American music fills air deep in the heart of Africa

By FELTON A. GIBSON

BO, SIERRA LEONE, W. Africa — It was strange, at 8:15 a.m., to hear the warm, soothing and well-played notes from an American trumpet floating from an open window, deep in the heart of "up-country" Sierra Leone.

It was not an oddity, however. It was veteran musician Jim Polite "warming up" for his morning classes, at Bo's Catholic Training College.

James C. Polite Jr., arrived here from New Orleans, early in September and lost very little time utilizing his music skill as a Peace Corps Volunteer.

Jim is busily organizing a 40-piece school band, developing a precision drill team, teaching first year music students, and tutoring almost a hundred "students" who have taught school and returned to earn their teaching certificates.

IN A FEW short weeks, the musician has set up an easily understood elementary progression program with the students in his crowded classrooms showing irrepressible anxiety and eagerness.

Jim explained that a syllabus for school music has been developed here, but the "know-how" of carrying it in out has been lacking.

"I hope to put it to use," he declared.

"My objective is to nurture and activate a moving music

● COTILLION PIKS on program, here, and in nearby schools," he continued. "Not necessarily instrumental music, but music that can be carried on when I am gone.

"After I am adjusted, this will be just like research. I've noticed quite a few tribal instruments around, and plenty of rhythm, but no melody. And I intend to put some of the local music to form," he stated. "This could be the beginning of a musical system. I want to study more of it and perhaps leave it as a source for the future of music."

FATHER O'TOOLE, headmaster of Catholic Training College, feels that 46-year-old Jim Polite is moving well in the right direction and is proud of his approach and progress.

The slightly balding and graying music maestro from down Rampart Street way has the experience and back ground to produce a splendid program here.

A graduate of Mississippi's internationally famous Piney Woods School, he earned his B.A. degree in music at New Orleans' Dillard University. He was awarded the master of music degree at Chicago's Vandercook College of Music, and took additional studies at Roosevelt University.

Early in World War II, Jim helped organize the 210th Army Ground Forces Band, at Camp Wheeler, Ga., and served as leader for four years. Part of this service was spent in France.

HE WAS band director and instructor at Mississippi's Alcorn College and Tougaloo College, and organized school bands in Forest, Decatur and Lexington, Mississippi.

He also organized and developed a state-wide school clinic for bands which is now an annual event in Mississippi.

Jim produced the original "Sweethearts of Rhythm." He put them together while they were still students at Piney Woods School. Later, he set up a similar group called "The Rays," composed of Mexican girl students at the little Mississippi boarding school.

All through his years of teaching, he has developed "tonett" bands. "Tonett" bands, he explains, are groups of children taught pre-band instrument techniques before moving into regular instrumentation.

THIS VERSATILE exponent of the alto saxophone (his specialty) has been quickly taken over by the Sierra Leoneans who keep him busy accepting dinner invitations and spending evenings of relaxation with them.

One unforgettable incident, he said, was the time he told a gathering of his new friends that he was their brother and had come to share his skills and help them. "They were so emotionally stirred," he said, "that tears of appreciation were dropping from many eyes."

Jim Polite realizes, he said, that while his skills will be of great service to the people of Sierra Leone, his experience with music and the African people will tremendously enrich his future.

Church Women to hear missionary

The United Church Women of Baltimore will hold their fourth annual luncheon meeting at the Lord Baltimore Hotel on Jan. 25 at 12:30 p.m.

The speakers will be Dr. and Mrs. Wesley Sadler, a husband and wife missionary team, from the Kitwe Writing Center of Northern Rhodesia.

Their subject will be "How the Sound Goes Forth in Africa" in keeping with the theme, "Their Sound Goes Forth" — a special emphasis on Christian World Missions.

The challenge of recording unwritten languages and teaching the people who taught them to read and write has been the driving force for the Rev. Mr. Sadler, since he went to Africa in 1941 under the auspices of the Board of Foreign Missions of the former United Lutheran Church in America.

He soon saw that evangelistic work was hampered by dependence upon interpreters and by the lack of printed materials. He set about reducing the Loma language to writing, produced a language study course for missionaries; and began translating the Scriptures into Loma and to prepare a Loma dictionary of 10,000 words.

Morgan's new dorm is a 'doozy'

Morgan State College is all set in the next few weeks to occupy a new million dollar dormitory accommodating 200 men.

Construction costs are financed by a bond issue authorized by the federal government's Housing and Home Finance Agency, of which Dr. Robert Weaver is administrator.

GOVERNOR TAWES

This method of financing had the approval of Governor Tawes, the legislature and the Board of Public Works.

Albert Backus, director of the Department of Public Works, complimented both the architect, Albert I. Caswell, and the builder, Lembach Construction Co.

The new building honors Dr. Pezavia O'Connell, formerly a dean of the college.

This week the tile floors are being laid, windows washed and furniture is being installed preliminary to government inspection and final acceptance before the structure can be turned over to the college.

. . . 1/13 OF A MILE

O'Connell Hall consists of two three story wings, each 166 x 48 feet separated by a central section at right angles 60 x 128 feet. Total length of the building, 400 feet, equals 1/13 of a mile, the longest Morgan building on campus.

The basement section under one wing provides a 32 by 52 foot recreation room, service rooms, trunk storage, and a boiler room.

. . . RADIANT HEAT

Because of its location on the northside of Herring Run, this is the only college building which has its own heating plant.

It is also the first college building to be heated by hot water piped through copper tubing encased in the concrete floor.

. . . GLASS ENCLOSED . . . LOUNGE

On the first floor are 26 student double bedrooms, a 32 x 64 foot glass enclosed lounge facing Herring Run, a 20 x 40 foot mezzanene, special rooms for general office director, counselor, assistant dean, and a director's living suite, telephone booths, a kitchen and cloak room, public toilets for men and women, separate mail boxes for each occupant.

FACILITIES

Also on each of the three floors in each wing are separate rooms each for laundry, toilet, wash and shower purposes.

The laundries are provided with washing machines and ironing boards.

. . . STUDY HALLS

Besides student bedrooms, each of the upper two floors features a 32 x 46 study and meeting room with tables and chairs seating 24 students, plus lounge chairs for informal gatherings.

. . . BUILT IN FURNITURE

Double student bedrooms are 12 x 15 feet with built in beds and desks, closets and wardrobes, two desk chairs and one casual chair.

The entire building is of light brick and concrete construction. Walkways and parking lot have been paved and site landscaped and planted.

90 FOOT DEEP

The site just off Coldspring Lane on the north side of Herring Run gave builders difficulty with foundations. 96 calssons were sunk, some 90 feet deep, before rock base was reached. At one time this spot was the quarry from which rock was taken for original Morgan buildings.

Later the hole filled with water and became a community swimming pool.

Mt. Royal group elects officers

Unitarian minister hits hatred, violence

by Eloise Richardson

"The method of religious persuasion cannot be equated with that of legal enforcement," declared the Rev. William L. Barnett, minister of the Unitarian Church of Anne Arundel County recently. The church is open to colored citizens for memberships.

The Rev. Barnett, liberial minister, in his thinking, and in his pulpit, was speaking to his all-white congregation in a two-part sermon on the role of the church and the individual in integration.

In discussing the role of the church, he strongly stated that the church must speak out whenever possible to those who are outside of the membership as well as those in the membership.

"Through newspapers, television and in radio, the clergy and laity alike must speak as churchmen to as large a public as they can reach," said the Rev. Mr Barnett.

"We should not too quickly condemn those who want complete integration now. Patience is a Christian virtue (as least the Christian has proclaimed this for 2,000 years), but it is all too easy to be very patient when you are white.

"When you are colored and your children are denied equal education, equal job opportunities, equal housing . . . in short, equal freedoms, then 100 years is too long to wait.

"If there is hatred in the Negro's voice today, if there is violence in the Negro's actions today, the surprising thing is that this hatred and this violence have been with held for so long, and that even now are still only the exception.

"THE MOST shocking commentary is that hatred and violence are so much more frequently the expression of the segregational whites. And there is no secret that this is the outward manifestation of fear and guilt, — and by virtue of being white and being American, each of us shares, if not this fear at least this guilt.

"We must dig deep for evidence of prejudice. We must make a constant and a very special effort to examine our thinking as critically and as objectively as we can.

"Like the soap that floats and must, by law, claim not 100 percent purity, but only 99 and 44/100ths percent, I would suggest that it is probable that our thinking will always remain 56/100th percent impure," stated the clergyman.

THE REV. Barnett, a newcomer in the ministry, has only been the minister at the local church since September. Prior to this charge, he served the First Congregational Society, Unitarian, at Castine, Maine.

He spent the greater portion of his life in Europe, where he was reared in Paris, France. There he received his education and studied at the Overseas Educational Institute for college work in Grenoble, France. While in Europe he also went into newspaper work and served as a reporter from Paris for the New York Herald Tribune.

He returned to the states in 1935 and served for some time as the export advertising manager of Packard automobiles, and since has conducted a business of his own before going into the ministry.

THE BEAUTIFUL Richard Tyler residence in Lincoln Heights was the scene of a very gay party the New Year's weekend when the Midnighters, a social club, entertained friends at its annual holiday party.

On the outside colorful lights were strung all around the roof edge with pretty window decorations, and the spacious recreation room, conducive to a party with its large, beautiful bar, was decorated on its walls with Christmas cards.

In one corner stood a large aluminum tree trimmed with large green balls. A revolving spotlight constantly reflected the beauty of he tree with its variegated colored lighting.

The table, where the tasty menu was served, was centered by a large arrangement of cut flowers and greenery. Cocktails flowed very nearly the entire evening on into the wee hours. Dancing was the main past time.

Mrs. Lillian Tyler, president of the club, was charming in a red chiffon frock, fashioned with a full floating panel at the back, as she received guests for the group.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reddish of Baltimore, Mr. and Mrs. James Rice of Severna Park, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Overton of Baltimore, Mr. James Thaxton of Brooklyn, N.Y., house guest of the Tylers, and Messrs. Leon J. Roseborough of Oakland, Calif., Theodore Ross and Robert L. Humes of the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md.

LOCAL GUESTS included: Messrs. and Mesdames Ivory Robinson, Gaston C. Finney, James McClure, Aware Turner, Garcia Baden, Alfred Kess, Jesse Anderson, Augustus Neal, Norman Johnson, Harold Baden, Monroe Green, Albert Stanton, Stephen Isaacs, Delmar Baden, Charles Grandison, Melvin S. Colbert.

Also Messrs. and Mesmes Ernest Brown, James Hutton, Lloyd Richards, Jessie Anderson, S. Richardson; Also Messrs. Charles Sharps, Norman Sharps, Joseph Simms, Joseph Taylor, Edward Murray, and Frank Jones, Messrs. Russell Moore and Louis Wade served as bartender and caterer, respectively.

Other officers and members of the Midnighters are Mesdames Beulah Turner, vice-president; Clara McClure, recording secretary; Sarah Simms, financial secretary; Vertex Brooks, treasurer; Emma Pickett, chairman of the Social Committee; Lena Stanton, chaplain; Inez Thornton, Ruth Watlington.

Morgan gets grant of $51,000

The board of trustees of Morgan State College, in session Thursday, voted to accept with thanks the gift of $51,000 from Miss Doris Duke.

THE ACCEPTANCE is subject to the approval of the Governor.

The grant will be used to maintain for two years a programed learning laboratory.

The grant is in the form of 2,063 shares of Aluminum Ltd., which at the time of the grant on Jan. 2 was valued at $51,500. As of Jan. 14, the stock had risen to $59,000

THE BOARD voted to increase the board rates for students from $360 to $396 per year, effective Feb. 1, 1964.

In a statement to the Board, Dr. Martin D. Jenkins recommended a vigorous campaign to recruit students from the white community.

"This would involve publicity and probably the organization of a citizens advisory committee; and require the concerted efforts of the administration, officials, faculty, alumni and trustees," he said.

"The difficulty should be recognized in the words of a recent article in the Morning Sun: 'Morgan State is stigmatized by being a predominately colored institution.'

"There are a number of reasons why students from the white community do not enroll at Morgan despite our very adequate facilities.

"ON THE OTHER hand, some white students do attend, and in the summer science programs where a stipend is involved, there are a sufficient number of applicants to enable us to have an exclusively white enrollment if we so desited.

"In view of the fact that this matter involves basic policy, I am requesting that it be discussed by Board."

Discussion was continued until the Board next meeting in February.

ACCORDING TO Dr. Jenkins, very few white students from the Baltimore area are at Morgan.

Morgan, he said, cannot continue indefinitely to be a substantially segregated institution; and with the current reorganization of higher education in the State, Morgan should be regarded as an institution available to all qualified students without regard to race.

"Dr. J. Percy Bond, director of placement and admissions at Morgan," he said: "attempts to reach white students when he visits secondary schools but school officials have not been cooperative in making these students available to him."

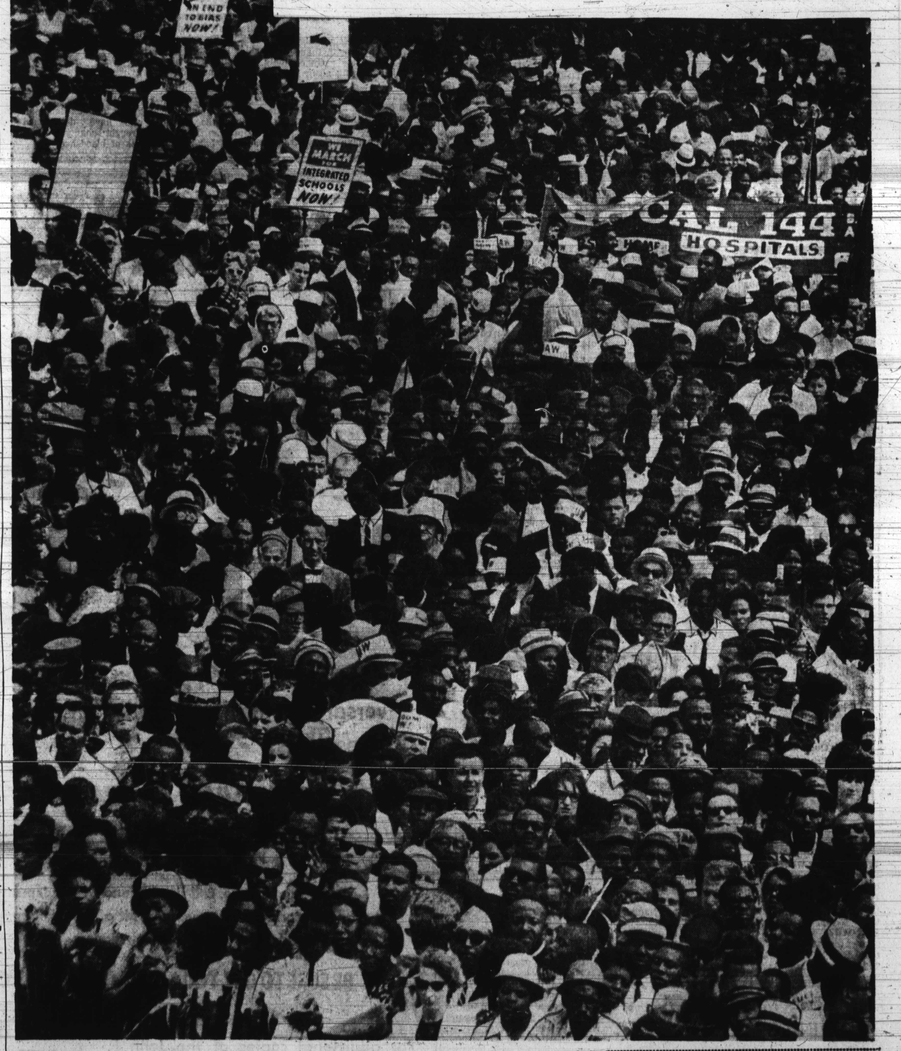
IF YOU FOLLOW THE CROWD



If you follow the crowd,

It will lead you right to the AFRO-AMERICAN which goes into 150,000 homes every week.

There is a reason the AFRO is the oldest and largest weekly newspaper in America directed to the interest of colored people.

There are only 900 persons in this picture.

Take into account the 149,769 net paid ABC sales each week and the average readership of 4 persons in each home and you come up with 600,000 persons who read the AFRO to be sure they get the word on matters vitally interesting to them. That is 2½ times as many readers as there were marchers on Washington.

You can get the AFRO delivered to your door every week. Call or write any one of these offices:

BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON, NEWARK
PHILADELPHIA, RICHMOND
