lene, 8; Timothy, 7; Annette, 6; Kevin, 4; Gary, 2; and Janet, 1, will be held at the Milton Avenue Methodist Church, Oliver St. and Milton Ave., Saturday noon.

The children are to be buried in Mt. Calvary Cemetery.

SEATED IN the living room at the home of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Rich, 2624 Llewellyn Ave., where she and her four remaining children have been living, the 40 - year - old mother recalled events leading to the tragic night.

"Last Wednesday he called. I just couldn't believe he was out of jail. We talked for a while, then he asked if he could come and see the children," she said.

"Truthfully, I was scared to death but I have never denied him the right to see his children. It would not have been right, so I told him he could come."

Mrs. Smith stated her husband arrived at the house, 2631 E. Oliver St., just before school closed.

"Although I wasn't the one who turned him in on the murder of that woman, he has always believed I rat-ted on him. So when he came to the house he started telling me that I was to blame for his being caught," she said.

Smith had been released on Tuesday (Nov. 24) under $5,000 bail in the connection with the stabbing death last August of Mrs. Helen Wallace, a woman friend, police reported.

"I knew what he was like and was very scared," she said. "He had a razor wedged between the fingers of his right hand. I was really scared he might do something and I started praying that the children would come home from school."

HER PRAYER was immediately answered when at that very moment, she said, the bell signalling dismissal for School No. 85 rang.

"He grabbed me and threw me to the floor. He was on top of me beating me when the children came in from school. One of the children, Timothy, began beating on him yelling "leave my mother alone."

"Then Cynthia came in the room and tried to pull him off. He hit her in the face. He kept saying he wasn't going to give me a chance to rat on him again.

"He said he had a long list of people he was going to get even with and that I was at the head of the list."

Then her husband left the house, threatening to kill her, she said.

THANKSGIVING morning Mrs. Smith went to Eastern District where she had a warrant issued for her husband's arrest.

The holiday was a frightful one. In fear of her life and the safety of her children, Mrs. Smith said she and her children left their home and stayed with the Riches.

"Kennard found the turkey, a next door neighbor had given us, and made me take it back," Mrs. Smith recalled.

She said the children stayed at the Rich home with her for several days.

"They kept asking me if they could go home. I was frightened for them but the older children said they would take care of the younger ones, that everything would be alright.

"It was not like they would be far away. I could see the house from upstairs at the back window, so I said it would be O.K.

Kenneth (Jr.), my oldest son, said if he heard the slightest bit of noise he would call the police."

MRS. SMITH, who said that she had been sleeping with all her clothes on just in case something happened and because she was too scared to take them off, said that on the morning of the fire:

"I was sleeping when I heard something that sounded like Antonio's voice downstairs. He was saying something about a fire. It was like something suddenly hit me. I jumped out of bed and ran to the back window.

"When I looked over at the house all I could see at first was a few small sparks at the windows then all of a sudden the whole house burst into flames.

"I don't remember what happened after that. I could have passed out. I don't think so, but I just can't remember what happened.

SPEAKING OF her husband, Mrs. Smith stated, "I don't believe any human could be that evil.

"Even an animal is not that cruel."

Mrs. Smith said that since the tragedy, her neighbors have been wonderful.

"People come in all the time asking how they can help. The children and I never knew we had so many friends. I just don't know how to thank everybody," she stated.

The mother said the Red Cross is assisting them with funeral arrangements and finding a new home.

The surviving children are Kennard Jr., 16; Antonio, 15; Andre, 14, and Cynthia, 11.

ASKING FOR CONTRIBUTIONS to aid the Smith Family are Mrs. Margaret Smachum, and the proprietor of the grocery store located at 1406 Lakewood Ave., Mrs. Louise Palmer. Mrs. Palmer said everyone who comes into her story has been asked for a contribution to help the family, in which seven children perished when an arson set fire to the house Tuesday morning.

ACCUSED FATHER — Arnold Kennard Smith, 35, is seen soon after he was arrested in a tavern at Hamburg and Sharp Sts. Smith is accused of throwing three cans of gasoline into the house where his estranged wife and 11 children lived and seven of the children perished.

Men, women winners all even in Sticker Game nings will be used to fill out a rather lengthy gift list.

Mrs. Blackwell got her Lucky Sticker from her newsboy and had been keeping a close check on each edition of the AFRO.

IT'S GOOD she did because her number came up Tuesday and she became the fourth winner in the popular game that is raining free money on AFRO readers as Santa Claus time is rushing upon us. Mrs. Blackwell's winning has focused attention on another contest - male and female winners. The score now stands at two each.

Mrs. Blackwell's technique can be used as an ideal example for other readers, all of whom have an equal chance at winning.

Just as she did, they only have to get their sticker from the newsboy, or by calling the AFRO Circulation Department, MUlberry 5 - 6015, and put it on their car.

Check every edition of the AFRO for the winning number. When your# comes up, just bring your car to the AFRO so the number can be checked and you are a winner.

It is not only fun but profitable.

Today's (Friday) number is 10966.

If you have it, bring it to the AFRO Building, 628 N. Eutaw St., before 4:30 p.m. Monday.

Tuesday winners, as stated above and in the rules printed elsewhere in this edition, must pick up their money by 4:30 p.m., Monday.

WINNING SMILE — The wearer of this charming smile is Mrs. Emily Halsey of 1058 Argyle Ave. The reason for the smile is in her hand — a $25 AFRO Lucky Sticker check. She is pointing to her winning number of 6129.

2ND LADY WINNER — Mrs. Lelva Blackwell, secretary, became the fourth AFRO Lucky Sticker Game winner this week and the second winner to tie the score at two all between men and women. She points prettily to her number for the benefit of AFRO photographer I. Henry Phillips.

New president of UN speaks

UNITED NATIONS, (UPI) —Alex Quaison-Sackey, in his first speech as president of the 19th U.N. General Assembly, Tuesday, twice mentioned the problem of divided Germany and the need for its reunion.

While most observers paid little attention to remarks on Germany in the atmosphere of confusion which prevailed at the shaky opening of the assembly, several delegates considered the development "interesting."

A spokesman for the West German observer mission said it was too early to evaluate the significance of Quaison-Sackeys remarks. He noted, however, "Our relations with the African Nations have been excellent."

THE GHANAIAN AMBASSADOR elected president of the assembly by acclamation minutes before, listed divided Germany among the problems facing the assembly.

In another mention of the subject, Quaison-Sackey said the problem of "divided Germany has never properly been discussed in the U.N."

optimistic that the Maryland party as a whole will revert to its former Lincoln principles, and do so strongly.

Mr. Steers has summoned the party's 171 area leaders thoroughout the state to the Sheraton-Belvedere Hotel at 11 a.m. Saturday for positive action on this, and another key matter.

THE OTHER pertinent issue is the selection of a national committeewoman to replace Mrs. Robert O. Bonnell, who is resigning because of health reasons.

Considered forefront in the running for her post is Mrs. Katherine B. Massenberg, of this city, an anti-Goldwater policy moderate.

Mrs. Massenberg, AFRO readers will recall, was one of the state's delegates at the GOP National Convention in San Francisco last July, who so strongly opposed the Goldwater nomination she wept as he won it.

Miss Louise Gore, of Rockville, a Montgomery County House of Delegates member, is expected to be a second contender for the post.

Miss Gore was a strong Goldwater supporter in the past campaign.

She ran for the GOP's state congressman-at-large nomination in the May primary against David Scull, and was beaten by a close vote.

MR. STEERS, in his call for party unity, is expected to remind the assembly that the conservatives must be willing to make concessions, or take a back seat in party affairs.

"Putting this willingness to compromise in a somewhat different framework," he is expected to tell the gathering, "it would be helpful if conservative would come to recognize that they must work for half a loaf or they will get no loaf at all."

Walter E. Black Jr., GOP city chairman, and a contingent of city leaders are expected to call on the state party to issue a strong repudiation of its elements of racism and extremism.

The City State Central Committee adopted this bold action two weeks ago, and was the first GOP body in the nation so disavow the Goldwater policies looming still strongly within the party.

Mr. Steers is of the opinion the state body will accept the City Committee's recommendation, following just as forcefully its stated course of action.

IN HIS review of the disastrous GOP residential campaign, Mr. Steers is set to tell the assembly these four ingredients are vital for winning elections: candidates, money, organization and issues.

first three, but not the last.

"His (Goldwater's) position on the issues, which became ours," Mr. Steers is expected to conclude, "were ruinous."

Whether somebody will rise to take issue with him on this analysis, remains to be seen when the Saturday session gets under way.

pushed back into the flames when he first attempted to leave the house by the front door by a man who was standing in the shadows.

"I RAN down the cellar and opened the cellar door in the back of the house," he said. "Somehow I was able to get through the flames."

The youth said the back porch was on fire and he could not recall anyone else coming out with him.

"I don't know how the others got out," he declared.

Among the other witnesses who appeared before the jury was Sgt. William Rawlings, police arson investigator; and Capt. Harry R. Ballman, of the Fire Department.

Smith, who was released on $5,000 bail Nov. 25, had been indicted in August by the grand jury. He is accused of having fatally stabbed Mrs. Helen Wallace, 25, whose body was found in the backyard of the home that burned.

Mrs. Wallace lived several blocks away from the Smith home, and according to police, had apparently been sharing an apartment with a man.

Police said that she was probably stabbed in front of her home then taken to where the body was found.

SMITH'S LAWYER, Morris L. Kaplan in presenting a writ of Habeas corpus before Criminal Court Judge Meyer M. Cardin, stated:

"The defendant states he was acting in self-defense . . . and police did find three knives at the scene."

Smith contended at the time, he and Mrs. Wallace became involved in an argument and she pulled out a knife and charged at him. He claims he stabbed her to save his own life.

At the time of the offense, Smith was working as a chauffeur for a trucking concern.

Last week the accused man's estranged wife, Mrs. Marian Smith, reported to Eastern District Police that her husband had threatened to kill her, and had a warrant issued for his arrest.

Smith, whose last known address was in the 2600 block N. Chester St., managed to elude police, while Mrs. Smith fearful of her husband went to stay with a neighbor.

THEN TUESDAY morning at about 4:55 a.m., shattering glass, aroused the neighborhood.

"I was awakened by the sound of breaking glass," recalled Arthur Minton, who lives across from the Smith home. "At first I thought it was an auto accident.

"When I looked out I could see the fire and I heard children screaming."

Young Antonio was probably the first of the children to be aroused. He told reporters he smelled smoke and called his older brother, Kennard Jr., 16.

The breaking glass occured, police theorized, when someone threw at least one can of gasoline, and possibly as many as three through the living room window.

Antonio recalled seeing a man light a wadded-up paper torch which he threw inside touching off the gasoline.

FIVE HOURS later, Emanuel Hoffman, a bartender at a tavern on the corner of Sharp and Hoffman Sts. called police and said a man was in his tavern and wanted to turn himself in.

"He kept mumbling something about if his wife had only treated him like a man this wouldn't have happened," Mr. Hoffman said.

When he was brought into Eastern Police station he appeared anxious to tell his story.

Pointing to a uniformed police sergeant, who he apparently recognized, Smith kept repeating:

"You sergeant, I want to tell the whole story to you. I want to tell everything. Just get these photographers away from me. I don't want them. They tell lies on me."

Mr. Moylan stated that formal indictments were prepared Thursday and Smith will be arraigned in Criminal Court Monday.

An autopsy revealed all seven of the children, four girls and three boys ranging in age from one to 13, died of smoke inhalation.

White only plant door probe asked

HAMPTON, S. C.—The NAACP has asked the FBI to investigate a complaint by six workers at a plant here that they were barred by white workers from using an entrance formerly reserved for whites only.

State NAACP Field Secretary I. D. Newman said "15 or 20 white workers" at the Micarta plant of the Westinghouse Corp. blocked the passage of six colored workers through the entrance at the 6:30 a.m. shift.

Newman said the plant's 100 colored workers plan henceforth to use the same entrance the white workers use. The plant employs about 1,000 workers and makes a plastic material.

A plant official denied there were special racial entrances and claimed all entrances were open to all workers.

ey to ride the bus across town and they have to walk. I just don't have the dimes to give them," she said.

"Without Mrs. Santa, there won't be any Christmas at all. It will be just like Thanksgiving."

Mrs. A told the AFRO that Thanksgiving was just like any other day - no food to eat and the children woke up hungry the next morning.

IN FAMILY B the story is much the same. Five children, aged nine to 14, live with their mother and grandparents in two rooms.

Mrs. B's husband died in 1955 and she receives only a small social security pension each month to raise her children.

"The money comes on the 3rd of the month," she said, "and by Christmas there will be nothing left. I would like to give my children a nice dinner for Christmas.

"After I buy food and clothing and pay rent and gas and electric, I don't have anything left."

On the day they talked with the AFRO, the family sat huddled around a small wood stove for warmth. Paint was peeling from the walls and a naked light bulb glared above the scene.

Two children had stayed home from school because there was no lunch money for them and "they can't go through a whole day at school with no food," as Mrs. B reasoned.

The mother herself has high blood pressure and part of the small monthly allowance must go for her doctor bills.

Thanksgiving? "I'm afraid it wasn't much," the mother says, "we scraped together a few turkey wings."

INDIVIDUALS, OR organizations who wish to help either of these two families or the families listed below to have a Merry Christmas are urged to mail or bring money contributions to Mrs. Santa, care of the AFRO Charities, Inc., 628 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore 21202.

Checks or money orders should be made out to AFRO Charities, Inc.

Persons who would like to adopt a specific family for Christmas may call the AFRO at MU 5-8015 from 8:30 a.m. Monday through Friday and 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Those who wish to adopt families will be given the family's address by asking for the case number.

OATMEAL CHUM

Sprinkle oatmeal through the ice when fishing for pan fish.

Draws minnows. When minnows come, can perch and crappie be far behind?

STRETCH

Tighten down on tent ropes and they'll shrink in a rain and pull the stakes out.

Fix this with rubber bands made from inner tubes. Or use nylon or polyethelene ropes.
