Another case has been adopted by Girl Scout Troop 691.

While talking to Committee Chairman, Mrs. Ethel Griffin, Mrs. Santa learned that many troops started earlier in the year to raise money just to help families for Christmas.

MRS. MOZELLE JOHNSON of Brownie Troop 314, said her girls are looking forward to making a basket and finding the other things for the family they adopted.

Mrs. Johnson and her assistant, Mrs. Anna Freeman will be kept busy, by these active girls.

Individual spirit - giving families like Mrs. Vig Anderson of Callow Ave., are donating baskets of food.

Mrs. Anderson called Mrs. Santa and asked for two families that she might be able to help.

Clothes are being sent by Mrs. Shirley Muldrow, Mrs. Nancy Coleman, and Mrs. Violet Birsee.

The Contempary Wives Club called and asked if Mrs. Santa had a family that could use some clothes that will fit from a baby to a six or seven years old.

MRS. MARY MILLER of the Eight Pal Charity Club, stopped in the office, to find out if her club could help Mrs. Santa with some of her problems.

The Nuxi Alpha Chapter of the Alpha Chi-Pi Omega Sorority sent in a donation of $20 for the Mrs. Santa fund. The Ten Silhouettes gave a $10 donation also.

Individual donations are still coming in. Mrs. Claire Peck Parker of $511 E. Biddle St. sent in $5 to be used by Mrs. Santa.

Say when!

Worry not, it's just the 13th

Superstitious persons ought to be wary of today (Friday 13).

Not only does the day itself portend of damonic dangers, but such dangers are diabalically compounded if a black cat strays across one's path, or if salt is spilt, or if the stars are not in the right places.

But for those who are not afraid, it is just another day. Almost!

One winter coat has to be shared by two

"All I want for Christmas is a picture of our beloved late President, John F. Kennedy, and some food for my children."

This was the plea of Mrs. R. as she talked to Mrs. Santa this week.

Mrs. R. is the mother of four children ages 11, 10, 8, and 7. She also shares what she gets from the welfare with her teenage god daughter.

They live in a run-down neighborhood. The windows are bare. The walls of the rooms have large holes, no paint. The floors are rugles and an old pot-belly stove serves as central heating.

The family has been living in poverty for the past six years, since their father deserted, but this has not affected their closenets.

There is only one winter coat in the household big enough for an adult, and Mrs. R. shares this with her god-daughter.

If you would like to help this family, please call Mrs. Santa at Muberry 5-6015.

—County rights

segregated policy.

AS THE Gwynn Oak arrests assumed national and international importance, pressure mounted on County officials to remedy the situation.

Under pressure from an ad hoc committee of clergymen and civil rights leaders, Agnew pushed enactment of a Human Relations Commission through the County Council and Holofcener, a young insurance executive, was voted its temporary chairman.

Holofcener and fellow commissioners negotiated a settlement in the Gwynn Oak impasse and the park was integrated by early Fall.

With Holofcener sparking the Commission, the new nine - member panel, then turned its attention to other racial concerns and conducted open hearings on the extent of segregation in county public schools and housing.

Mr. Agnew's demands that Holofcener step down as chairman began soon after the Human Relations began to probe discrimination in housing.

The Commission itself is split on the question of Holofcener's leadership. The Commission members fall into three camps on racial matters, Former Judge E. Everett Lane, Eugene King, Rural Thompson, the three colored members are the most liberal and progressive racial. They are closely followed in attitude by Rabbi Abraham Schusterman.

In the middle of the road racially are Don Kellet, the Colts executive, Gordon Power and Mrs. Lillian Hildebrand.

The conservatives are listed as the Rev. Howard Rittenpusch and Owen Hennigan.

IN A RECENT vote, Holofcener won a slim vote of confidence in his leadership with the liberals on his side and the conservatives against his continuing as chairman.

Mr. Agnew is contending that Holofcener does not have the temperament or vision necessary to run a human relations commission. The young county insurance man is self - admittedly a novice in race relations but what he lacks in diplomacy he makes up in energy and enthusiasm.

Until Mr. Agnew comes forth with new information, the conclusion of County political observers is that the war against Holofcener is prompted by his readiness to step into racial areas the county power structure would prefer to ignore.

When Holofcener began probing housing in the county, he was inviting attack.

It is doubtful that Agnew, who had organized the Human Relations Commission only after civil rights fighters

Since county voters will associate the Commission with Agnew, the County Executive would like to put in a chairman who will proceed at a much slower pace.

What has happened in Baltimore County is that a hard-headed politican who wants to be re - elected by a predominantly white votership is in a fight to the finish with a hard - headed idealist who took his job as human relations c o m m i s s i o n e r seriously.

—Rights bill

such a move has produced the needed majority.

Some 344 discharge petitions have been filed in the House in the past 40 years, according to the publication Congressional Quarterly. Twenty - two of them caused a bill to reach the House floor directly, but only two measures wound up as laws.

BACK IN 1960, some 200 - odd votes, but short of the requirement, "encouraged" the Rules Committee to report out the civil rights bill of that year.

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D.-Minn.), the Assist-Leader, was optimistic Sunday about the eventual passage by the House of the legislation, "pretty much as came from the Judiciary Committee."

He told ABC's "Issues and Answers" that he was "convinced" the Senate can and would pass the House version.
