—Cancer study

Giving up smoking reduces the risk.

2. There is strong evidence that cigarette smoking increases the risk of cardiovascular (heart) disease and chronic respiratory disease.

Further studies are also underway to determine if additional recommendations would be in the public interest.

STATISTICAL information about the relationship between cigarettes and cancer has been higrly controversial.

The American Cancer Society, the Rosewell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, which is the largest cancer research center in the world, and other research centers hold a definite link between health and smoking.

The American Cancer Society reported that the risk of dying from verified lung cancer was about 64 times as great for smokers of two or more packs of cigarettes per day, as for nonsmokers.

The Society also reported that 41,000 persons die of lung cancer annually in the United States at a rate ten times what it was 30 years ago.

Dr. Prather, who gave up smoking some 30 cigarettes per day when he developed a cough, said "evidence is conclusive" that smoking is linked to cancer.

The "conclusive evidence" has been disputed and the report Saturday will do much to decide the issue.

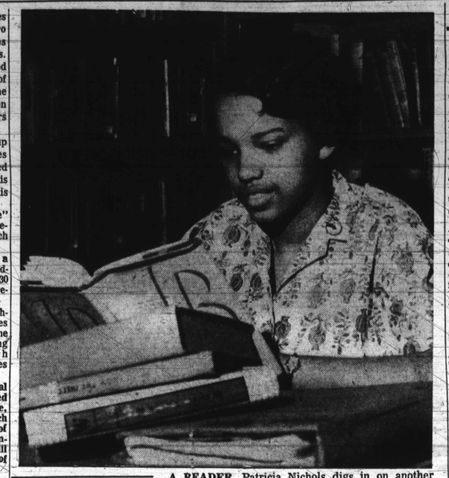
WBAL-TV will feature a special, documentary broadcast Saturday from 7:30-8:30 p.m. on smoking and its relationship to health.

Top scientists, researchers, medical personalities will be interviewed on the program. Also, a smoking withdrawal clinic and high school anti-smoking classes will be shown.

Locally, an experimental program is being conducted at Baltimore City College, said Dr. Prather, to teach young people the dangers of smoking. Whether the campaign will be extended will depend upon the results of the experiment.

While there are isolated cases like Dr. Prather giving up smoking after doing so for 50 years, and like the banker in New York City who placed a ban on employee smoking in his 56 Long Island branches, the sales of cigarettes appear to be holding steady.

The Maryland Tobacco Growers Association reported there has been no diminishing of demand for cigarette tobacco.



A READER, Patricia Nichols digs in on another book.

Radiance marks Pat Nichols, 17

Patricia Nichols, 17, a senior at Western High School, is a radiant and remarkable person.

She has charm, leadership qualities, intelligence and energy — attributes which best can be summed up in one word: quality.

With buttery ease, she has the ability to flitter about in several worlds; in society or in books, as a leader or a follower.

ENGLISH, A subject which she hopes to teach high school students after her collegiate days, is her major interest. She also has a keen interest in the French language.

One of the reasons she wanted to attend Western was because of its creative writing class, a class in which she is now enrolled.

"I love writing," she said, "and I worked very hard to get into the course."

Miss Nichols' interest in writing is adjunct to her interest in reading.

Over the yule season holidays, she read all of Edward Albee's plays that were available in paperback. Her interest in Albee, an American writer of the "absurd," was stimulated by a recent live production of the play at a local playhouse.

"The play I liked best was 'Zoo Story' she said, "it's terrific."

ALTHOUGH SHE has read recently some fiction by novelist Virginia Woolf, Miss Nichols said that she is becoming more interested in non-fiction by writers such as Vance Packard, who wrote the "Status Seekers."

Her interest in plays and books does not appear to stem from a stuffy intellectual attitude.

She enjoys reading much the same way she enjoys working with the United Nations Youth of Maryland of which she is secretary), or the way she likes working as a counselor at a Girl Scout camp during the summer.

AT WESTERN she sings on the choir, and is a member of the UN youth group, student council and debate club.

During her junior year, she was president of the debate club and secretary of her class.

In another area, she is active in Sharpt Street Methodist Church, where she is president of the Methodist Youth Fellowship.

Miss Nichols finds her courses at Western difficult. She said that she works so hard that it is "unbelieve. She said that she "enjoys" her work, the teachers and classmates at the school. When she finishes Western, she wants to go to the school which will also challenge her intellectually.

"Western prepares you for college," she said, "because it treats us in a mature manner. We know that we have to work, and we do it."

MISS NICHOLS has a growing awareness of politics and issues such as civil rights.

Although she is interested in what President Lyndon B. Johnson or Sen. Barry Goldwater may say or do, she is not certain that the average teenager is sufficiently interested in politics.

On the talk of reducing the voting age nationally down 18 years, as it is in Georgia, to 18 years, as it is in Georgia, she was not certain that even she knew enough about about issues to cast the proper vote if she had that choice.

On the other hand, she believes that teenagers are "underestimated." She noted that teenagers have been in the forefront of the civil rights fight, a fight, she observed, "will, perhaps, intensify if Congree doesn't pass the Civil Rights Bill."

MISS NICHOLS lives at 2401 N. Ellamont St. with her mother, Mrs. Idella Nichols, who is a librarian at School No. 66.

With the true instinct of a librarian, Mrs. Nichols instilled in her daughter a lasting love, the love for reading.

"As long as I can remember," said Miss Nichols, "my mother has given me books as presents.

She is fortunate. She has a great deal of reading to do at Western.

vestigators' report to the trustees. The door was damaged in such a way, the report said, that it could not have been done by firemen.

Also, traces of some type of highly inflammable chemical or fluid was found in charred ruins of the area where the blaze was believed to have begun, the report said.

Time of the fire's beginning was set by three witnesses. The report indicated that two persons said they passed the church at 4 a.m. Sunday and there was no sign of fire. At 4:45, a man who lives next door to the church was awakened by the blaze and turned in the alarm.

The report noted that only recently the electrical wiring and heating plant in the church had undergone inspection and passed, thus eliminating them as the possible cause of the fire.

ARMED WITH the private report, Mr. Rice and the trustees have asked the FBI to investigate, he city prosecutor has indicated he will look into the fire.

Bits of the charred ruins have been sent to Washington and Tuskegee, Ala., for laboratory tests.

Mr. Rice became the target of area bigots apparently because, under his leadership, the Hot Springs NAACP branch has desegregated area hospitals, Federally-controlled and supervised bathhouses, schools, theaters, all downtown lunch counters, some restaurants and most amusement places.

Recently he sent messages to President Johnson and Interior Secretary Stewart Udall informing them of the discriminatory practices of bathhouses and hotels on property operated by the National Park Service. Hot Springs is a resort town in the middle of a national park, 52 miles southwest of Little Rock.

MACK PAYNE

'Just played poorly,' says Ducks' mentor

"We just played poorly."

That is th explanation given by Coach Mack Payne of the stunning, 41 - 33, setback suffered by his Dunbar High School five in the opening of the Maryland Scholastic Association season, Tuesday afternoon.

"Mt. St. Joe beat us with a good defense of their own and a poor effort on our part. It's as simple as that," added the veteran mentor who last year led his Ducks to a Divison 2 championship for the second straight year.

"WE LOST the ball 24 times on bad passed and inexcusable mistakes. That probably won't happen again in the next five years. We didn't rebound in the first half, although it improved somewhat as the game progressed.

"We had to shoot from outside when they threw up their tight zone, and we weren't hitting.

"I'm sure we have good potential, and I'm also sure we'll get better when Andre Billups, Robert Swepson and Vern Haskins come around, and when young Nathaniel Pridgett develops on defense as well as he plays offense," Payne concluded — LACY

BEAR TO BILLS — Halfback Oliver Dobbins of The Morgan State College Bears, was signed early this week to play with the Buffalo Bills of the American Football League. Dobbins, voted the CIAA's "player of the year," was a 17th round pick by Pittsburgh of the NFL.

Faster start key to Carver hopes

The problems facing Carver High School's promising basketball team is getting started.

Authority for this evaluation of Cub chances in the 1964 Maryland Scholastic Association race is none other than Carver's veteran coach, Lloyd (Sodie) White.

"I'M GOING to feel a lot better about our club when it proves it doesn't need an entire 8 - minute period to get started," mused White following the Vocational quint's 70 - 36 shellacking of Forest Park in Tuesday's MSA opener.

"We don't seem to be able to do anything in the first quarter, although we come along pretty good thereafter. I can't explain it, and I can only hope it will work itself out.

"This same slow beginning handicapped us last year, when we couldn't finish pet. We lost more than thirdin the division. I think we're capable of doing better this year, but I wouldn't want to make any predictions about winning the championship," White continued.

"WE HAVE some pretty good boys back in Ronald Epps, Anthony Harris and Ronald Ramseur. And I believe William Harris, who has a starter in the first half of last season, is in for a good year.

The two Harris boys could do the job for us in the backcourt, and with a couple of kids up from the junior varsity — Bernard White and Fred Butler — helping Epps in the scoring, I have reason to feel good about the attack.

"But it all depends on how well we master this jinx of starting, whether we're going to be contenders" — LACY.

SODIE WHITE

Poet coach: 'Big guys let us down'

Dunbar coach William (Sugar) Cain is pondering how best to light a fire under the big boys of his Poet basketball team as he and it prepare for today's (Friday) visit by Patterson Park.

The Bards shinnied a 73 - 56 drubbing at the hands of Towson Catholic, Tuesday afternoon, and that is one Maryland Scholastic Association opener they'd like to have back.

"ALL EVENING yesterday (Monday), after the game, the kids were scolding themselves," Cain told the AFRO Tuesday. "None of us could believe we're as bad as we looked.

"Actually, it was the big guys who let us down. We got no action from them whatsoever. They were dead under the boards, dead on offense, dead on defense, dead, period!

"If Al Ervin and Jimmy Files come to play as we know they can, we won't be out of the race by any stretch of the imagination.

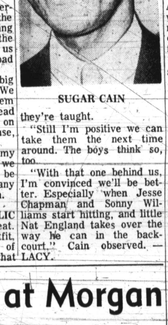
"TOWSON CATHOLIC looks like the club to beat. They're a good, sound outfit, and they show evidence of retaining and executing what they're taught.

"Still I'm positive we can take them the next time around. The boys think so, too.

"With that one behind us I'm convinced we'll be better. Especially when Jesse Chapman and Sonny Williams start hitting, and little Nat England takes over the way he can in the backcourt," Cain observed. — LACY.



SUGAR CAIN

Howard at Morgan as Bears seek 3rd

Morgan State College will try tonight (Friday) to make it three in a row in conference play when she takes on Howard University in a CIAA basketball game at Hurt Gymnasium.

The Bears, 4 - 3 on the season in overall competition, copped their second conference victory in as many starts Monday night, defeating North Carolina College, 99 - 92.

Paced by sophomore Lee Cornish and James Turk, Morgan emerged from an 81 - all deadlock in the closing minutes to pull away from their Tarheel rivals. Cornish, ex - City College ace, hit 27 points. Turk had 24.

HOWARD WILL throw her own one - two punch at the Bears when they strive for their first CIAA vicotry in this one.

The Bisons will count on Wilfred Holland and Larry Gist to set the attack pattern, with versatile Charlie Beacon handling the backcourt duties.

Howard dropped a 65 - 62 decision to City College of New York in Gotham Monday night, barely falling short in a gallant last - period rally.

AAU names C. C. Jackson to international post

BALTIMORE

The Amateur Athletic Union on Wednesday approved the appointment of C. C. Jackson, Jr., to a post on the international section of the women's track and field committee.

A longtime Bureau of Recreation official in this city, Jackson is thoroughly equipped for the assignment. The new post, he told the AFRO Thursday morning, will have no bearing on his retirement from the Baltimore recreation program late this month.

IN HIS NEW assignment, Jackson will aid in he selection and training of girls seeking berths on American teams for overseas trips.

Late last summer, when this country's female contingent was criticized for alleged misconduct during the tour of Soviet satellite nations, it was pointed out that resentment over the absence of a coveted coach or manager may have been at the seat of the trouble.

FOR THE past ten years, the makeup of the U.S. women's squad for Olympic Games and other international competitions has been predominantly colored.

"I shall be pleased to serve with the committee," Jackson told the AFRO. "I have been a vice-chairman in the AAU program for a number of years, but this assignment is regarded by me as a distinct honor."

JACKSON is probably one of the most familiar figures in Eastern track circles. He has served on numerous occasions as an official at major meets, and on the local scene he is recognized as a highly capable tutor of young athletes.

The announcement of his appointment to the international committee was made by the new women's track and field chairman, Juner Bellew of Menlo Park, Cal.

Named to the committee with Jackson were Jim Lorimer of Columbus, Ohio; Heb Stockton of Hanford, Cal., and Frances Kaszubski of Cleveland.

LET'S TALK ABOUT PROFESSIONAL OPPORTUNITIES AT Westinghouse

Colts add Gaiters to running corps

BALTIMORE — In an effort to add depth to their brigade of running backs the Baltimore Colts announced this week that they have signed free agent halfback Bob Gaiters for 1964.

The 26-year-old Zanesville, Ohio product will join veterans Tom Matte, Jerry Hill, Lenny Moore and J. W. Lockett and rookies Marv Woodson, Tony Lorick and Kern Carson in the competition for the two tight back positions.

THE COLTS also announced the signing of Alvin Haymond, 6-0, 190 - pound halfback from Southern University of Baton Rouge, La.

The Colts' 18th draft choice for 1964, Haymond is due to be considered as a defensive back when he reports to training camp in July.

BOB GAITERS

Th New Orleans native has sprinted 100 yards in 9.8 seconds and is reputed to be an aggressive performer on both offense and defense. He's a strong tackler and plays the ball well in the defensive secondary.

Haymond is also an effective ball carrier on punt and kickoff returns.

Ski site set for dedication

The new Oregon Ridge Ski Area in Baltimore County will be dedicated officially at noon, Sunday, with a unique ceremony high aloft the 2,000 foot - long chair lift.

A huge ribbon will be strung across the major ski slope at Oregon Ridge from the top of one of the chair lift towers to a tree on the other side. The ribbon will be snipped by a national dignitary carried up the slope on the chair lift.

There will be no interruption in skiing during the ceremonies, as notables from the county, Baltimore City, the State and the nation gather to officially inaugurate the largest metropolitan ski area in the world.

The ski area is located north of Towson in the Worthington Valley. It was planned and engineered by Asher and Associates, of Sun Valley, Idaho. Under a one-year management contract, firm members Royce Asher, Robert L. Lumpe and Michael W. Harroun will operate Oregon Ridge and the ski school at the ski area.
