Naomi Pattigrew scores in Choral Society's concert

Naomi Pettigrew, dramatic soprano of New York City, thrilled her audience last Sunday evening at Annapolis High School when she appeared as guest artist with the Annapolis Choral Society in a sacred concert.

Miss Pettigrew, a native of the Severna Park area, made her appearance here after a number of years since her debut in Town Hall in 1951.

As the program opened Miss Pettigrew appeared with the group and sang the solo parts to the two well-known Rossini numbers, "I Will Give Thanks, O Lord" and "Inflammatus."

In these two heavy numbers as an opening, the beautiful voice of Miss Pettigrew soared above the blended harmony of the chorus and struck a note that resounded as a feeling of ecstasy. She electrified her listeners as she gave off this depth of feeling in her interpretations, and one listened to smooth tones in a powerful fortissimo as well as the toned down pianissimo.

In fact throughout her renditions Miss Pettigrew had complete control of her tones and it was quite evident that this innate depth gave her an unusual wide range. Her high and low tone combined in one song gave the listener a sense of her versatility and color to this writer it would be rather hard to pinpoint her voice according to register.

Her enunciation throughout her performance was perfect and her stage presence was most significant. However, a more gradual crescendo would be preserving to the power of her voice.

IN HER initial single performance, Miss Pettigrew interpreted "Ine Almighty" by Schubert, "Cuius Ae" von Gementem, "Stabat Mater" by Pergolesi and a favorite spiritual "Heav de Lambs A-Crying by Burleigh.

In her rendition fo the Scrubert song there was climactic and sutaining control and the was superb as she sang the Pergolesi aria. Of course there was great spirituality in the Burleigh rendition.

Miss Pettigrew enhanced this group of songs with an encore number, the favorite, Mozart's "Alleluia," which brought out full breath control in her gustaining notes.

Her last solo group of numbers included Handel's "Rejoice Greatly" from "The Messiah," the aria "Mother, Merciful Virgin" from "La Forza del Destino" by Verdi, and another of our American spirituals "Oh, What a Beautiful City" by Boatner.

All of these numbers call for skill and Miss Pettigrew proved to be a master of concerted compositon. She also has control of languages and style.

• • •

MISS PETTIGREW has had extensive study, having been a first olace winner of the Marian Anderson Award. She has been singing since high school days. She did her college work at Virginia State College. Famous teachers she has studied under include Carroll Hollister a metropolitan opera coach and Cleota Collins.

She has appeared with a well considerering the group cently sang the lead in "Aida" with the New York State Opera Company.

The choral society sang well considerering the group is not altogether professional. An integrated aggregation, it seems drawing from both groups would bring it up more in balance. The male voices are the strongest link in the group at this time. The program which it rendered, revealed much hard work and fruitful rehearsals unde the direction of Jean Ressler. The group did an exceptional rendition fo the British Children's Prayer in a flowing style.

The three spirituals "There is Balm in Gilead," arranged by Raymond, Dett's "Somebody's Knocking at Your Door" and Roll Jordan Roll," arranged by Gillium, were sung in good harmony in the traditional American spiritual style.

There again in "Somebody" Knocking at Your Door," Miss Pettigrew sang the solo part with great spiritual fervor. Leads to "There is a Balm in Gilead" were sung by Audrey Goldborough, soprano, and Thomas L. Dove, baritone.

The last number, "God of Our Fathers", was done in great contrast to the other numbers. Here Miss Pettigrew did the obligato and the entire group was accompanied by trumpets, tympani percussion, organ and piano. This was a great triumph for the society.

-Nancy Smith and Eleanor Parker were pianists, Leone Wertz, organist, Jack Koontz, Jack Doran and Ralph Betz, trumpeters, Robert Tate, tympanist, and percussion was by Richard Kumer and Larry Archer.

• • •

SINGERS INTEREST In joining the choral society may contact Mrs Ressler by phone at 263-5127 or write to her at 1943 Fairfax Road.

It was a real source of pleasure for a group of Naomi's friends and sorority sisters to gather at the William H. Richardson residence to greet her on Saturday evening before the concert. The intimacy of the small group made the evening on of inspiration, stimulation and fun.

Activity included the listening of Handel's "The Messiah," featuring Leonard Bernstein and his orchestra, William Warfield, baritone, and Adele Addison, soprano, and other music rendered by the Mormon Choir on stage.

Also everyone had a workout with Mitch and his group in singing. Mrs. Richardson served a delightful coffee menu of date-nut bread with a frozen fruit salad, both of which she made, and potato chips.

Those who chatted with Naomi were Mesdames Thomas R. Baden (Mary), George Diggs (Beulah), Joseph Hardesty (Lulu), Willie Q. McManus (Joyce), Paul Diggs (Elizabeth), Douglas R. Lacey (Mary), and Rufus Abernethy (Agnes) and Miss Henrietta Thompson.

FEBRUARY SEEMS to be a very popular month for birthdays and anniversaries for some families. As we know two of our greatest presdents, Abraham Lincoln and George Washington were in February.

Mr. and Mrs. Gossie Spencer of Pasadena, Md. will be married 55 years on February 7. Natives of Anne Arundel County, they grew up together as children at Elvaton, Md., and were joined together in Holy matrimony there in 1909.

They are the parents of one adopted son, Eugene Clark. He and his wife Gertrude are the parents of two children, Kenneth, 18, a student at Morgan State College, and Joyce, 17, a junior at Bates High whose birthday is on February 10. Mr. Clark birthday is on February 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer have been active members of the Hall Methodist Church for 48 years. He is a steward and Sunday School teacher and Mrs. Spencer is a trustee, the only woman trustee the church has ever had on its rolls. She is active in the Woman's Society of Christian Service, working with the Commission on Missons. Mr. Spencer loves to embroider and has been a charter member of the Philanthropy Sewing Circle for 39 years.

Mr. Spencer operates a truck farm, which is also his hobby. The couple huckster vegetables at a private stand.

But still speaking of birthdays in February ,Mrs. Jennie Hudson, a sister of Mr. Spencer, has a birthday on February 25. A close family friend, Mrs. Edna Cager on Solley Road was born on February 28.

Other sisters of Mrs. Spencer are Mrs. Ida Mann of Earleigh Heights and Mrs. Berthe Walker of Baltimore.

Mrs. Spencer has a sister, Mrs. Cora Carter who lives at Brooklyn, Md. and a brother, Roland Spencer at Pittsburgh.

CAP unit forming on Westside

West Baltimore's newly-organized Civil Air Patrol group will hold its first meeting on Feb. 6, at 8 p.m. in Mondawmin Shopping Center's Community Hall.

The unit is being formed in wake of the announcement that the Maryland Civil Air Patrol Wing is now desegregated.

Headed by Charles E. Presberry, a former Air Force recruiter and now Deputy United States Marshall, the unit is accepting applications for membership.

THE CAP is open for boys girls between the ages of 13-21 years of age and who possess excellent morale character and who are students.

The Rev. Marion C. Bascom, paster of Douglas Memorial Community Church has consented to take an active part in the new organization.

Mr. Presbury has been commissioned 1st lieutenant and designated Squadron of the Metropolitan Young Commander of the fledgling group.

Percy Tucker, an insurance salesman with the Progressive Life Insurance Company and a former military policeman in the Air Force has been designated Squadron Executive Officer.

Senator sees need for 50,000 Jobs

GARY, Ind. —Sen. Vance Hartke (D-Ind), speaking Thursday at a Victory Dinner in Gary, Ind. called for 50,000 new jobs a week.

"Today we need new jobs at an incredible rate," the senior Indiana Senator said. "We have to soak up those who are thrown out of work by automation. We have to soak up all the young people moving into the job market. We have to soak up those who are living longer but who cannot exist on social security."

Senator Hartke continued, "we need 50,000 new jobs every week. To do this means we need to grow — we need more factories, more jobs, more demand for steel and all the other things that are capable of producing in this wonderful land of ours."

SENATOR HARTKE, a member of the Finance Committee, noted that the only way we are going to provide these needed extra jobs is to have more money flowing in the national economy. He promised, "—there is going to be $11,000 million —that $11 billion— more flowing through this year. Most of it will be pumped into the pockets of the workers.

Elsewhere in his speech, Senator Hartke attacked the John Birchers. He said, "I have been warned repeatedly to 'lay off' attacks on the lunatic fringes (the Birchites), especially these wild so-called conservatives. But I consider them a distinct danger to the State and Nation and I shall continue talking about them.

"They are not true conservatives because they don't want to conserve anything. To conserve means to save," he continued. "they are bent on destruction and not salvation. They want to abolish the income tax, impeach the Supreme Court, install a fascist dictatorship, create the kind of fear of neighbors and smear of decent people in government that will make us ripe for plucking.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — The Florida A and M. University High School is one of nearly 4,000 secondary schools enrolled in the 1963-64 National Student Traffic Safety Program, according to the National Commission on Safety Education of the National Education Association. At FAMU High, Mrs. Willie Pearl Porter, School nurse, is in charge of the program.

Rising danccr, 23, only 3 ft. tall—all of him

PHILADELPHIA — Diminutive Kenneth Brown, who, if performing on a basketball court would come up to Wilt Chamberlain's kneecap even if he stood on tiptoe, appears headed toward becoming a 'giant' in show business as he has become a show - stopping fixture with Singer Jackie Wilson on the touring circuit.

Brown, whose height runs flush with a 36-inch yardstick and weights 85' pounds, recently had them screaming for more at the Harlem Apollo theatre, as he turned on a knock-down drag-out dance routine.

Kenny, 23, and the son of a Charleston, S.C. clergyman, in January 1963, drew the attention of the famed Jackie Wilson when the three-foot dancer visited him backstage during a performance at Washington, D.C.'s Howard Theatre. Kenny recalls Wilson's invitation for him to join him in the show's finale, and what was to be one ending almost turned into a beginning as the audience went wild.

Now making Philadelphia his home, Brown, points out that it encouragement and instructions from Charleston's noted radio personality, Bob Nichols of WPAC, that induced him to enter the field of entertainment. Prior to that time, Kenny was associated with the Boag's Mart Art studio in Charleston as a photographer.

The young performer is the son of the Rev. Willis and Mrs. Brown, Sr. of Charleston, and is one of six sisters and three brothers, "and the smallest", says Kenny. All other member of the family are normal size, he says. He is a graduate of Burke High School in Charleston.

Director of Music Theraphy speaks at local CORE meet

By ADAH K. JENKINS

As guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Baltimore Chapter of CORE, James Young, director of the local chapter of the Foundation for Music Therapy and Research, Inc., gave an interesting and informative description of treating mentally retarded children.

Slides were shown depicting the program at the Baltimore head-quarters, 2305 Winchester St. and at a center in Westchester, N.Y.

Mr. Young, is a graduate in musical therapy, outlined plans for enlarged quarter proposed for the local center. In addition to his experience in this area, he is well known as a violinist and director of youth musical activities.

The Baltimore Chapter of the Foundation recently held a memorial service at Enon Baptist Church for President Kennedy, who was actively interested in education of the mentilly retarded.

The CORE meeting was presided over by Edward Chance, president.

IT ITS second concert of this season the Chamber Music Society of Baltimore reverted to its custom of presenting a contemporary composer as speaker, preceding a performance of one of his works.

Guest for the January concert was Herbert Brum, German composer, who has taught at Tanglewood and at Jerusalem Conservatory. In addition to his research in electronic, he is a concert pianist.

Mr. Brum addressed himself mainly to the importance of audiences exerting imagination when listening to contemporary compositions: His Quartet No. 3 was given its local premiere by the La Salle String Quartet, now in residence at the University of Cincinnati.

The two movements, one lyric in feeling and the second, with the percussive drive heard often in avant garde music, were well received by the large audience that was generous with its applause.

The novelty and "shock" of the afternoon was "Alaforio" by Franco Evangelisti, also a contemporary musician. Two versions were played by the Quartet, the second being on muted strings. The phrases were amazingly short and jagged, with prolonged pauses after each one, music was produced not only by the conventional bowings and pluckings, but hand-slapping and finger-taps on the instruments.

The LaSalle players, who formed their ensemble in 1946 at the Julliard, gave a vivacious reading of Haydn and an intense interpretation of Brahms.

WILLIAM O. MYERS, of the faculty at Montrose School for Girls was elected recently to the Advisory Board of the Maryland State Training Schools, of which Otis H. Robertson is president.

Mr. Myers, who is a graduate of Peabody, is engaged in a thesis for his master's degree at the same institution. He is doing a special study of the values of vocal music at the Montrose School, with a view to suggested music curricula at the state training schools.

The Music Committee of the Jewish Community Center, has announced, circuit its chairman, Mrs. Joseph Sherbow, that the title "Outstanding Baltimore Musician of the Year" will be awarded on the basis of competition rather than by invitation.

Applicants will be required to submit a 60-minute program representing classic, romantic and modern periods, with one work by a Jewish or contemporary Israeli composer. Auditions will be held March 30 and 31 before a visiting adjudicator and the award will be a professional appearance on the JCC Concert Series in November of 1964.

Applications should be sent to the chairman of the Musicians Competition: Mrs. Ben Reubens, 6 Peachtree Court, Pikesville 8, Md.

• • •

ANNOUNCEMENTS have been issued by the Maryland State Music Teachers Association thru its president, Emerson Myers, of auditions to be held in April 1964 to choose a winner who will be a participant at the Eastern Division MTNA Convention in New York on May 7th.

The winner of the Division Finals in New York will take part in the Fort Worth Convention in 1965. Entrance fee, entry form, and tapes of the artist must be submitted not later than April 15th, to Mrs. Gertrude Brown, 5126 Bradley Blvd. Chevy Chase, Md.
