How councilmen

Only some clerks, other aides, newsmen and a few observers milled about.

The "others" the clerk referred to are members of the Reed-Pollack-Hodges Council faction which has been deadlocked in a 10 - 10 tie with the D'Alesandro forces on filling a vacancy.

STATE SEN. William (Biff) Hodges (6th D) paced slowly up and down the outside corridor. Two of his district's three councilmen are allied with his faction.

"Where's your group, Biff?" somebody asked him.

"They'll be here, soon," he replied, around the stump of a cigar. "They're holed up and ready."

It later developed his Reed-Pollack-Hodges forces were indeed holed up—but far from ready at the time.

One of their members was late returning from business near Washington, and the faction wouldn't come to the Council to present a quorum with a 9-10 minority.

There remained that vacant seat to be filled by a majority vote.

"THIS IS A helluva way to run a Council," one of the D'Alesandro forces member complained. "Let's get started or go home."

The D'Alesandro combine of 10 members finally sat down at 4:43, and Mr. Benton started his discourse.

Eight minutes later at 4:51 by the Council clock, Mr. Gallagher strode into the chamber leading all other nine members of his Reed-Pollack-Hodges faction.

They had finally gotten hold of their missing man.

Somebody in the D'Alesandro group yelled out: "Hail! Hail! the gang's all here."

A few minutes later, Mr. Gallagher, in his post as vice president, moved the Council sit in formal session.

NOBODY OBJECTED. They all acted as though nothing unusual had happened.

Later, the warring factions agreed to declare a moratorium on each's efforts to sneak its nominee into the Council vacancy—until the budget business is out of the way.

The Reed-Pollack-Hodges group still wants the vacant seat of the late George W. Arthur (3rd D) filled by his widow, Mrs. Margaret Arthur.

The D'Alesandro forces want Joseph L. Manning, food association executive.

The vote always ends in a 10-10 deadlock.

Full attendance of both factions at Council sessions since his death more than a month ago has been the factor to halt the selection of either nominee.

GREENSBORO, N.C. — The fourth annual Language Arts Institute, a program sponsored by the A and T College Department of Engllsh, will be held at the college Nov. 20. The one-day session will feature as consultants, Dr. J. Saunders Redding, professor of English at Hampton Institute.

Supreme bench

dore R. McKeldin, has ever appointed a lawyer who was not recommended by the Bar Association committee.

The key to the predicted history-making event, therefore, hinges on the list.

Heretofore, no colored lawyer has been recommended by the Bar for appointment to the city's highest court.

However, George L. Russell Jr., brilliant defense lawyer, and Municipal Court Judge Robert B. Watts have been given better than an even chance to make the next list.

Mr. Russell — these sources have hinted — is an odds - on favorite to get the judgeship.

Before any of this happens, of course, several conditions must be met. None of which can be satisfied before Dec. 7, which reportedly will set off a chain reaction.

That's when Chief Judge William L. Henderson retires from the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Since he is a Baltimorean Gov. Tawes is expected to replace him with a Baltimorean.

Both Supreme Bench Judges J. Gilbert Prendergast and Wilson K. Barnes have been mentioned as a possible replacement.

In that event a vacancy will be created on the Supreme Bench and the Bar Association will begin compiling a list of recommendations.

Should Governor Tawes pass up the Supreme Bench in filling the Appellate Court vacancy, the prediction would fall flat.

This possibility, the AFRO has learned, is considered unlikely because the governor is expected to follow the established pattern of filling vacancies on the state's highest court.

It was recently illustrated when another Baltimore Court of Appeals judge reached retirement age and Supreme Bench Judge Reuben Oppenheimer replaced him.

Community leaders who have constantly urged the appointment of a colored Supreme Bench judge, greeted the report of a pending precedent-setting event enthusiastically.

"It is long overdue," was the unanimous reaction.

The identity of the prospective judge was given little importance. "As long as we get a capable representative of more than a third of the city population, who is not important," one said.

Boon or Bust

homes and establishments.

Average over-all cost to property owners to meet these requirements is set at $4,000.

Renovations have been so extensive in some cases, an attempt was made by one absentee investor recently to sell two three - apartment dwellings at $15,000 each.

There were no takers.

BURHA, HOWEVER, recently sold two houses in the 1300 block Harlem Ave. and one in the 600 block N. Carey St. for $50 each to an investor.

They were properties the agency has had boarded up since the initial phases of the project and acquired then for sale, on condition that the buyer rehabilitate them to strict BURHA standards.

Mr. Gilliam said the properties were actually sold on several occasions before, but each time the buyers have forfeited initial payments.

These accumulated funds, he said, allowed for the sales at the low $50 level.

All is far from going well in this Harlem Park project.

Of the 281 properties remaining to be rehabilitated, about 100 are owned by persons considered hardship cases, people unable by age and financial status to renovate their homes.

BURHA, Mr. Gilliam stated, does not press these people.

THEN, TOO, BURHA's own work on construction of 29 inner block parks in the area has been sadly lagging.

To date, four have been completed, three are in a near completion stage, construction of another is expected to start soon and ten more are planned for next year.

There are 11 remaining not yet anywhere in sight.

Also, there are 84 vacant houses in the area, most of which are posing a problem. Their absentee owners just will not renovate them.

Lengthy procedures toward court orders were instituted against some of these a couple of months ago.

BURHA and the city, however, also have 14 such properties in this area, which nobody is doing anything about at this time.

After five years of operation, BURHA's Harlem Park rehabilitation project is still in an experimental stage, and agency officials say as much, though carefully not directly.

Anderson Parson, 69, Berea Temple leader

An elevator operator for the General Service Administration for 40 years, Anderson Parson, 69, 626 Sanford Place, died Saturday at the Stevenson Guest Home.

Funeral services were held Thursday at the Berea Temple Seventh Day Adventist Church.

Burial was in Arbutus Memorial Park.

Mr. Parson was a member of the Usher Board and the Deacon Society of Berea.

A native of Norfolk, Va., he was the son of the late Mary and Moses Parson.

MR. PARSON IS survived by his wife, Mrs. Nellie Parson, social security employee, and three daughters, Mrs. Armentia Davis, Mrs. Alberta Smith and Mrs. Mildred Boone, all of Baltimore.

Also, two sons, Alvin J. Parson and Airman Mau-rice T. Waters, 1C stationed in England; two sisters, Mrs. Miriah Pierce, Norfolk, and Mrs. Rebecca Fortune, Brooklyn.

Fifteen grandchildren and six great grandchildren also survive.

Mother of 4 missing since Monday evening

Rodney Ockimey, a 25-year-old local steamship company worker who resides at 826 Mt. Holly St., says his wife has disappeared "into thin air."

On Monday at about 6 p.m. Mrs. Delores Wallace Ockimey, 23, his wife and mother of four children, was driven to a suburban bus stop by her employer's wife to catch the No. 5 Slade Ave. bus coming into town, Mr. Ockimey told police.

The distraught husband says she got off early and was expected home at least by 7 p.m. However, when he reported to the Baltimore Police Missing Persons Bureau on Thursday afternoon no word of her whereabouts had been received.

He told the AFRO, "I have no idea where she has gone or why."

His sister is caring for the children, two boys, ages 4 and 19 months and two girls, ages 9 and 3. The latter toddler celebrates her birthday today (Friday).

MRS. OCKIMEY is described as 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighing about 140 pounds and a pleasant person.

She and Mr. Ockimey have been married five years. Both are former Douglass High School students. The mother is a member of the Berea Temple Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hungerford, reside at 1604 Monroe St.

Mrs. Geneva Brady

Funeral services were held Tuesday at Providence Baptist Church for Mrs. Geneva Brady, 58 2519 Liberty Hgts. Ave. The Rev. Marcus G. Wood officiated.

Burial was in Arbutus Memorial Park.

Mrs. Brady, who died Thursday in the Johns Hopkins Hospital, was a native of Baltimore.

She was the daughter of the late Oliver and Alethia Smith.

Her husband, James Brady, a G. and P. Telephone Company guard; and a daughter, Mrs. Marion Selby, survive.

FIRST RECITAL — Sixteen-year-old Beverly A. Evans, lyric soprano, appeared in her first recital on Sunday at St. Matthew Methodist Church, Turner Station, at a benefit sponsored by the Youth Fellowship. Miss Evans, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Evans, is a senior at Dundalk High. Her youthful accompanist was Miss Beverly Mondie, Dundalk High junior.

COMING — Miss Miriam Makeba offers such a varied program, it is a little wonder that audi- dialects. included in her so enthusiastically. Although a large part of her programs are devoted to African songs of many dialects, included in her repertoire are Hebrew, Brazilian, Jewish, Spanish, Indonesian and English melodies. Her versatility and vibrant personality has gained a large following of avid fans for this gifted artist. She will be at the Lyric, Thurs., Nov. 26 at 8:30 p.m.

"Isn't it time you tried a whiskey that makes your taste buds blossom?"
Asks Mr. Cyrus Stevenson, hardware company executive of Baltimore, Md.
Of course, we're talking about Old Taylor 86, the whiskey that adds something special to every drink.
Old Taylor 86 has flavor. Mellow flavor. Smooth flavor.
Flavor that tells your taste buds something nice is going on.
Flavor that stands up to a splash of water or a splurge.
Flavor that's so deep it's almost shameful.
Tonight, follow Mr. Cyrus Stevenson's advice. Try Old Taylor 86 with as much or as little water as you like. Either way, you'll be doing your taste buds a flavor.
