College coaches overlook cage gem in Douglass ace

It could very well be that the basketball coaches at area colleges are overlooking a real gem in their apparent lack of interest in a promising young Douglass High School cager.

The Maryland Scholastic Association produces top flight material in all the major sports each year, what with the conference being represented in football, basketball and track at schools throughout the country as well as at numerous institutions in the GIAA.

* * *

MORGAN'S John Bethea and Nick Lee, Virginia State's Ted Manning and Colorado State's Norm Burkett are a few cases in point.

As of today, however, there have been none of the customary "feelers" for the key man in Douglass' 2 time division champion quintet.

* * *

HE IS Andre Billups, a 6 foot, 4 inch jumpingjack who has been the backbone of a formidable Duck five for the past three years.

Billups, product of a refined, well adjusted family in Baltimore's Belmont Avenue, made the varsity team as a tenth grader. And the lack of junior varsity orientation has never shown any ill effects.

He moved into the lineup immediately and has been a regular — and a dependable one — on the Duck five every year he has been at the school.

* * *

LARGELY BECAUSE of his talents, the Ducks captured division honors in 1962 and 1963, and are in the thick of the battle for the 1964 crown. Described by scholastic coaches as an "excellent" rebounder, Billups boasts a 3 year average of 15 points a game in a relatively lowscore situation.

ANDRE BILLUPS

Douglass coach Mack Payne teaches possession ball and stresses the importance of high percentage shooting.

* * *

ASKED ABOUT Andre's requisites, aside from floor performance, Payne declares:

"He is a quiet, unassuming boy with all the natural attributes. If there is anything lacking in his makeup, it is the aggressiveness that would make him a tremendous leader.

"This has to do only with personality. He's aggressive enough as an athlete, but he prefers to pursue the quiet, gentlemanly course that won't let him take over.

* * *

"IT WOULD BE easy for him to become a leader, too. The other boys on the team have the utmost respect for him. They appear to want to look up to him, as they indicated when they elected him captain for this year. He deserved.

He has the size and the ability. He is coachable and, most important of all, he has has the fine attitude. In the three years he has been on the team, I doubt that he has missed more than two practices. And he missed those only because a virus bug wouldn't let him attend."

* * *

IN ADDITION to what he has managed to show on the court as a player, Billups is regarded as a good student.

According to reports, his scholastic average is between 75 and 80, going into the final months of his enrollment at Douglass — SAM LACY.

Ashe, McKinley, Ralston in Salisbury indoor tennis

SALISBURY, Md. — Arthur Ashe, sixth ranked U.S. tennis player, and the first colored American to make a Davis Cup team, will be among the contenders at the National Indoor tennis championships, Feb. 18-23, at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Ashe will vie for honors with Chuck McKinley, recent Wimbledon victor, United States fourth ranked Gene Scott, ninth ranked Tom Edlefsen and other champions representing the Davis Cup teams from Spain, Mexico, Yugoslavia, India and Australia.

* * *

WILLIAM RIORDAN, president of the Middle-Atlantic Tennis Association and general chairman for the event, said a special sportsmanship award is to be made by Carling Brewing Company to the player elected by a committee of special judges as the best exemplar of sportsmanly conduct.

The U.S. Indoor Tennis Committee in conjunction with Carling, is holding a reception in honor of the players late Saturday night, after the presentation of the Carling trophy.

Charles M. Thomas, plant manager, Baltimore, will give the award.

* * *

SALISBURY managed to beat out Chicago, East, Louisville and other cities when it was decided to shift the event from New York because of repairs to the 7th Regiment Armory there.

The matches had been played in New York for the past 60 years.

Assembly to act on 38 vetoed bills

A vetoed bill, which would have increased the minimum and total amounts for bodily injury and property damage required under the state's motor vehicle laws, faces consideration when the General Assembly convenes Wednesday in Annapolis for a 30-day session.

This bill is among 38 such measures— 15 Senate bills and 23 originating in the House—enacted by the 1963 Assembly, but vetoed by Gov. J. Millard Tawes for various reasons.

The state's Constitution requires all such vetoed measures must be referred to the House in which they originated immediately after that House shall have organized at the next regular or special session of the Assembly for reconsideration

A three-fifths vote of the members of each House is necessary to enact a bill over the veto of the governor.

In vetoing the motor vehicle financial responsibility bill, Gov. Tawes said he felt it would create confusion unless corresponding revisions are incorporated in other sections of the law.

* * *

AMONG THE other bills vetoed by the governor and up for consideration by the Assembly are:

One which would have allowed prison labor in Wicomico County to be utilized at no expense to the county or municipality, vetoed because of the no expense provisions.

A bill prescribing certain penalties for indecent and immoral shows in Anne Arundel county, which was vetoed because the attorney general's office deemed it unconstitutional.

Another measure which would set up stricter provisions for reimbursement from relatives of those granted public welfare payments under the Old Age Assistance category, was vetoed because the governor felt it would add confusion to present rules.

Also vetoed was a bill to provide pensions to former members of the state's General Assembly, because the attorney general's office decided it violated two Constitution al provisions.

A measure, which would have allowed the personnel officer of Baltimore's police department wider and more specific powers in appointments and promotions involving the department, was vetoed because the present regulations are deemed sufficient.

In the vetoed category also was a bill to extend from 10 to 30 days the period which an appeal could be taken from Baltimore's Municipal Court to the city's Criminal Court.

Chicago alderman gets death threat

CHICAGO — Alderman Charles Chew Jr. last week said he was threatened with death by an anonymous telephone caller. The alderman said he telephoned police and they came to his home immediately.

They conducted a search of the premises and found that his garage had been broken open, he said. A thorough check of the autos was made, but no contraptions were found on either.
