THE ENGAGEMENT of Miss Dale J. Covington to Capt Laurence W Buffaloe, of Norfolk Va and Fort George G. Meade, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Covington,Jr. of Baltimore.

Chipperettes set fast pace with entrancing "Snow Ball"

The Chipperettes, that club of personable young matrons, set a fast social pace when they held their "Snow Ball" in Cherry Hill Union Hall, Saturday evening.

In the beautiful setting, where guests were greeted by hostesses against a backdrop of a high snowman, and taken to tables, decored with a winter motif which also featured a snow man, they, and their feminine guests, requested to wear, white, made an unforgettable sight.

COCKTAILS AT eight and dinner at nine left a long evening for sipping and dancing to the music of Bobby Felder and His Blue Notes.

The affair drew a most beautifully dressed group of women. And what can one say about the frocks of a hundred and forty women, all of them white?

WELL, NOT all white.

there was one perfectly lovely green frock on the floor.

And there were those who sparked their whites with color: Seretha Greene, who added a red stole; Odessa Dyson, who donned red shoes; Bernice Robinson, whose cummabund on her white dress was of pale blue and white. Liza Lindsay, whose cute number with the ruffled skirt had the ruffles edged in black.

Jean William's elegant ball gown, with its beautiful cate treatment at skirt back, was sparked with silver.

Just leave it to the ladies.. they'll find a way to be individual.

BUT MEMBERS set a fine example. Louise Robinson, who chaired the affair, was chic in a two-piece floor-length white gown, the top paved with crystals.

Another frock that could go under the same description, but had nothing of the same appearance, was the elegant affair worn by Arnetta Lottier, and distinguished by crystal fringe at an empire line as well as the bottom of the over blouse.

PETIT BERNICE GAIL chose satin, and innovated two interesting folds in the skirt at back, the top also featuring the newest empire line. Stately Hermione Weaver hued strictly to the line.. her line in this instance a figure clinging affair.

The hostesses also included Vonzella Murray, Joan Scott, Merita Stokes, Frankie Wood, Gladys Daniels, Phyllis Diggs, Bernadine Harrison, Dorothy Johnson, and Peggy Jones.

Missing was Pauline Blackwell, whose table was presided over by her husband, Samuel Blackwell and her sister, Olive Caulk, who chose a smart lace frock. Mrs. Blackwell is hospitalized as result of a fall in which foot bones were fractured.

THE HOSTESSES were assisted by their husbands: Daniels, Robert Diggs, Harry Gail, Samuel Miles Harrison, George Lottier, John Stokes, Royal Weaver, Cecil Johnston, Arthur Murray, Miles Robinson and of Royston Scott.

Their guests included:

Messrs. and Mesdames William C. West, Reginald Mathews, Alfred Woodridge, John Edwards, Edward Williams, Vernon Frost, Clifton S. Murray.

Soul-searching prescribed for "Greeks" by Mrs. Enid C. Baird

By LULA JONES GARRETT

Greek letter organizations must do some serious soul-searching if they are to retain the interest of members and support and respect of their communities Mrs. Enid C. Baird said, here, Saturday.

Mrs. Baird, administrative assistant to the director of the National Urban League, was speaker at the Founder's Day celebration of Lambda Kappa Mu Sorority.

Said she:

"Not long ago I had a rather heated discussion with a skeptic on the matter of what he termed the fruitlessness of our club and social organizations. He was really referring to my sorority interests and to the effort and money which we, who are delingent in our membership, invest in these organizations.

"WELL, NATURALLY I couldn't let him get away with it, although he was perfectly honest, some of his arguments made real good sense.

"We have moved considerably away in our national life, in our individual interest, in our general attitudes from the limited concerns which promoted our organzation. The demands are greater, more complex and if we are to retain the interest of our members and the support and respect of our communities, we need to do some serious soul-searching

"THIS IS TRUE of all Greek letter organizations. And yet we are tailor-made for the kind of constructive activity which the times demand. We are college trained for the most part, and while this doesn't make us superior, it certainly says that we ought to be more aware and more deeply involved in things that go on around us.

"THERE SHOULD be more of a sense of direction and better understanding of what our roles should be. We are professionals, some of us; we are business people. Our contacts are greater and our concerns are reflected in many different ways. And, coupled with all of this, we are parents.

moment the social element

"Let's discount for the of sorority and fraterity life ,though there has got to be this. And no group is to be criticized for getting dolled up and making merry on occasion.

"Let's think rather of the role of our organizations in teaching the present day three R's: Rights, Respect and Responsibilities.

"IF PLUGGING away for the civil rights bill and making our concerns felt in the proper places don't take precedence over some of the more meaningless activities we are too often prone to undertake, then we're in trouble. And if we fail to look ahead and to relate to the post-civil rights bill era, when we find ourselves and our children not ready for many of the new opportunities, we may, as Whitney Young says, well end up with a belly full of rights and nothing else."

• • •

MRS. BAIRD pointed out, that here, attention must be directed to the inspiration and guidance of young people, the average young woman, strong in some areas, weak in others, but who must be fitted to carry on the day by day building. This she said, Lambda Kappa Mu is attempting to do through its youth group.

Mrs. Baird is coordinator for the youth groups of the sorority. She is a past grand basileus and at present corresponding grammateus of Alpha Chapter, New York.
