Plea to scorn 2 South dems

NEW YORK (UPI) — James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, called on the Democratic Party to repudiate. Its congressmen "who have publicly repudiated the Democratic Party."

Farmer specifically named Rep. John Bell Williams, D. Miss., and Rep. Albert Watson, D.S.C. He said they should be "denied membership in the Democratic caucus."

Farmer made the suggestion in a statement congratulating the American people on "their good sense" in voting on basis of issues and not of prejudice.

of the constructive role played by hundreds of thousands of colored voters, many of whom have made great sacrifices to enroll and vote," he said.

"We believe that we have provided the margin of victory in such southern states as Florida, Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina."

Hyman helps housewife win 1-day fight to vote

By STERLING PAIGE

A charming 24-year-old housewife, declared ineligible to vote, rolled up her sleeves to do something about it and walked in to the City House accompanied by "People's Champion" Hyman Pressman, city comptroller.

After a two-hour special hearing Tuesday afternoon before Judge Shirley Jones, Mrs. Carolyn C. Valentine, 3724 Nortonia Rd., emerged from the Court House armed with a conurt order permitting her to vote.

It seems the trouble began, according to Mrs. Valentine, when she failed to receive her voter's card through the mails as promised following her change of address registration on Sept. 22.

On Monday, the attractive mother of one went to the Board of Election Supervisors to find out about her card.

There she was told her name was not on the books and that she had never been registered there.

"Fortunately, I still had my duplicate card from a previous address to prove that I have been registered," said Mrs. Valentine.

The determined lady contacted a friend and political worker who, in turn, contacted Hyman Pressman.

The diminutive Pressman, adept in championing people's rights, went to work in her behalf. A one-hour search of records at the Board of Election Supervisors turned up the Valentine name in the "dead file".

Again informed she would be unable to vote in this election, she told the AFRO: "I was dis-enfranchised because of an error on their part".

Mr. Pressman, contacting the attorney-general's office, was informed that nothing could be done without a court order. He proceeded to file for one.

Emerging from the Court House Tuesday afternoon with the court order, Pressman, the Baltimore watchdog congratulated Mrs. Valentine, who said:

"This is my first general election. I was too young to vote for President Kennedy.

To me, this is the most important thing I have ever done. I just wanted to vote in this important election."

She did.

Two victories, no votes for Kaufman

A. Robert Kaufman, Socialist Party write-in candidate for the Senate, failed to get elected to that august body, but he did win two victories during the past campaign.

His most important success came as a result of his battle to win free television time as a serious candidate.

After conferences with the Federal Communications Commission, Kauffman was offered free time on all three local stations to make his views known and was seen by an estimated one million people.

Two of the shows were taped interviews and one was a live half-hour speech in evening time.

The candidate explained that in order to win the free time, the State Attorney General's office had to certify to the FCC that under Maryland law: "(1) write-in votes were legal and (2) if he received a plurality of the votes, he would be considered elected.

In his TV talks, the man who ran on the same ticket with Clifton DeBerry (Socialist candidate for President) stated his policies on civil rights and urged the workers to form their own party.

KAUFMAN'S other victory in his home was the fact that he was allowed to hold a campaign meeting.

The rally went off as planned, despite the fact that an invitation was sent to the City Housing Authority. The invitation was declined.

Unlike most office-seekers, who usually take election day off to rest, Kauffman spent the first half of the day working at his regular job and the next half trying to vote for a write-in candidate, himself.

Kaufman said that at first election officials refused to tell him the procedure.

After he threatened to stand in the polling place for the remainder of the day, he was grudgingly told the proper procedure. He still does not know how many votes he got.

degree burns over 85 percent of her body on June 3.

WHEN the woman was admitted to University Hospital doctors and police believed her burns had been the result of an accident.

However, according to Sgt. George Hudges, Western District, the dying woman later told a hospital physician that the defendant, a suitor, set her afire during an argument.

James Gross, who also lived at the Carlton St. residence and is brother of the deceased, was the first witness called by prosecutor, Edward Wyatt.

The witness testified he ran down a flight of stairs to the first floor and found fire blazing in three places in the dining and living rooms.

He said he ran back to the second floor and got an oil lamp and returned.

"That's when I found my sister lying naked on the sofa. I saw that she was badly burned," Mr. Gross said.

He said the defendant joined him and a friend taking Mrs. Sorrell to a hospital and on the way Waddell told me that he poured the kerosene on her and set her on fire."

Police did not learn this information until later, Sgt. Hudges told the court.

THE DEAD woman's husband, Charles Sorrell, who said that he and his wife had been separated for some time and that he was living in Easton, Md., also testified.

He stated that he had gone to the hospital to be treated for injuries he received on his job, a day after the incident, and learned what happened.

"I went to see Tossie (Mrs. Sorrell) and she told me that she didn't think she would live. I told her not to give up hope," he told the court.

He said he had a warrant issued charging Waddell with assault by setting Mrs. Sorrell on fire.

Sgt. Hudges testimony revealed that when the defendant was apprehended he denied having set the woman afire but admitted pouring kerosene on her.

"He said after he poured the kerosene on her she sat down in a chair and lit a cigarette and her clothes caught fire," the sergeant stated.

He also stated Waddell told him he poured kerosene on Mrs. Sorrell when she came at him with a knife.

Guild headed by Mrs. Ruth Love.

The Guild, working in cooperation with the F. and M. Schafer Brewing Company, as its sister chapter in New York has in the past, handled local arrangements.

MRS. LOVE said Mrs. Britton, mother of two children, indicated on her application that she was legally eligible.

Mrs. Britton could not be reached by presstime for comment.

Other finalists included:

Misses Jean Randall, Connie Hebron, Mildred Dorsey, Carolyn Dotson, Joyce Jordan, Lucille Banton, Carlotta Jones, Rachael Ballard, Arlene Williams, Alaina Allen, Marjorie Evens and Jackie Shears.

Judges were Sen. Verda F. Welcome, Municipal Court Judge Robert B. Watts, Raymond V. Haysbert, Mrs. Mildred Atkinson, Leonard Bahr and Rheuben Kramer.

James H. Tarter regional advertising supervisor for Schaefer, said the age discovery has made it necessary for new crowning ceremonies to be scheduled.

Present plans call for restaging the event sometimes later this month.

An official notice of time and place will be announced.

At stake in the contest is a $500 prize and a one-year contract with the brewery.

The hijinks section of the otherwise formal affair Friday was the masquerade ball, where three unusual costumes took top prizes ranging from $100 to $25 dollars.

First place winner was George Shipman, whose "Six Faces", from the "World of Abstract," was a brilliant illustration of artistic creativity.

Miss Jacquelin Britton took down second prize of $75 for her "Floating Cloud" costume, and Mike Gallagher came in third for a $25 prize for his "Fire Bird" creation from Stravinsky's Fire Bird Suite.

Mr. and Mrs. Awayzer Thompson, won honorable mention for their "Cop and Robber" outfit.

Vagabond Players slate 'Thousand Clowns' comedy

The Vagabond Players will stage "A Thousand Clowns," comedy show, by Herb Gardner, November 18 through November 21, at 8:30 p.m. in the Peabody auditorium.

Having created America's funniest creatures, the Nebishes, Gardner has turned out a daffy, laugh circus about a bachelor uncle who had been left to rear his precocious nephew.

Heading the Vagabond cast are Walter Pearthree as bachelor uncle and Barbara Brown as social worker. The part of the twelve - year - old nephew will be alternated by Tom Reid and Todd Pearthree.

Others in the cast are: Arthur Laupus, David Cravatts, and Bruce Johnson.

Anthony J. Brafa directs with Vernon Winces as Assistant Director and George Knauf as stage manager.

New NAACP branch in Northern Maine

CARIBOU, Me. — The NAACP is now in the process of organizing a new branch in this northernmost community in Maine, Thomas H. Allen, NAACP field director for the New York - New England area, announced.

Mr. Allen, who recently spent several days here meeting with local religious leaders and other persons, stated that when organized the branch will consist primarily of officers and enlisted men stationed at Loring Air Force Base in Limestone.
