Annapolis DOINGS
Severna Park Native To Be Guest Soloist
by Eloise Richardson

Naomi Pettigrew, dramatic soprano of New York City, a native Marylander, and well-known in Annapolis, will appear as soloist with the Annapolis Choral Society in a concert at the Annapolis High School on Sunday, Jan. 26 at 8 p.m.

The lovely artist, who took first place as one of the recipients of the Marian Anderson Award, made her debut at Town Hall in New York in 1951.

A native of Severna Park in Anne Arundel County, her talent was discovered during her high school days at Bates in Annapolis, when she sang in the high school chorus and on various community and church programs.

While at Virginia State College, where she earned a B.S. degree in public school music, she studied with Cleota Collins, singer and voice teacher and coach of Cleveland, Ohio.

The Marian Anderson Award enabled Naomi to continue her studies in New York. After study with Carroll Hollister, she made her debut. This phase of study was made possible when the Mt. Olivet Baptist Church in New York presented her in a recital and afterwards awarded her $1,000 to continue her work.

She has appeared in concert at Carnegie Hall in New York City, the Brooklyn Academy of Music, in Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Petersburg, Va., Rocky Mount, N.C. and Radio Broadcasting Stations WNYC, WWRL, WMGM, WLIB and on television.

She also made appearances as a soloist with the Midton String Ensemble, the Margaret Bonds Chamber Music Society, the Oratorio and Operatic Ensemble, and the National Association of Negro Musicians.

WHEN MISS Pettigrew appeared in concert at Annapolis several years ago, the Maryland Gazette had this to say about her voice:

"Miss Pettigrew is an accomplished singer, endowed with a remarkable voice. Her intonation is perfect. The power of her voice, its ability to express the most refined nuances, her innate sense of vocal technique and taste, which manifests itself in every melodic line, augure well for a brilliant career.

"Miss Pettigrew has qualities which very few singers nowadays possess, — a natural elasticity of the voice in its various ranges coupled with sincerity of expression. Particularly in songs of Debussy and Schubert her interpretations were mellow and warm and extremely refined, which showed understanding of their subtly romantic mood. There was not a single slip in cadence, inflection or diction."
—Nicholas Nabokov.

Among the songs she will interpret on Sunday night will be compositions from Rossini, Schubert, Burleigh, Dett, Handel, Verdi and Boatner.

The Annapolis Choral Society is composed of professional and non-professional singers. The group was founded in 1957 and it is under the direction of Mrs. Jean Ressler.

Mrs. Ressler has her Bachelor's and Master's degrees in Music Education from Temple University. She studied choral techniques under John Finley Williamson, founder of the Westminster Choir College, Olaf Christiansen of St. Olaf Choir fame, and Elaine Brown of Singing City in Philadelphia.

Membership in the society is open to all who have a pleasing voice and a love for choral singing, regardless of race, color or creed, joined together by the bond of choral music, the universal language of song.

Among those who are participating with the choral society are Mesdames Lillian Johnson, Amelia Johnson, Misses Dorothy Mitchell and Audrey Goldsborough, and Messrs. William Pettigrew, Robert Green Jr., Harvey Ennis and Ernest Williams.

Accompanists for the concert will be Nancy Smith and Eleanor Parker, pianists; Leone Wertz, organist; Jack Koontz, Jack Doran and Ralph Betz, trumpeters, and Robert Tate, tympanist. Miss Pettigrew will be accompanie dby her own accompanist, Thomas McNally.

MRS. KATHERINE Burse and daughters, Joan Paulette and Sharon were made very happy during the holidays when their brother and uncle, Sgt. George W. Craig, who had just returned from Germany, came to visit them.

A former Bates High School student, Sgt. Craig had been stationed in Germany for three years and is now assigned to a base at Kansas City, Mo.

Mrs. Burse entertained at a dinner party during his stay with the family. Other guests included Mrs. Beatrice Brown of Newark, N.J., Mrs. Margaret Holland and Miss Edna Jennings and Mr. John Howard of Baltimore, Mrs. Rosa Jennings, Mrs. Rachel Cook, Mrs. Dorothy Jennings and children, Michael and Michelle and Mr. Milton Summerville of Severna Park, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Jennings and son, Troy, Mrs. Charles Tongue of Annapolis and Mr. Stanton Cornish of Cambridge, Md.

Melvin is now stationed at Norfolk, Va. in the service and was a former student at Bates High School. His wife, Bonnie, is at present attending Bates.

The Bates High School PTA played Santa Claus to the teenagers of Crownsville State Hospital and showered them with gifts during the holidays. The gifts were presented by John Wakefield, president, and Herbert S. Hilliard, principal.

Card dialers for phones available now

A recent decision by the nation's telephone companies to convert all telephone numbers into digits created quite a controversy which has yet to abate.

The prime gripe against the new system is the sheer number of digits to remember.

Now the need to remember many-numbered codes is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. Simply punch the code out on a white plastic card and insert it into a phone and the number is dialed automatically.

Businesses have been using such telephones for some time, now the new card dialer automatic dialing phone is available for the home.

THE CARD dialer automatic dialing mechanism is combined with the phone in one compact unit. The white cards can be coded quickly with a ball point pen or similar object by punching holes in designated places.

In the event that a punched card is not available, the old-fashioned method of dialing the phone can still be used.

The new phone is especially useful to people who have to make large numbers of calls to the same people.

Telephone company officials reported that installation of the new phone will cost subscribers $15 more than a regular phone and three dollars per month more than the regular rate.

Available in beige, gray, green and white, the new phone can be installed in the home in one week.

MUSICAL MOMENTS

Don Shirley Trio accorded an enthusiastic reception here

By ADAH K. JENKINS

The refreshingly unique concert by Don Shirley, pianist, and his assisting artists on cello and double bass was accorded an enthusiastic reception by a large audience at the Morgan Concert Hall Series.

Bouyant and gracious, he established a fascinating report with his listeners as he introduced top flight performances of classic, modern and jazz. His virtuoso talent brought alive the student "Freedom Songs" as well as gems of our own folk music.

Dr. R. Hayes Strider, director of the Morgan education department, announced that Mr. Shirley will play in Washington in March, doing the Beethoven Third Concerto with the National Symphony.

DISC JOCKEY OF THE WEEK

Top Ten Records

Vernon (Mr. Vee) Blagmond is WWIN Radio's "all-night man." He broadcasts nightly from 1 to 5 a.m.

Although Mr. Vee has been on the air at WWIN for only three months, his show is developing into one of the most popular programs in Baltimore night-time radio.

Running the gamut from rhythm and blues to the latest jazz, he attracts listeners of all ages and tastes. His mail attests to the fact that he has listeners who "dig the different sound" of Mr. Vee.

MR. VEE is a native of Baltimore. He attended city schools and spent more than three years with the Army Air Corps on Guam and Saipan during World War II.

His previous radio experience includes 3½ years on WSID, where he was the afternoon man and was host of the popular "House of Blue Lights" show.

His hobbies are singing, reading and sports. He likes Chinese food.

Listed below are Mr. Vee's top ten tunes of the week:

1. "I Wonder" — Aretha Franklin (from her album).
2. "Here's A Heart" — The Diplomats
3. "I Can't Wait to See Baby" — Baby Washington.
4. "You'll Never Walk Alone" — The Blue Belles.
5. "Need to Belong" — Jerry Butler.
6. "Standing at Crossroads" — The Supremes.
7. "I Know I'm Sure" — James Conwell.
8. "If Ever I Would Leave You" — Aretha Franklin (from her album).
9. "I Wish You Love" — Gloria Lynne.
10. "Pain in My Heart" — Otis Redding.

Mr. Vee's top album of the week is Aretha Franklin's "Laughing on the Outside."

VERNON BLAGMOND

Coppin Notes

By FRANCES RIDOUT

Here at Coppin it is final examination time. Inspired by this happy period, Vivian Davis of the Junior Class has written an essay in which she questions the necessity of "finals."

Vivian argues that many teachers know where students rate without the results of a semester examination. She also cites the possibility of the lazy student with the phenomenal memory, who benefits most "gradewise" from a final exam.

Although many students here might like to see final exams done away with, we fear that it may be some time before any such prospect will be forthcoming.

Crusaders against finals cannot seem to win, but we face our examinations with light hearts in the light of our Eagles' victory over Bowie State at our homecoming game.

Of course, the sports critics may have other theories as to why we won, but it is our opinion that the enthusiasm of Coppin students and steadfast support of the team turned the tide.

COPPIN cheerleaders (Sheila Mason, Shirley Roberts, Annette Easterling, Ruby Sifford, Mary Harris, Victoria Hawkins and Dora Beads) were in good form, and infected spectators at the game with their enthusiasm.

Sharon Street, chairman of the Boosters Club, insured the support of her club, and kept her drum in action.

Heroes on campus as a result of their 74-72 defeat over Bowie are Coach Cyril Byron, and Team members William Wood, Elmer Sterling, James Bennett, Willard Wright, Earl Watson, Sidney Edwards, Roosevelt Duncan, Ronald Dobson, Percy Davis, Albert Roberts, William Goode, Clyde Milner, Joel Holman, and Gene Giles—of the Eagles.

In addition to the basketball game, there was a dance in connection with our homecoming celebration in Pullen Gymnasium. Music was provided by "The Checkers." Much in evidence at both the game and the dance were many alumni of Coppin.

S. Africa convicts Olympic group head

JOHANNESBURG, S. Africa — Dennis Brutus, 39, former president of the South African Nonracial Olympic Games Committee, was sentenced to 18 months in jail. He is a school teacher classified as colored.

He was convicted of violating a ban imposed on him under South Africa's suppression - of - communism laws attending in May, 1962, of the South African Olympic Games Association.

'Toys In The Attic' now playing at Met

When Lillian Hellman's dramatic "Toys in the Attic" opened on Broadway in the winter of 1960, it was greeted with critical acclaim almost unprecedented in the long history of the stage.

The supporting cast is rounded out by Nan Martin, Larry Gates and Frank Silvera, a trio well-known to television viewers.

Here's how

Young people interested in working at the New York World's Fair this summer, should begin making applications now, Mrs. Emma Michaels, a member of the Maryland World's Fair Commission told the AFRO Wednesday.

Explaining that there were only a limited number of jobs available, Mrs. Michaels said the earlier applications are made, the better will be the chance for employment.

Applications should be filed at the State Office Building, 301 Preston St., or letters may be written direct to Harold Blake, director of personnel, N.Y. World's Fair Commission, Flushing 52, NYC.

Descriptions of jobs available may be obtained by phoning LE. 9-1964 and asking for Mr. Fillettac.

WALTERBORO, S.C.— A native of Edisto Island John H. Wrighten, has opened law offices in Charleston and Kingstree. Mr. Wrighten is active in church, civic and fraternal circles.
