steve Brooks, enshrined in the National Jockeys Hall of Fame last fall.

Three previous national champions are scheduled to display their wares at Pimlico. They are Ronnie Ferraro, who led the list in 1962, Charley Burr, the 1951 leader; and Joe Culmone, who tied Bill Shoemaker for the No. 1 spot in 1950.

Ron Turcotte, top Canadian booter, Sam Boulmetis, president of the Jockeys' Guild, Wayne Chambers, Ray Broussard Bill Harmatz, Larry Gilligan, Nick Shuk, Bob McCurdy, Howard Grant Tommy Lee, Larry Reynolds, and Jessed Davidson are among the top reinsmen slated to be under colors.

Win in Richmond 'must' for Morgan

RICHMOND, Va., — Morgan State College runs onto the second of three tough hurdles in the rigid obstacle course between her and a successful defense of the CIAA football championship here tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon.

The Golden Bears of Coach Earl Banks are scheduled to tangle with Tom Harris' scrappy Virginia Union Panther eleven at 1:30 p.m., at Hovey Field in a game that is of vital importance to both.

Deadlocked with records of 3 - 1 and with Dickinson ratings (system of CIAA evaluations) of 20.86, both Morgan and Union consider victory a "must" in this meeting.

* * *

THE DICKINSON system of ratings places unbeaten Morgan State College in first place and St. Augustine's College of Raleigh, N. C., second, ahead of the third place tie between the Bears and panther.

However, neither of tomorrow's opponents here regard St. Augustine's position with any measure of seriousness because in their four remaining games, the Saints will be competing with second - division teams. Victories over second - class opposition carry penalties rather than advantages for title contenders.

EARL BANKS

AS A consequence, Banks, Morgan having rotten luck and Harris realize that if either the first hurdle last week-ther is to have a shot at over-end by beating A and T Coltaking North Carolina, he has lege, 22 - 0, in Baltimore, to get by this one here. Than field an obstination to dispose ticularly is this true of Morgan the Panthers and their gan, since she has already hope that either they or A been beaten by the Eagles and T can top the Eagles, and Union gets a head - on The latter takes on NC on opportunity on this same lot Thanksgiving Day at Greensboro — SAM LACY.

North Carolina College in first place and St. Augustine's College of Raleigh, N. C., second, ahead of the third place tie between the Bears and panther.

However, neither of tomorrow's opponents here regard St. Augustine's position with any measure of seriousness because in their four remaining games, the Saints will be competing with second - division teams. Engineers and Scientists

We'd like you to do some serious thinking about doing some serious thinking for us. Why Bendix? Why not Bendix? We're well established. Reputable. Vigorous. Progressive. Creative. Diversified. Modern. A leader. Hard working. Generous. Well, if all this gives you the idea that Bendix is the place to be if you are looking for an opportunity to grow, who's to blame you? Right now, we'd particularly like to talk to people with the following qualifications:

NUCLEAR PHYSICISTS
We are currently undertaking a complex investigation in the area of applied nuclear physics. The work will be in challenging, stimulating, and heretofore unexplored areas. Requirements exist for MS and PhD theoretical and experimental physicists possessing backgrounds in transport theory, nuclear instrumentation or nuclear instrumentation circuit design for satellite applications, and radiation effects.

SYSTEMS ANALYSTS
MS or better preferred. Heavy experience in the synthesis and evaluation of complex defense and space systems, with background in areas such as orbit mechanics, multibody problems, mission analysis, and cost and performance effectiveness.

MICROWAVE AND ANTENNA ENGINEER
Capable of group leadership in microwave and component design. Good analytical and hardware background desired. Experience is required in character multiplier, slab line and strip line design techniques, and ferrite devices as related to microwave equipment for space vehicles.

MAINTAINIBILITY PROJECT ENGINEER
Responsible for creation and implementation of maintainability program plans as a part of overall systems logistics program, to include maintenance analysis of the system, identifying tasks required to support system, i.e., repairability and serviceability. Some supervisoly experience desirable.

Positions are also available for other degree Engineers:
Publication Engineers
Reliability Engineers
