Catholic Census: big Sunday job

Volunteer workers in Sunday's mammoth archdiocese Census will spend about census spokesman said today, but the total work accomplished by the volunteers will amount to about 200,000 man-hours.

The census, first count of Catholics in the Archdiocese of Baltimore in history, is being sponsored by the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Men.

First returns are expected to start arriving in the census office at 408 N. Charles St. shortly after 5, and continue throughout the evening.

Final count of the area comprising Baltimore and nine outlying counties will not be tallied for about a month.
