CARL ROWAN RIDING HIGH IN FINLAND

By ROSEMARIE TYLER

WASHINGTON

Carl T. Rowan, the 38 - year - old Washington ambassador to Finland is the sort of man who combines diplomacy with bowling, and his very departure from protocol has made him one of America's most successful ambassadors.

When he arrived in Finland 6 months ago, his brown color in a very nordic country made him distinctive. In just a few weeks, after his arrival his approach to the still world of protocol and diplomacy made him unique.

NOT WANTING to be an "ivory tower diplomat," he soon endeared himself to the Finnish people by his accessability, his wide range of contacts beyond the prescribed circle of diplomacy, and his avid interest in Finnish people, their problems, and interests.

Each morning for one hour, the new ambassador to Finland spends time trying to master the Finnish language, and with more than just a little success.

His success shows that he is now able to begin and end his speeches with a greeting, and a farewell in Finnish.

"You have no idea how well this goes over with the Finnish people, "says the slowing talking, Tennessee-born, ex-Navy officer.

His sons, 10 - year - old Geoffrey, and 11 - year - old Carl, Jr. speak some Finnish but their contemporaries are too anxious to learn Englisa to teach them Finnish.

* * *

IN ADDITION, they attend the American school. To the boys disgruntlement, they have to attend classes ½ day on Saturday.

The ambassador does not agree with this. "I feel that children need to relax on the weekend. While in the states, they involved themselves with various sports. This gave them an opportunity to relate to their peers, and learn to win and lose in competitions."

Despite the handicap that school provides to his son's extra-curricular activities, young Geoffrey has currently topped his Dad's bowling score.

The ambassador is the captain of the No. 1 bowling team at the embassy in Helsenki, the capital of Finland. While away, his son "stood in" for his father.

With a hearty laugh, and noticeable pride, he said, "Do you know that racial scored 211 with ten pins! I don't know how he did it! He broke all previous records. He knocked down 700 pins!"

FOR THE coming year, the Rowans will have only two of their three children. Barbara, their 19-year-old daughter returned with her father to enroll at Rosary Hill in Buffalo, N.Y.

Mrs. Vivien Rowan, a petite well dressed woman is as much of a surprise to the Finnish people as Ambassador Rowan. She was most surprising when seen hanging clothes on the line!

When assessing his wife's contributions to diplomacy, he says, "She works as many hours for Uncle Sam as I do."

* * *

IN WASHINGTON for a briefing, and a talk with the late President Kennedy, Ambassador Rowan spoke of the "tremendous affection" Finland has for the U.S.

"They are very sympathetic toward the President; . . . and they consider the President strong in his convictions on the race issue.

"They are very sympathetic toward the President. While they have a serious concern for this country's inability to solve its racial problems, they feel he is strong in his convictions about solving the problem."

While Finland's trade with the U.S. is only about 6 or 7 per cent of their market (" due to the distance"), they buy mostly consumer goods from us. Proximity makes it possible for them to buy cars from Germany, and petroleum from the Soviets.

* * *

"MOST OFTEN, they buy raw materials from the Soviets, and sell the manufactured product back to the Russians," he explained.

And do the Russians respect Finnish neutrality as much as the U.S.?

With a smile, he said, "Well, they give lip service to Finnish neutrality."

An ex-newsman of national reputation, and formerly, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs, he is a surprise to the Finnish newsmen when having a conference.

BEARS' BUSYBODY — Bernard Blanks (21) was one of the busiest athletes on the field Thursday as Morgan captured traditional Thanksgiving Day battle with Virginia State College, 30-6. Sophomore halfback from Whitesboro, N.J., scored first touchdown and powered over for two separate 2-point conversions to insure Golden Bear victory. AFRO camera shows Blanks about to be dropped by Trojans' Linwood Hart after a 16-yard punt return.

Dr. King Warns Danville

Tells city officials 'We mean business'

DANVILLE, Va. — Prepare for "massive direct action," the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. told Danville colored citizens last week. He warned city officials: "We mean business."

The civil rights leader told a cheering crowd that packed the High Street Baptist Church "There's a mighty good fight getting ready to take place in Danville — a good nonviolent fight."

Twenty representatives of Kings Southern Christian Leadership Conference are already in the city to whip up enthusiasm for the civil rights battle.

* * *

"THEY WILL be here until Danville is ready to recognize the colored man as a citizen of this community and he is so respected," King declared.

The civil rights crusader has promised that Danville "will have bigger demonstrations than any we've ever held before."

Earlier, the Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, a chief aide to King, had said Danville was a prime target for desegregation activities by SCLC. He alluded that if city officials did not meet colored desegregation demands demonstrations would resume.

* * *

LAST SUMMER, the city was the scene of street demonstations for months during which time more than 300 persons were arrested.

Meanwhile, Mayor Julian R. Stinson said he will not step down from the city council. A group of white lawyers and businessmen planned to circulate petitions calling for all nine councilmen to resign and for holding a special election for voters to pass anew on them. It acted to protest a meeting last week of five councilmen with a group of colored civil rights leaders.

King has repeated that negotiations "always are sought first." "Direct action" will resume if negotiations fail, he has promised.

IN OTHER civil rights news, these events happened in:

NORTH CAROLINA

The 15 white ministers for New England jailed in racial demonstrations in Williamston were released last week. They posted $500 bonds each pending hearing on multiple charges in Recorder's Court on Dec. 2.

The charges include parading without a permit, blocking traffic, and violating of a Superior Court order for actions. One of the ministers, Professor Harvey Cox of Andover Newton Theological School, described Williamston as "a symbol of racalcitrance against desegregation."

"In Elizabeth City, a mistrial was declared in the trial of Morris Earl Francis on charges of trespassing during a racial demonstration Sept. 22. The mistrial was declared after a deadlock was reported by the jury, composed of 10 whites and two colored persons. Three other young men convicted on similar charges by an all - white jury were each sentenced to serve 12-month term in the youth prison camp at Butner.

PENNSYLVANIA

Charges will be dropped against 240 civil rights demonstrators arrested in Chester last week, according to mayor Joseph L. Eyre. He said the action is the result of an agreement that demonstrators have promised to cease this type of protest.

NEW YORK

Brooklyn colored citizens are threatening to bodily jam one of the three bridges linking Brooklyn and Manhattan and tie up traffic unless colored persons are given more jobs on public construction projects.

ARKANSAS

A 19-year-old youth, Noah Washington, who said he had been "duped" and "brainwashed" into participating in a civil rights demonstration, begged a judge in Helena for forgiveness and threw himself on the mercy of the court, but wound up with a tougher sentence than any of seven co-defendants. One of his co-defendants was William Hansen, white, of Pine Bluff, who recently disclosed his marriage to a colored girl, Ruth Buffington. While others received 30-day jail sentences and were fined $250 each, Washington was sentenced to 60-day term and $250 fine.

* * *

GEORGIA

The Fulton County legislative delegation last week unanimously approved a resolution calling for the desegregation of the city's hotels and motels. Colored leaders representing the Atlanta Summit Leadership Conference, backed by 80 civic and civil rights organizations, had outlined a master plan for the "total desegregation" of Atlanta. The Chamber of Commerce has been asked to spell out plans to "implement" the recommendation that hotels and restaurants be desegregated.

MISSOURI

Speaking before 200 members of the Bar Association of St. Louis, Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the NAACP discussed discrimination in voting. Wilkins said that in the South about 25 percent of colored persons are registered to vote. He pointed out that contrast in Mississippi had results in only 25,821 of 421,866 eligible colored persons were registered.

KENTUCKY

None of 20 desegregated motels and hotels reported any significant number of colored customers, according to a survey made by the social-research service of the University of Kentucky. The businesses included 10 at Louisville, four at Lexington, two at Covington, and one each at Ashland, Berea, Corbin, and Frankfort.

MISSISSIPPI

Proceedings in Jackson against four colored persons and six whites arrested in church desegregation attempts have been temporarily halted. Attorneys for the group have filed a petition in Federal court to remove the charges from city jurisdiction.

A sheriff in Clarksdale said last week that James H. Meredith provided his own transportation to a civil rights rally last spring. Gov. Ross R. Barnett had charged that Meredith had been driven to the rally in Clarksdale in a car rented by the Department of Justice.

LOUISIANA

CORE and the Southern Conference Educational Fund have both filed Federal suits attacking Louisana's discrimination in voting. The two organizations have made an appeal for Federal protection at elections. "Possible violence was predicted by CORE due to "the likelihood" that 12 colored candidates in the state will defeat white candidates.

The Justice Department, in another action, sought new powers to inspect voting records in Louisana and indicated new litigation concerning voter registration may be filed.

MASSACHUSETTS

Frank Walker, New England regional president of the NAACP, has written to all members of the New England congressional delegation calling for employment of colored persons in their offices. Walker, in Pittsfield, asked the lawmakers for descriptions of the number and responsibility of colored employes in their offices.

A BOOST FROM 'BUDDY' — Claude (Buddy) Young of the National Brewery Public Relations staff presents 50 tickets to Mrs. Lillian Parrot Murphy, principal of Douglass High School. The tickets, which will admit 50 outstanding students to a special, redcarpet showing of the movie "Gone Are The Days," to benefit the AFRO's Mrs. Santa Fund, were donated by the National Brewing Company. Mrs. Murphy said honor students such as Elmer Brooks, 11th grade Hi-Y president, in-center, will get the tickets.

What Kind Of President Is Johnson?

What kind of a President are we to expect from Lyndon B. Johnson? We do not know.

There is a suspicion that Johnson is not Kennedy and that there will be a change in the demands or Congress to pass civil rights bill.

There is suspicion that the appointment and upgrading of more government workers may taper off.

That the Attorney General's hands will be tied and he will be among the first to leave Johnson's cabinet.

What the new President will do, it will take time to determine.

We have to wait and watch.

The President (Andrew Johnson) who succeeded Lincoln was a stinker and Congress came within one vote of impeaching him and removing him from office.

This new (Lyndon) Johnson must not be like the old one (Andrew).

The urge is to bring peace in the South, to end hatred by giving up on the civil rights bill.

That price of peace is too dear.

We will not pay it, however long we may be compelled to suffer second class citizenship.

Only those willing to die for freedom obtain it.

Let's remember this.

We do not wait on Presidents.

We spoke the great truths of freedom and citizenship before Lincoln, Roosevelt or Kennedy came to the White House.

Kennedy phrased our hopes in deathless language.

So did the clergy who have so long been silent.

Those who want freedom must fight for it, die for it.

Our fight must continue unceasingly, inexorably, uncompromisingly, no matter who is the President or in Congress.
