Johnson to address League meet

The National Urban League is taking quick action in an effort to get Federal anti - poverty funds flowing out of Washington and into colored communities across the nation.

Its three - day Community Action Assembly, which will attract 300 top national colored spokesmen to Washington, Dec. 9 - 11, has a star-studded roster of high-ranking Federal officials who will speak, capped by an appearance of President Johnson.

The aim of the League is to bring together the Administration's cabinet secretaries and their aides with colored leaders to open pipelines of self - help for poverty - struck Harlems from New York to Seattle.

The League itself has gotten off to an early start in obtaining Federal grants for retraining programs in Cleveland, Pittsburgh, and New York, and for a housing upgrade operation in Milwaukee.

The League's national director, Whitney M. Young Jr., believes that scores of non - profit and community-serving agencies are also entitled to a chunk of the funds.

SCHEDULED TO OAPPEAR are W. Willard Wirtz, Secretary of Labor; Anthony J. Celebrezze, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare; and Dr. Robert C. Weaver, Administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency (HHFA).

An added attraction will be R. Sargent Shriver, War on Poverty Director. An appearance by the President on Dec. 10 in The Sheraton-Park Hotel Conference site will highlight the meeting.

—City tax fight

D'ALESANDRO

2. Its strong point is that it will determine $23,000,000 a year new tax revenue. I don't believe the city needs to be burdened with the $23,000,000 tax yield, and while I admit we need a new broad base tax I am talking about a tax that would yield $10,000,000.

3. What would it do for or to Baltimore?

McKELDIN

3. The license tax would enable Baltimore to meet its obligations to its people in the form of necessary community services without crippling residents to the suburbs, as would continued property tax increases.

For business, it would provide a stable tax climate, conducive to the attraction of new industry and the retention of existing businesses.

D'ALESANDRO

3. It would stifle the growth of Baltimore from an industrial point of view and place an undue tax burden on its citizens.

4. How will it affect people who are retired, on welfare, on pensions, the unemployed?

McKELDIN

4. Because the tax would roughly be levied in the basis of earned income, it would have no affect on the unemployed, and the retired who earn no income.

D'ALESANDRO

4. It all depends on what earned income, if any, these people receive.

5. How do the benefits of a license tax stack up against increasing the real estate tax, as to equitability?

McKELDIN

5. The budget as submitted to the City Council calls for a property tax rate increase of 52 cents per $100 assessed value, or imposition of the license tax without any increase in the property tax rate.

The man who owns a home assessed at, for example, $7,000 would pay $36.40 in additional property taxes in 1965 if the burden were placed on this source of revenue.

A proposed amendment giving relief to lower income workers through a graduated scale is being proposed today (Friday), with administration support.

D'ALESANDRO

5. Mayor McKeldin submits an earnings tax or 52 cents increase in real estate taxes. The comparison should be between an earnings tax or at the most a 30 cents increase in the real estate tax, and I think for 1965 we should remain with in our present tax structure and we can seek aid from Annapolis for a future broad base tax.

6. Does a tight budget give altimore time to handle its inner city problems later, or will it result in multiplying the problems to the extent that they will be more costly to handle in the future?

McKELDIN

6. If Baltimore is properly to meet its obligations to the inner city through the proposed anti-poverty program by means of increased education and health services, it must begin now, not next year.

Each day's delay increases the cost, not only in dollars but in terms of human progress.

D'ALESANDRO

6. Yes. A tight budget has no bearing on the problems of the inner city which are primarily in the fields of health, welfare and education, and here we get our fair share of state aid under the James Formula for Welfare, Hughes for Education and Case for Welfare.

7. What alternatives, if any, do we have for the

McKELDIN

7. The only alternatives to the license tax are a substantial increase in the property tax rate, detrimental cuts in spending, or a combination of both.

D'ALESANDRO

7. I would recommend a metropolitan sales tax.

8. What is the possibility of the license tax being

McKELDIN

8. When the Council finishes its budget review and is confronted with the exceedingly difficult task of making any substantial reductions in proposed spending, it is my expectation that the members will turn to the license tax as the only reasonable alternative.

D'ALESANDRO

8. I think the issue is very close, but I don't believe it could pass.

9. How will low income people be helped or hurt? approved by the City Council?

McKELDIN

9. Because such a high percentage of Baltimore's spending goes directly to assist people of low income the license tax, by permitting a reasonably adequate level of spending, will be to the benefit of such people.

D'ALESANDRO

9. If the earnings tax is passed, they will be paying more in taxation.

10. Do you have any specific observations not covered here?

McKELDIN

10. One of the most important factors in Baltimore's efforts to provide necessary services for its people is a clear, thorough understanding by all citizens of the nature of the programs involved and the manner in which they can best be financed.

The AFRO - AMERICAN is once again contributing greatly to such a community understanding by publishing the views of public officials on the city's present social, and financial problems, and I want to compliment the paper's management and staff for providing once again such valuable service to our city.

D'ALESANDRO

10. Yes. Before Mayor McKeldin submitted the earnings tax proposal which is a drastic change in the fiscal structure of our city, he should have called in all segments of labor, the business and industrial world and made a study of the impact it would have, if any, on them and on the future economic growth of our community.

This is of such magnitude that the mayor did a disservice to the city submitting it at the 11th hour.

VICTIM OF HIT, RUN

Florence Murray dies

FLORENCE MURRAY
killed in accident

Washington area residents were shocked this week to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. Florence Murray Sherrington in an auto accident in New York City, Wednesday night.

Mrs. Sherrington, known to Washingtonians as Florence Murray, is a former Washington newspaperwoman and was editor of "The Negro Handbook," which she published for a decade prior to and immediately after World War II.

A native of Alexandria, Virginia, she had published the "Handbook," which was a must reference medium for schools, college, libraries and newspapers for years, with the help of her late father, Freeman H. M. Murray, who ironically also died as the result of injuries sustained in an auto accident.

MISS MURRAY, with her father and brothers, also worked for many years with the old Washington Tribune, and Murray Brothers printing Company, which is still one of the city's outstanding businesses, at 920 U St., NW. Both also worked at various times at the AFRO - AMERICAN, Miss Murray as a reporter and her father as head of the proofreading department.

Miss Murray left Washington in the late forties and has been residing in New York City. Since her second marriage several years ago, she has been residing at 2235 Fifth Ave.

Reports indicate that the fatal accident occurred near her home as she was walking with a friend to have dinner at a popular Seventh Ave. restaurant in NYC. Details of the mishap were not available at press time, but an autopsy was scheduled by NYC medical examiner on Thursday.

FUNERAL arrangements tentatively were set for 10 a.m. Saturday morning at Levi and Delaney Funeral Home in NYC with burial in Virginia.

In New York City, Miss Murray had been working with the City welfare department and had planned to retire within the next few weeks to resume work on "The Negro Handbook" or a publication of a similar type.

Mrs. Sherrington is survived by her husband, William Sherrington, a brother, F. Morris Murray Sr., of Washington, a sister, Mrs. Kathleen Luckett, of Alexandria, Va. and a host of nephews, nieces and other relatives.

AT THE HEALTH FAIR for the elderly sponsored at Cherry Hill Homes on Wednesday, these guests enjoy lunch and conversation. They are Mrs. Martha Brown, 2014 Dukeland; Mrs. Elizabeth Munford, 2216 Mt. Holly, and Mrs. Mary M. Usher, 2109 Mt. Holly, all of the Golden Age Club of Cahill Recreation Center. Mrs. Brown is club secretary. Guests saw films and heard talks on health and safety. The affair was sponsored by BURHA, the Bureau of Recreation and the Baltimore Commission on Problems of the Aging.

AT NAACP MEETING held this week in the branch office on Druid Hill Ave., members heard talk by Samuel T. Daniels, right, executive secretary of the Baltimore Human Relations Commission and grand master of Prince Hall Masons in Maryland. With Mr. Daniels are the Rev. John L. Tilley, Tilley, NAACP registration leader, and Mrs. Margaret L. Dyer, grand recorder of Myra Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star (PHA).

Bank bandits captured 10 minutes later

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Two armed bandits robbed a downtown branch bank of a reported $9,119 here Wednesday. But both were recaptured on foot less than 10 minutes after the robbery and the loot was recovered.

The suspects were identified tentatively by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as Albert Henry Brown, 22, and Gus Albert Johnson, no age listed, both of Louisville.

One of the bandits fired a warning shot inside the bank as they fled, but no one was injured.

Drop long-distance rates to $1 off-hour maximum

(UPI) — Starting Feb. 1, you'll be able to make a weekend or nightly station-to-station call anywhere in the United States for as little as $1.

On that date, a $100 million reduction in long distance telephone rates ordered by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) — largest cut in history — starts going into effect.

The FCC order, protested but accepted by the Bell Telephone Companies, will reduce the toll for a three-minute, station - to - station call anywhere in the Continental U.S. to:

— A maximum of $1.50 on Saturdays and daily between 6 and 8 p.m.

— A maximum of $1 on Sundays and after 8 p.m. daily.

THE FCC SAID the reductions would encourage telephone users to take advantage of technological improvements in telephone operations, most of them engineered for peak daytime use. The Bell System said the cuts were larger than it considered justified.

About three - fourths of the reductions go into effect Feb. 1. The remainder are scheduled for April 1.

Outlaw Virginia white pupil aid

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The U. S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals Wednesday outlawed payment of tuition grants to pupils attending private all - white schools in Virginia's Prince Edward and Surry counties.

The court reviewed Virginia's efforts to "stave off if not to frustrate" the desegregation of public instruction.

The court said "Prince Edward County's hard and bitter resistance included . . . the extreme step of shutting down all public schools for five years. Only under the direction of the Supreme Court has it re - opened them, and then only on its own terms — terms calculated still to preserve segregation of the races.

"THUS, AFTER 13 years of struggle in the courts, and after five years of total education deprivation, colored children returned this fall to the same segregated schools to which they, or their older brothers and sisters, were assigned in 1951 when legal proceedings were first initiated to end public segregation," the court said.

The tuition grant program was part of a package of laws enacted in 1959 as Virginia's "Freedom of Choice" approach to school desegregation.

The grants were made available to help parents pay the cost of education of their children in private non-sectarian schools or public schools outside their home communities.

THE COURT held that "Surry County similarly attempts to circumvent the Brown (school integration) decision by establishing and maintaining and ostensibly private school system open to whites only."

The ruling said the Surry and Prince Edward school systems were "tailor-made to continue their initially avowed and persistently pursued policy of segregation."

"Not only are these foundation (private) schools supported almost entirely by public funds in the form of tuition grants, but their student bodies consist of those white children who previously
