Scotts' dinner dance for 'Men of success'

With Lula Jones Garrett

Dinner and dancing was the format for the elegant party given by Mr. and Mrs. W. Eugene Scott at their Charlton Avenue home, Saturday evening, to honor 11 men, their close friends, who made significant achievements during the past year. The citation, quip the Scotts, was the best reason they could think of for giving a party, and this year's affair followed an innovation they concocted in 1961, when they entertained for Captain Charles P. Cox, now of Vietnam.

The affair was certainly the perfect vehicle for the intermixing of brains, beauty and fun, as gathered by the Scotts, Saturday night.

THE HONOREES were: Lt. Robert Bailey of Washington, the first non-white the U.S. Army Test and Evaluation Command at Aberdeen Proving Grounds; with Robert Bennett, recipient of a scholarship to do graduate work in theology at General Theology Seminary in New York, a former priest at St. James Episcopal Church, here;

Captain James Compton of Campbell, Ky., appointed to the ROTC at Morgan College, who was commended for valor honor and compassion in the war of Vietnam;

Also Earl Embree of St. Louis Mo. who has received a Ph.D. degree in mathematics from the University of Illinois, and is now a professor at Morgan State College;

Alexander Hall of Atlanta, Ga., who has been selected to head the National Science Maryland High Schools;

Roscoe Monroe of North Carolina, appointed by the National Aeronautical and Space Administration to space science and who, inserve as a world lecturer on ocidentally, is the youngest trustee of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church;

Captain Donald Murphy of Chicago, Ill., now of Morgan State College ROTC, who is leaving to attend the Command and Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas;

Dr. Theodore Patterson of this city, who completed his medical training at the University of Maryland and an internship at Sinai Hospital.

Joseph Rocha of Boston, assistant to the president at Morgan State College, and who, in October passed preliminary examinations to receive a PhD. in business administration from the University of Iowa;

J. Tyson Tildon, of this city, former Fulbright student in Paris, who has completed requirements for a Ph.D. in medical research at Johns Hopkins Hospital (he's polemarch of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, here); and Lawrence Willis, teacher at City College and teacher at the Maryland Institute for Gifted High School Science students.

MRS. SCOTT, lovely in a two-piece cranberry red mohair floor length ensemble, made with a fetching Vineck ling back and front, was assisted in receiving by the wives of the honorees.

And the latter provided a fashion show themselves.

Mrs. Monroe, for instance, wore emerald green chiffon top above a printed silk hostess skirt. Mrs. Willis wore a black wool blouse and a pink wool hostess skirt. Mrs. Tildon's ensemble was also a black wool blouse, worn above a lilac wool skirt; and Mrs. Rocha's two-piece ensemble was of turquoise silk shantung.

Mrs. Hall (Warrenie, the singer) was in a floorlength black velvet; and Mrs. Murphy chose an ecru and gold silk brocade frock, which featured a belle skirt. Multicolored wool mohair was the skirt material, and white silk crepe the top that made up the ensemble of Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. Compton's black and white ensemble had the skirt of the latter, the blouse, white.

Mrs. Bailey combined silk print in her skirt with emerald green valvet blouse; and Mrs. Embree was charming in turquoise silk chiffon.

Added to their ensembles were corsages from their hosts. The gentlemen garnered buttonnieres.

Mr. Scott, an engineer at Aberdeen Proving Ground, was formerly on the faculty at Morgan State College where he taught physics. Mrs. Scott spends her time taking care of him and their captivating family which also includes Genie, 2 India, 10, Cathy 9, David, 6; Kimberly, 4; and Robia, nine months.

THEIR GUESTS Saturday night included:

Messrs. and Mesdames Joseph Thomas, Jr., Llewellyn Woolford, Doward Patterson, Robert Patterson Elwood Goens, Walter Dorsey, Russell Parrish.

Messrs. and Mesdames Henry Goodman, Addison, Earl Lowery, Donman, Donald Walden of Abendeen Owen Lee, Hnry James; Dr. and Mrs. Charles Hurt of Washington and Capt. and Mrs. Mahatha Oliver.

CHEERED BY the optimistic market report on the current status of their stock holdings given by Bill Stanford, chairman of the stock committee, members of the Couples Club Sunday re-elected James Murphy for his fourth consecutive term as president.

The annual meeting, held in the Druid Hill Ave. residence of Ethel and John Rich, also saw the re-election of Stanford as vice president; Seretha Greene as secretary; John Rich, financial secretary and Charles Law as treasurer.

Besides news of the market upturn, merriment was also encouraged by an assortment of sippables offered by the Riches, followed by a sumptuous smorgasbord.

Present were Mary Elizabeth and Charles Law, Yvette and James Murphy, Bea and Hiram Butler, Delphine and Tom Warrington, Edna and Bill Stanford, Lonie Greene, Ben Foreman and Cliff Mackay.

200 attend Sigma anniversary fete

The Baltimore Room of the Sheraton - Baltimore Inn was the scene of the Golden Anniversary Founders Day celebration and banquet of the Zeta Sigma chapter Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity.

Approximately 100 brothers, their wives and guests gathered for the event which began at 4 on Sunday afternoon with Dr. Robert J. Hill, presiding. George A. Daley, professor of Coppin State College delivered the welcome address. He called upon "every Sigma man to rededicate himself to Sigmas' great motto "culture for service and service for humanity."

* * *

DR. PARLELT L. MOORE, president of Coppin State College and national director of education of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, related the three programs of Sigma Bigger and Better Business, Education and Social Action. Greetings were extended to the members of the fraternity by Mrs. Thelma C. Moore, president of Sigma Wives; Mrs. Mary B. Hurt of Alpha Zeta Chapter, Zeta Phi Beta Sorority; Clifton Felton, Eastern regional director of the fraternity; Mrs. Isabell McConnell, president of the Kappa Chapter, Jota Phi Lambda Sorority, and Lt. Col. Lucius Young of the Alpha Sima Chapter, Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, Washington.

* * *

GUEST SPEAKER for the occasion was Oliver C. Eastman of New York City, attorney, president of the Distinguished Service Chapter of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity and its national director of social action.

He spoke on the subject "Leadership — The Challenge of 1964." Mr. Eastman stated that the challenge is to find leadership facing colored Americans of the '60's.

* * *

HE DIVIDED leadership into three phases, the first including Harriet Tubman and Frederick Douglass. The leaders of the second phase had as their primary object the cessation of lynching. The NAACP was born in this era. The third and present phase finds the wall of segregation beginning to fall and the emergence of such leaders as Martin Luther King, Shuttlesworth etc.

* * *

DR. PARLETT L. MOORE was formally inducted into the Distinguished Service Chapter of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity as the 60th member of this chapter.

Certificates of achievement were presented to the Rev. Frank Williams, pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Church for his work, toward fostering the civil rights movement, and to Mr. Eastman. These certificates were presented by Ernest W. Lee, president of Zeta Sigma Chapter.

Music was rendered by William E. O'Mare, baritone, accompanied by Mrs. Hazel Phillips.

HEADED FOR SPRING — and this is how the eminent "Mr. John" points the way, and the beautiful mannequin, Jacky Clay and Helen Willams demonstrate. From left, Miss Clay shows Mr. John's sleek, sophisticated Breton of beige Baltibuntle straw; a suitor flatterer in which Borghese black silk matte jersey crowns a wide, sweeping, portrait brim of Borghese black and Ducale white laced straw joined to the crown by a banding of brilliant Racaille red grosgrain; Miss William wears a black and Cellini grey straw finely sewn into an off-face, profile brim of vivid graphic stripes, a swirl of movement emphasized by the sweep of its portrait brim-line; and Ducale white silk daisies with centers velvet scattered over a lace-work of hand-woven white straw in a suitor cloche. Silk velvet ribbons of green and bow knots at center back.

WOMAN'S WORLD:

Young women need more self-reliance

Among the postwar generation of women, the possession of less educational experience than they could have had, and correspondingly less developed skills, was deliberate.

For many, the search for security in their homes was a primary objective. The care of young children became all absorbing during years that in the past have been the conventional time for a young person to carry on full-time advanced study.

* * *

BUT NOW in the words of the President's Commission on the Status of Women, "increasingly flexible and locally available academic institutions are beginning to permit young women to keep up their interests and skills even while they are busiest at home."

The Commission said that locally organized means of marketing their skills on a part-time basis are developing.

A growing feeling on their part that life in a child's world uses only part of their capacities has over the past few years motivated more women to keep alive their intellectual interests.

* * *

THE YOUNG woman starting out in life today has exceptional need to be self-reliant, the Commission pointed out. Her making of decisions is likely to take place in a community which is new to her, and frequently is itself so new as to be almost without a past.

Her husband's work is likely to be far enough away from home for their associates during the working day to overlap only slightly if at all. Her contemporary relatives, and her parents and grandpardparents, are likely to be widely scattered over the country.

* * *

THE NUMBER of adults other than wives who are related to the heads of families and live in the same household with them has been small for some years; it declined further between 1959 and 1960.

WOMEN WITH PIPES may become the order of the day now since a governmental report linked heavy cigarette smoking with several illnesses and declared pipe smoking as a lesser health hazard. Remember Grandmother and her corncob?

"Grandma smoked pipe—lived almost as long as Methuselah

BY RUTH JENKINS

RICHMOND —"When my grandmother was my age, her grandmother smoked a pipe. And she lived to be almost as old as Methuselah."

"Now my grandmother smokes cigarettes, and so do I. But we're both concerned about their harmful effects, so I have taken up with a pipe. And it's causing a lot of snickering and disapproving headshakes among my friends."

* * *

THIS COMMENT comes from a 23-year-old miss who prefers to remain anonymous in advocating that women revert to their grandmothers' pipe - smoking habits ... at least until she sees how it sets with her employer and with her boyfriend.

...Not that she isn't her own boss. But she doesn't want to remain her own boss for a lifetime, and after all, this is Leap Year.

* * *

BUT THIS is the way she states her case on behalf of women and pipes:

"The government report that cigarettes may contribute to lung cancer shook me up quite a bit because I smoke nearly three packs a day.

"I couldn't quit smoking 'cold turkey' so I asked my doctor about my using a pipe. He chuckled and recommended it highly, pointing out that a pipe 'may just give you lip cancer and that is easier to treat medically.'

"But giving his approval seriously, "if you just have to smoke something, he gallsmoke something, he gallantly offered to buy my first tin of tobacco for the pipe. When I left, he was smiling knowingly.

THAT'S BECAUSE he knew something which I have just been finding out. If you really want to cut down smoking and finally cut it out altogether, switch from cigarettes to a pipe.

"You just can't keep the darn thing lit long enough to get any real enjoyment. A couple of puffs, and you've had it.

"A match financier must have invented pipes just to keep the match industry in business. If you think pipe-smoking is cheaper than cigarettes, just wait till you count up the cost of the matches.

"Well, you know, no busy woman, be she career girl or housewife, has time to stop and relight a pipe every few minutes during the day.

"Say you're accustomed to gulping coffee and a cigarette while dressing for work in the morning. But with a pipe, forget it. Put it down for a moment and you are fresh out of a smoke.

* * *

THERE'S MORE. Smoking a pipe is not as neat and compact as with a cigarette. Pipes require so much overflow equipment. You've got to tote around tobacco, and a pipe cleaner and gobs and gobs of matches. The thing has to be refilled and recleaned and re-lighted over and over again.

"This may not sound like I'm in favor of pipes for women, but I am—if what you really want to do is cut down on your smoking.

* * *

"BUT THERE'S the criticism that pipes aren't proper nd ladylike for women. Well, people said the same thing years ago about eig about voting, about working outside the home and even about getting an education.

"When I was lighting my pipe the other day, my great aunt passed the door and sniffed "She's just going to tbd evell."

"I LAUGHED BECAUSE she herself was just going to the doctor's. And she's a cigarette smoker.

"The way I figure it, if today's woman is going to end up zooming to the moon, she may as well travel in a haze of glory and pipe smoke. Got to keep healthy, you know."

Fast to Fix:

Anyone like parfait? Layer alternate in parfait glasses, coffee ice cream, crip cereal flakes and slivers of fresh dates. Served at once, mix equal parts of halved and seeded Tokay (those red, large ones) grapes with cottage cheese and serve as a refreshing salad or a satisfying snack.

* * *

LIKE SAUCY BEANS? Layer canned drained green beans with a can of condensed cream of mushroom soup and chunks of parboiled Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and bake in a moderate (350 degree F.) oven until eggplant is tender.

Both color and flavor surprise are present in a pie when you add some canned cling peach slices to the apples in your favorite pastry recipe.

* * *

COMBINE COARSELY chopped fresh dates with honey and bring to the simmering point. Serve warm over rice pudding or apricot cobbler.

Wonderful harvest vegetables respond to a simple flavor trick using a sauce of melted butter, slivered, toasted almonds and soft bread crumbs.

Helen's Favorite:

Raisin-Nut Sauce

(Serves 6)

1 cup granulated sugar
3/4 cup water
CUP WHITE CORN SYRU
½ cup white corn syrup
1 cup seedless raisins
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ cup chopped pecans

Combine sugar, water and corn syrup and cook over medium heat, stirring until mixture boils. Cover and cook 2 minutes. Uncover add chopped fruit, salt, lemon juice and rind and cook until mixture thickens slightly, about 5 minutes. Add chopped pecans, blend thoroughly and serve over ice cream or pudding.

Detroiters moving to $600,000 church

DETROIT — The Rev. Hubert N. Robinson, pastor of Ebenezer AME church, announced last week that the congregation will move into their $600,000 newly-purchased home, in July.

Final papers were signed and the full amount was paid on the new location, the Rev. Mr. Robinson said.

Speaking about moving to the new location, the Rev. Mr. Robinson said, "This is the third time the congregation has moved since its founding in 1871."

121 A MISSES B DIMINUTIVE

Antonio De Luca

Here is a flexible little costume by one of Rome's finest couturiers, Antonio DeLuca, that will travel through a whole twelve-month of days and nights without losing any of its impact.

The hip - length jacket, subtractable in warmer weather or after-five, adds day - long dash to a sleeveless sheath dress. Telling a simple story of shapeliness, the dress starts with a soft roll of collar that winds up as a jaunty scarf, descends smoothly to a banded waistline, then glides swiftly on its way with a wonderfully slim-but-easy skirt.

* * *

PRECISE SEAMING frames the jacket ever so slightly at the waist. Over its cardigan neckline it shares the dress' interesting collar treatment.

To bring springtime sparkle to a winter-weary wardrobe, we suggest a fine silk or wool crepe in one of the luscious shades of pink that were standouts in the MAA recent designer collections — watermelon, strawberry, azalea, salmon or mauve pink.

* * *

THIS IS the year of linen influence on other fabrics, and flax mixed with wool, rayon or cotton has created weaves that you're sure to find very new looking and exciting.

To select your correct size, use the exclusive ready-to-wear size chart.
