NYASALAND ENVOY

BLANTYRE — J. David Rubadiri has been designated as Nyasaland's first diplomatic representative to the United States. Rubadiri, whose appointment was announced last week, will officially assume his duties on July 6, 1964, when Nyasaland becomes independent.

BALTIMORE AFTER DARK On the TOWN with the Pub Crawler

"Baby Lawrence" billed as the world's greatest jazz tap dancer, is currently cutting a rug at Andy's Bamboo Lounge.

As happy as a lark to corral the dancer of supper clubs and television fame, Andy has announced that the floor of the Bamboo will tremble to tapping feet for an indefinite period.

The Fabulous Flink and his band will handle the background music. 'Tis a swinging (or tapping) combination for sure.

This Turkey Day weekend brings an opportunity to partake of the post Thanksgiving offerings of another real nice combination. This would be the pert girl manager Shirley and her sidekick, Moya at the Aces Wild, which is a fairly accurate description of this quaint but delightful house that is the magnet for seekers of the happenings.

The Tall Man's Kleeco Club, with its new and exciting decor on the second floor level is conducive to the most festive celebrating mood as any similar spot around.

And too there is an added bonus in saying hello to the gracious and delovely Greta and Jerry who are as enchanting as the atmosphere created by our man Walter, the man about town stands 10 feet tall, despite his neat and pintsize statute.

* * *

CELEBRATING reminds us too that a lot is in store at Al Quill's Casino, the place where the smart set meet and swoon to the soulful and swinging organ magic of Cornell Muldrow and the Bim Bam Boo.

Frank Reddish, the nice guy who heads NNLBA, is of Jones Cocktail Lounge fame and he is overdue for a doff of the old lid for his generous contribution to that hard-working women's group which gets things done.

Frank and local prexy Floyd Bartz helped the charming ladies' mightly when they chipped in a sizable bunk in behalf of the beverage men. By the by, have you been "down to the-farm" hideaway lately? You should, ya know.

The Foxes of Red Fox, Morrises of Carnival Lounge, Big Bill at Alphine Villa, Sid Polski of Knotty Pine and the men and women behind the scene at Cabana, Hilton House, Krazy Kat, New Colony, and Thee Jones wish you had a swinging Turkey day and are spreading the welcome mat for your weekend visit.

BE OCCING U THERE, NATCH!

Arena Players to do 'Take a Giant Step'

The Arena Players have announced that they are in rehearsals for their forthcoming production "Take A Giant Step", a drama in two acts by Louis Peterson.

David Vaughn and William Washington III will alternate in the role of a high school lad who has been suspended for a week because he resented something his history teacher said about colored persons in the Civil War.

Mary Carter Smith will appear as the semi-invalid grandmother who comes to

Maceo Dailey praised by BJC paper

Recent issue of Baltimore Junior College newspaper entitled "Athletics and Scholarship," praises Maceo Dailey, as the hard driving point scorer for BJC's basketball team, is a fine student on or off the basketball court.

The article continues:—

"Presently enrolled in the arts and science curriculum, Maceo plans to further his education through his athletic ability.

"Well-known throughout the city for his eminent basketball potential, Maceo got his start playing for Dobkin's Boys Club while in junior high school.

"Later he won recognition playing of Forest Park's varsity team.

After graduation, he came to BJC in the fall of '62 where he had one of his finest and most exciting basketball seasons.

"That year BJC won the Tri-State Conference Championship, and Maceo was voted to the Tri-State all star team as well as the National Junior College Region Fifteen, All Star Team.

When asked to comment on Maceo's great talent, Frank Szymanski, BJC's basketball coach, said: "Maceo Dailey, since coming to BJC, has adjusted himself to activities and is extremely devoted to both.

"He can be expected to continue this fine display of

Colts hope to start fast finish vs. Skins

Their two-game winning streak snapped by Los Angeles' 17-16 triumph last Sunday, the Baltimore Colts will attempt to regain their victory form against the Redskins in D. C. Stadium Sunday.

The game will be televised back to Baltimore with the kickoff scheduled for 2:05 p.m. (EST).

* * *

THE REDSKINS, who trimmed the Philadelphia Eagles, 13-10, last Sunday, offer a pair of the league's most dangerous offensive threats in quarterback Norman Snead and flanker Bobby Mitchell, plus a top-notch rookie tight end in Pat Richter.

Defensively, the 'Skins exhibited their best play of the season in jamming up the Eagles' attack last week.

* * *

THE COLTS' fledgling standouts, tackle Bob Vogel and end John Mackey on the offense, and defensive tackle Fred Miller, continue to excel.

The 6-2, 217-pound Mackey ranks third among the Colts' receivers with 26 catches for 514 yards and second in kickoff returns with eight for 254 yards.

While the bounti'ul freshman crop, which also includes quarterback Gary Cuozzo and flanke- Willie Richardson, provides en- couragement for the future, a 39-year-old veteran of 13 pro campaigns continues to pace the Baltimore scorers.

Jim Martin's three field goals in the Coliseum jacked his 1963 output to 17 in 28 attempts.

Some of the Bullets' trouble again came from the foul line. They hit 23 of 36 while the Royals collected on 34 of 42. A woman fan tried to help them at one juncture by yelling, "Miss it (Jerry) Lucas!" Of course he made it.

The home team did better in the rebounding area than the visitors, getting 77 to 62 for the Royals, but they didn't have the same luck hitting the basket. They took 34 more shots and still came up three points short.

The Bullets' Terry Dischinger was the game's top scorer with 29. Other Bullets in the double column were Bellamy, 26; Bob Johnson, 25; Sihugo Green, 18, and Shue, 10.

For Cincinnati, Wayne Embry matched the Big O's 28; Jerry Lucas, 19; Bob Boozer, 17; Bud Olsen, 14, and Arlen Bockhorn, 10.

3,461 fans witnessed the game.

Bullets lose another close cage contest

The Bullets started slowly Wednesday night against the Cincinnati Royals, picked up steam in the third quarter and seemed headed for victory until Oscar Robertson took control.

Playing without ousted coach Bob Leonard, the Bullets, down by 10 points until putting on a surge to tie it 64-64 at halftime, bowed finally 122 to 119 as the Big O scored 16 of his 28 points in the final 14½ minutes.

Next chance for the close-run Bullets to get back into the win column comes tonight (Friday) when Wilt Chamberlain and the San Francisco Warriors bring their smooth coalitioned into the Civic Center.

While the Bullets were losing another close one Wednesday night, Wilt was setting a new record by laying in 18 straight baskets without missing. The old record was 13

GENE SHUE, who coached the Bullets after coach Leonard was thrown out of the game early in the first quarter for protesting a second offensive foul call against his Walt Bellamy, scored 10 points.

N. C. Eagles nip A&T, 6-0, to cop CIAA grid crown

GREENSBORO, N.C.—The North Carolina College Eagles defeated the A and T College Aggies 6-0 in the annual Carolina Classic here on Thanksgiving Day to take the CIAA championship.

The Eagles scored early in the first period and made it stand up behind a rugged defense and the fine kicking of Billie Shropshire, a freshman standout.

With the victory and the CIAA title went also to NCC permanent possession of the giant Bull-Eagle trophy, having won three games out of the past four-year series and the annual keepsake trophy, both given by the Greensboro and Durham Bottlers of Coca-Cola.

THE AGGIES, out performed the Eagles in about everything except the score board. They led in first downs 13-4, in rushing yardage, 136 yards to 39 and in total yardage, 219 to 166.

The Eagles outgained through the air by 131 yards to 83 yards.

Shropshire's kicking kept the Aggies deep in their own territory for most of the game. He averaged 40.4 yards in eight kicks, one going for 51 yards.

NCC SCORED at 8:49 in the first period as Aaron Martin passed 4 yards to Robert Evans. On the previous play Martin had hit Robert Cureton with a pass good for 56 yards. The kick attempt failed.

Cornell Gordon, and quarterback, and Cureton, an end, were selected as Most Valuable Players by the opposing coaches.

A holiday crowd of slightly less than 10,000 witnessed the contest played beneath threatening skies. A light drizzle fell in the final period.

Interesting long-term assignments are now open for you by join Chrysler-Huntsville working on this vital part of our nation's space program.
Your qualifications: BS or MS degree in Engineering with applicable experience Background in aerospace field desirable, but not essential.

AEROSPACE MECHANICS ENGINEERING
Positions exist in each of the following aerodynamic disciplines: (1) Orbital and trajectory analysis including parametric and optimization studies for vehicle flights; 2) flight dynamics - i. e. studies to determine vehicle stability considering the elastic modes of the vehicle; 3) theoretical aerodynamics - i. e. studies encompassing fluid mechanics and space vehicle performance analyses; 4) aerothermodynamics involving formulation of theoretical approaches to determine aerodynamic heating on space vehicle configurations.

STRUCTURAL DYNAMICISTS
To evaluate stiffness, rigidity, and mass and inertia distribution of complex elastic structures. Responsibility includes determining methods of analyzing vibration characteristics of structural components and structurally-mounted systems, as well as predicting dynamic characteristics of elastic structures subjected to environmental or control system excitation.

VIBRATIONS & ACOUSTICS ENGINEERS
To determine structural environment of space vehicles, by evaluating vibration and acoustics test data. Will determine specifications for structurally mounted components and recommend design modifications for reduction of overall vibratory environment.

SYSTEMS OPERATIONS ENGINEERS
To establish operations and maintenance plans and procedures. Coordinate and establish GSE, servicing, and facilities requirements among various design and operations groups. Prepare technical descriptions of complete launch complex and vehicle. Launch, static test, and field operations experience required.

QUALITY CONTROL ENGINEERS
To develop, analyze, and evaluate quality control instructions and test procedures. Will make recommendations for corrective action and design changes. Work includes final performance testing and specification preparation for testing assemblies and components of guidance and control systems, RF or TM systems, and overall space vehicle systems. 3-5 years experience required plus BS in EE.
