WILLIAM McCONKEY
Carling Brewery

McConkey named by Carling Beer

William McConkey, 31, of 2878 W. Lanvale St., has been promoted by Carling Brewing Company to the position of special sales representative, it has been announced by H. L. Dickinson, sales manager for the area served by Carling's Baltimore plant.

Mr. McConkey, a native of Baltimore, joined Carling just after it opened its new plant in 1961, serving as steward in the Carling Room.

He had formerly worked at the Maryland Club, the Elkridge Club and with various caterers, and he has some renown as a chef.

Mr. McConkey is the son of David and Rose McConkey. He attended Douglas High School. He is married to the former Mary Sprull and they have two children, William 13, and Mary, 7.

All because of a missing wig

When an officer testified that he arrested a woman for screaming in the street that someone had stolen her wig, laughter came from the courtroom ant the defendant.

Mrs. Mary Lloyd, 28, 700 block Grantley St., pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct decided to testify and was fined $25.

Patrolman Stanley Brown of the Western District, told Judge Joseph L. Broccolino he arrested Mrs. Lloyd when she refused to stop yelling.

He said:

"She just kept on screaming. 'Somebody stole my $170 wig'. It's gone, it's gone, my $170 wig."

Show at Museum

Opening Dec. 17 and continuing through Jan. 5, The Baltimore Musum of Art is presenting the first showing of a most unusual exhibition of Alaskan Indian and Eskimo crafts.

Prepared by the Indian Arts and Crafts Board of the Department of the Interior, the unique collection of contemporary carvings, jewelry, and dolls will travel by "bush" flights to 24 Alaska villages to stimulate craft production among native groups following the initial showing at the Museum.

14 players selected for Pro Bowl game

NEW YORK — The annual Pro Bowl game, scheduled by the National Football League for Los Angeles, Jan. 12, will feature a total of 14 colored players.

The West Squad, quarterbacked by Baltimore's John Unitas, will take the field with eight tan stars. The East, with New York's Y.A. Tittle at the helm, will suit up six.

Perhaps the biggest surprise of the picks was John Mackey, tight end of the Baltimore Colts. Mackey, a rookie, took the play away from an assortment of veterans with far greater experience.

* * *

OTHERS SELECTED for the heavily-loaded West unit were guard Jim Parker of the Colts, and halfback Dick Bass of the Los Angeles Rams, for the offensive eleven, plus five defensive luminaries.

These are end Willie Davis of the Green Bay Packers, tackleRoger Brown of the Detoroit Lions, halfback Herb Adderley of the Packers, halfback Abe Woodson of the San Francisco 4 ers, and halfback Roosevelt Taylor of the Chicago Bears.

* * *

CE Jim Brown as fullback for the East, were the following.

Fullback John Henry Johnson of the Pittsburgh Steelers, halfback Tim Brown of the Philadelphia Eagles, and halfback Don Perkins of the Dallas Cowboys.

Also halfbacks Bobby Mitskins, and Erich Barnes of the New York Giants.

Bullets set Saturday for ladies, kids

The Baltimore Bullets announced yesterday (Thursday) that Saturday will be "Ladies Night and Toys for Tots Night" at Civic Center.

For the price of one male admission, a fan of the fair sex will be ushered to a reserved seat for the game with the colorful Cincinnati Royals, featuring scoring leader Oscar Robertson, rookie star Jerry Lucas and veteran handyman Wayne Embry.

This is the crew that comes in to do battle with the Bullets and their own hot shots, Walt Bellamy, Terry Dischinger and Gus Johnson.

* * *

ALSO IN the Saturday night plans is a Bullet scheme to help furnish toys for underprivileged children in the area.

Twenty thousand toys - for tots -certificates have been allocated at Shell Oil Co., filling stations, and may be obtained upon request.

One of these certificates, plus a new toy and 50 cents may be exchanged for a reserved seat location for the Bullets - Royals contest.

The toys thus acquired will be turned over by the basketball club to the Marine Corps Reserve for distribution among needy kids of the area.

* * *

ANOTHER TICKET innovation has also been announced by Bullets general manager Paul Hoffman.

It covers an offer to any student — college, high school, junior high or elementary — to attend any or all of the 27 remaining Civic Center games for the price of a dollar.

Camp Fire Girls have mitten trees

Now that the holiday season is fast appraaching, Mitten Trees are bursting forth all over the city and surrounding counties. The first one, sponsored by the Wakanda Camp Fire Girls and the Singing Blue Birds under the leadership of Mrs. James G. Wench, "bloomed" at the Westport Branch of the Union Trust Company Dec. 9 and will stay up until the 20.

Over 1700 pairs of mittens have been given to children with cold hands in the past five years by trees sponsored by the Baltimore Council of Camp Fire Girls and other civic groups.

The Blue Birds and Camp Fire Girls invite the public to join in this delightful project and spread a little joy through these flowering trees.

Philip B. Schoering is President of the council, a Community Chest agency,
