NAACP VOTE CAMPAIGN AWARDS — Community Service Awards were made recently for supreme efforts made in the Register to Vote Campaign. Awards went to (left to right) Larry Dean, Mrs. Mary B. Adams, Mrs. Betty Silbert and Dr. John L. Tilley. Dr. Lillie M. Jackson, Baltimore NAACP president, made the presentations.

PANTHERS DEFY BEARS — Union University backs William Beard (32) and Wilbert Talley (10) loom as chief threats to Morgan State College as Panthers invade den of the Bears at Hughes Stadium tomorrow (Saturday). Freshman Beard is prime ball carrier and junior Talley shows versatility in alternating at quarterback and halfback. Virginia hope to upend favored Baltimore eleven and project selves in middle of hot CIAA championship race.

It was a time for Tydings

"Time For Tydings!"

That was the official slogan which dominated the campaign of Joseph D. Tydings in his relentless and triumphant drive to a seat in the U.S. Senate.

An hour-glass was the official campaign symbol.

On Tuesday, just as it had in the primary election, time again was woven into the creation of Maryland's newest senator.

As if conceived by the mind of a fiction writer, the well-calculated and highly precisioned plot began unfolding at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

After running down complaints of weird doings in precincts throughout the Fourth District, we returned to the office.

"The Tydings' headquarters left this message for you," said the AFRO's "hello girl," Mrs. Susie Clark, as she handed us a note.

"The victory celebration will start at 9 p.m. in the Sheraton Belvedere Hotel," the message said in a matter-of-fact way.

• • •

WE CHASED more complaints observed some strange Shenanigans before finally going to 26 E. Baltimore St., the Tydings headquarters.

"Hey Joe," said campaign staff director J. Harold Grason, Republican incumbent seeking re-election, is on the telephone...the white one."

"Thank you very much," said Mr. Tydings, speaking into the white telephone, as a wide smile creased his obviously tired face.

Senator Beall was conceding.

Time: 8:45 p.m.

Ten blocks away, in the ballroom of the Sheraton Belvedere Hotel, the victory celebration was already in progress.

It actually started before 8:30.

• • •

"IT WAS just a matter of time," is the way Stephen H. Sachs, bright young lawyer and legal braintrust of the Tydings steamroller.

It was just that simple.

The 676,411 vote total rolled up by the 36-year-old candidate and the resultant restrained celebration were strictly academic.

There were no moments of anxiety, foreboding or doubt. Fact is, the aura of confidence, blanketing the headquarters shortly before the polls closed until the first telecast of VPA (Vote Profile Analysis) prediction, which came shortly after 7 p.m. made the final outcome of the rather brief lady rather routine.

Unlike the primary, when the headquarters was charged with excitement which erupted into wild celebration when it became certain that the former U.S. District Attorney had beaten Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein, Tuesday night was more like a student who knew he had done his homework well and was merely waiting for the marks to be posted.

The celebration itself, both in the ballroom, where the teenagers held sway and in the PXresidential suite, where stay of the young adult pros of the campaign who toasted victory was little more than a resumption of the primary merrymaking.

It was as if the party took up where it left off six months ago with little in the way of newness.

There was no boasting, bragging, deleterium or hysterics.

Instead an attitude of "This is the way it is supposed to turn out", pervaded the scene.

• • •

OF COURSE there were the usual exchanges of congratulations, much handshaking, backslapping, and smiles galore.

These, however, were basically perfunctory.

The homework had been done and the student had been promoted.

Of more than passing interest was the conspicuous absence of the "Party Pros," who have guided the destiny of state politics since 1956 when Gov. J. Millard Tawes took over the governor's mansion in Annapolis.

Ejner Johnson, administrative assistant, was the only person from the party inner circle to show.

Instead, the young faces of energetic, determined and relentless youngbloods—a trademark of the Tydings campaign—were much in evidence.

Raw rookies in the political arena only six months ago, they had blossomed into hard-boiled politicians with a purpose who support the "New Image" philosophy which marked the brilliant race to the Senate by the Harford County man who ran under the "Kennedy Democrat" banner.

Among them were:

Edgar Feingold, Jerold Hoffberger, Joe McInerney, Vic Cushwa, Francis X Gallagher, the aforementioned Sachs and Marion, Walter and his wife, Joanne Orlinsky, Sally Feingold;

Also Arthur G. Murphy, James Edwards, Archie D. Williams, George Barrett, Claude (Buddy) Young, Pat Stanley (Dets) Young, Pat Morrison, George Barrett (I) mention a few.

HYMAN A. PRESSMAN, City comptroller, Philip H. Goodman, Clarence M. Mitchell 3rd, George P. Mahoney, seasoned politicians who are not included in the inner circle of the current state political hierarchy, were also in evidence.

In the heart of the celebration were Mrs. Joseph D Tydings (Ginny) attractive wife of the candidate as was her mother, the gracious Mrs. Millard E. Tydings, wife of former senator Tydings, wife of former senator Tydings.

They joined with other relatives, friends, and supporters to prove, without doubt, that it was indeed, "Time For Tydings!"

Mrs. Isabelle Braxton, teacher, buried today

Requiem mass was said this morning (Friday) at St. Mary P.E. Church for Mrs. Isabelle Braxton, 2828 Ellicott Drive.

Mrs. Braxton, a kindergarten teacher at Coleman Elementary School No. 142, died suddenly on Sunday evening at Pennsylvania Station.

She was prepared to board the 6:09 p.m. train for Charlottesville, Va., to be at the bedside of her critically ill brother, Henry Coolidge.

Mrs. Barxton's husband, Aquila, who has been ill at home for three years, was also unable to attend the funeral.

• • •

IN ADDITION to the brother and husband, other relatives are a nephew, Charles Brackett; a foster brother, James Brackett, both of Baltimore; and a foster sister, Mrs. Marian Graham, Brooklyn, N. Y.;

Also, six cousins, Mrs. Bessie Walker, Buffalo, N.Y.; Floyd Scott, Philadelphia; Mrs. Alice Howard, Charlottesville, Va.; Honsece and Mrs. V. Odell Whitfield, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Alice Nichole, of D.C.

Other out-of-towners here for the funeral were: Mrs. Norman Harris, N.Y.; Mrs. Nan Gatewood, Philadelphia; Miss Edith Nelson, Philadelphia; and George Jackson, D.C.

MRS. BRATXON, was a kindergarten teacher in Baltimore public schools for 34 years, and opened the first nursery at School No. 112.

Her teaching career spanned about 27 years.

She was a graduate of Hampton Institute, Morgan State College, and took graduate work at Hopkins and New York Universities.

EVERYONE WAS THERE — Mayor McKeldin, City Council President D'Alesandro were among city and state civic leaders who filled auditorium of 3-million dollar Rock Glen School for dedication exercises on Monday evening. Youth to light of microphone, is William Buckingham, president of the school council. He gave tremendous acceptance talk. Next to him, Mrs. Charlotte Chaffee, PTA president, who also spoke. On her left, Miss Mary Adams, retiring assistant superintendent of elementary schools. Partially hidden on stage is Miss Anne L. Barlage, principal. Behind her, Sixth District Delegate Harry J. McGuirk, Mrs. Elizabeth Murphy Moss, school commissioner, and Fifth District State Senator Paul A. Dorf. Youngsters with musical instruments in front are, left to right, Tom Ladan, LaVerne Rawlings, Virgie Smoot and Russell Perkins. (AFRO Staff Photo by I. Henry Philips).

Bear-Panther tilt pits eager foes

With each of them coming off a stinging setback the last time out, the football teams of Morgan State College and Union University of Richmond, clash here tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon in quest of a comeback victory.

Both remain irked by losses last Saturday, and the coaches—Earl Banks Morgan and Tom Harris of Union—are expecting some real fireworks.

Morgan was derailed from her unbeaten track and thrown back in the pack of mere title contenders by A and T brought them, at east ion was embarrassed at her homecoming by a 25-22 defeat at the hands of Virginia State.

THE DEVELOPMENTS left the Bears shaken and the Panthers ambitious.

Until handed her come-uppance by the Aggies, Greensboro, N.C., Morgan was riding high-and already preparing to accept the laurel wreath of a CIAA championship, their second in three years. The loss to A and T brougrt them, at least temporarily, back to earth.

The Panthers, on the other hand, arrive in Hughes Stadium with the conviction that they are not out of it if they can take the measure of the Golden Bears.

As they see it, by whipping Morgan, they can stay within one game of pace-setting A and T and Virginia State, who meet each other next Saturday.

• • •

UNION will take the field with six first-year men in the starting lineup. But this may not be good news to the Bears.

Coach Harris said, "We feel that the freshmen, especially Monroe Beard, Willie Spence, Joe Thorpe, Cedric Geter, Herman Lewis, Donald Patterson, Donald Shedrick, James Kelly and Ben Gray, are playing at the sophomore level; and Jesse Chavis, Ronald Fleming, Cornelius Johnson are playing football above the expectations of freshmen."

Harris gives credit to the assistant coaches, Willard Bailey, Joe Harvest and Jones Davis.

He said, "We have had to teach techniques for most of the season on account of the youth of the squad, and they have done an outstanding job."

'Big O' injured, return to Royals is uncertain

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)—Oscar Robertson, all-pro guard of the Cincinnati Royals, was reported "feeling much better" in Christ Hospital here, but his return to the Royals' lineup was still uncertain.

Robertson, big gun of the National Basketball Association second place team, suffered a severe cut in his eye during last Sunday's game with the Baltimore Bullets.

Royals' general manager Pepper Wilson said Robertson would definitely miss Friday's game with the Bullets and Saturday's contest at Philadelphia. It was also expected he would sit out a home game Sunday with the league leading Boston Celtics.

COACH JACK MCMAHON said, "I don't know what kind of club I've got with Oscar out. Everybody looks to him. Somebody else will have to do it."

The only time Robertson missed a long string of games was in 1960-61, his rookie year, when a hip injury kept him out of eight games.

The Royals lost seven of the eight and lost a chance to gain the NBA playoffs, finishing fourth in their division, only one game out of third.
