Mrs. Victorine Adams named Inaugural hostess

WASHINGTON — Committee announced this week the list of women who will serve as hostesses for Mrs. Hale Boggs, co-chairman of the Inaugural Ball the ball which will be held the evening of Jan. 20 in four locations, the National Guard Armory, the Sheraton Park, the Shoreham and Mayflower hotels.

MRS. VICTORINE ADAMS

The women selected for this high honor represent a broad cross section of the country. Included in the group are the following: Mrs. William Adams, Baltimore; Mrs. Redman Austin, New York City; Mrs. Earl Barnes, Philadelphia; Mrs. Etienne Caroline, Riverside, Calif.; Mrs. John Cashin, Huntsville, Ala. and Mrs. Worrell Collier, Los Angeles.

Also, Mrs. Steve G. Davis, Washington, D.C.; Mrs. Charles C. Diggs, Jr. Detroit; Mrs. Luther Glanton, Des Moines, Iowa; Miss Margaret Holmes, Trenton, N.J.; Mrs. Charles M. Jackson, Washington, D.C. and Mrs. Moses Leroy, Houston, Texas.

Others are Mrs. Burton Lewis, Albany, Cal.; Mrs. Amos Linton, Youngstown, Ohio; Miss Jacqueline Price, Washington, D.C.; Mrs. Joseph Sansom, Raleigh, N.C.; Mrs. John H. Sengstacke, Chicago; Mrs. Carl B. Stokes, Cleveland; Mrs. Parnell Woods, Fort Wayne, Ind. and Mrs. Prentiss Q. Yancey, Atlanta.

"OUR COMMITTEE is honored to have these gracious Democratic leaders from all sections of the country give their time and effort to the success of the inaugural Ball," said Mrs. Boggs.

They will be divided between the four ball sites. Chairing the ball committee for the National Guard Armory will be Hobart Taylor, Jr.; Associate Counsel to the President of the United States.

The Inaugural Ball will climax the three days of festivities centering around the swearing in of Lyndon B. Johnson as the 36th President of the United States and Hubert H. Humphrey as Vice-President.

Dr. Moore denies charges; asks court to set alimony

Dr. Marcus W. Moore Sr., denied charges made by his wife in a petition for alimony filed Nov. 28, that he deserted her and his two children and that he was an "unfit" father.

Mrs. Doris J. Moore, who married the prominent local physician in April, 1942, charged in her Circuit Court petition that she is without means of support and that her husband earns in excess of $25,000 a year.

In addition to temporary and permanent alimony of $175 per week, Mrs. Moore requested permanent custody of their two minor children, Marcus W. Jr., 17, and Malcolm W., 11.

HOWEVER, Dr. Moore, in a petition filed on Dec. 23, by his attorney, John Hargrove, denied the charge that he deserted his wife with the intention of no longer living with her, and denied that his yearly earnings exceed $25000, or that he has additional property.

He further denied his alleged "unfitness" to have the care and custody of his two minor sons, and that he had never ceased to support his family, but stated he would be "contenent" to allow the boys to remain with their mother.

Dr. Moore's petition requested the court to set alimony at what he termed "a reasonable rate."

MRS. MOORE, who now resides at their elaborate Sequoia Ave., home, charged Dr. Moore deserted here and his children on March 13, 1964.

The Moores are also parents of a 20-year-old daughter, Mrs. Marilyn Moore Armour.

Mrs. Moore, the former Miss Doris Mosely, is also asking the court to order her husband pay court costs and attorney's fee.

Open occupancy law proposal endorsed

Endorsement of Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin's proposed open occupancy legislation came this week from the Contemporary Trends Housing Committee, a group seeking to aid the promotion of fair housing practices.

In a telegram to the mayor, signed by Mrs. Carrie Staten and Thomas J. Julian, chairman and vice chairman, respectively, the organization stated;

"Contemporary Trends Housing Committee congratulates you on your pledge to work for open occupancy legislation and endorses the recommendation to that effect by the Baltimore City Housing Study Advisory Commission.

"We will actively support such legislation on a statewide as well as a city-wide basis."

Wonder where Winter went?

Snow and sleet scheduled for the Northeast this weekend will by-pass Baltimore to leave the town wet, warm and wishing winter weather would come on . . . if it's going to.

A switch in the wind blew away threats of the cold, blustery season that came in officially 18 days ago but there will be cloudy conditions making it seem chilly.

Today, Friday, will continue mild, around 50, with rain likely. Saturday More of the same. Warmest Jan. 8 was 69 degrees in 1930. Coldest was in '49 . . . 2 below

Etude Octette event will benefit CORE

Responding to Baltimore CORE'S need for funds, The Etude Octette will give a concert with the benefits going to CORE.

CORE representatives John Burleigh and James Griffin worked out arrangements with the managers of the Etude Octette, Murray Schmoke and Wendell G. Wright.

The Etude Octette has been acclaimed as one of the most interesting and provocative groups on the local scene. The group was given high praise by AFRO music critic, Mrs. Adah Jenkins, after a fine concert at the Douglas Memorial Community Church in September.

The concert for CORE is to be held on Jan. 31, at First Unitarian Church, Charles and Franklin Sts., at 4 p.m.

For information contact: Wendell G. Wright, ID. 3-2069, 5104 Kenilworth Avt. - 21212 or James Griffin, 2316 W. North Ave, 21216 (669-6034).

Civic League goes to court on records

The Walbrook Civic League has filed in Circuit Court a petition against its former treasurer, Mrs. Catherine Brown.

The suit filed last week by the organization's president, Leo Burroughs Sr., charges Mrs. Brown, of 3503 Cedardale Rd., with refusing to surrender the League"'s bank receipts and financial records.

Mr. Burroughs also contended that the organization now has a new treasurer and that when Mrs. Brown was asked to sign a bank release slip so that he might regain the League's funds she refused.

turn to his ward.

Another new service instituted by Mr. White for Provident patients will be an intensive Care Unit which he said "is part of a continuing program to improve patient care."

Although common place in most hospitals, the Intensive Care Unit will be another new feature for the old Provident.

Dr. Purdue said the hospital's admission and discharge policy has also been streamlined with the emphasis on patient comfort.

He said there is less waiting and in some cases patients are pre - admitted.

THE SYSTEM of book - keeping with itemized charges also beenre organized by Mr. White.

"We think we have eliminated the irritating moments patients have had while waiting for a bill. We are also making it possible for the patient to better understand his bill," Mr. White said.

Another feature instituted by Mr. White is a selective menu for patients.

"The purpose he said" "is to meet the likes and dislikes of a patient as long as it is within the framework of the patient's diagnosis.

"The psychological value of this innovation to the patient's comfort is invaluable."

In preparing the personnel for the move to the new hospital, Mr. White lauded the understanding of the board of trustees, the medical staff and the employees themselves in the implementation of the changes.

HERMAN CORNISH, of Baltimore was driving north on Route 1 at the time.

"I was driving north o n Washington Boulevard and saw the explosion. The front part of this house blew out and I saw a man under t h e debris," he said, adding:

"Later I found a lady in and I saw a man under the the roof. I heard cries upstairs but couldn't go up because of the smoke and flames."

The Warrens also lived in the building which housed the businesses.

Ice Follies to Center Jan. 26-31

The Shipstads and Johnson Ice Follies coming to the Baltimore Civic Center Jan. 26-31, established an entertainment tradition in 1936 when the first extravagazJonice was introduced in America.

Though the Ice Follies is under new ownership it is still personally produced by the original founders and producers, Eddie and Roy Shipstad and Oscar Johnson This is the 29th consecutive year they have put their talents together to create musical variety on a glistening white, frozen stage.

When the 29th annual Ice Follis come to Baltimore, there will be no less than fifteen specialty acts with more than 20 starts.

Included among these are champion skaters Ina Bauer, Istvan Saraes, Richard Dwyer, Jill Shipstad, and Donald Jackson.

Tickets are now available at the Civic Center box office and at Hochschild Kohns Stores.

Missing man found in hospital

James Morton, 77, 2446 Terra Firma Rd. Cherry Hill, who was reported missing by his son Ernest Morton earlier this week, has been found.

According to the younger Mr. Morton, he found his father after checking Southwestern District Police Monday night.

Police at the station reported that the older Mr. Morton had been taken into custody Jan. 1 and because he appeared to have been in a daze, was sent to Spring Grove State Hospital.

Relatives of the elderly man told the AFRO they decided to let him stay at the hospital for his own safety and well-being.

GREENSBORO, N.C. —A special Christmas program, featuring four students from other lands and students from the language department, was presented recently during chapel hour at Bennett College. Participants included, Misses Lily So, of Indonesia; Cheryl Thomas, of the Virgin Islands; Tagilima Müasau, American Samoa, and Kate Aseme, of Nigeria.

Afro keglers seek Sports Show honors

Two AFRO bowlers — George Lee and Jackie McCoy — are listed in the select group of entries scheduled to compete in the Mid-Atlantic Sports, Travel and Vacation Show, commencing Tuesday at Civic Center.

Lee, long one of the city's outstanding Keglers, teams with Kitty Chesson, star of the Walbrook women's aggregation, in the mixed doubles elimination tournament, which will be conducted on specially constructed alleys at the spacious municipal auditorium.

Miss McCoy and Percy Mack of Walbrook, will pair off in the same competition.

THE LEE-CHESSON duo will represent Fairlanes - Woodlawn and the Mack - McCoy combination bowls under the banner of Walbrook in the meet. Both swing into action on the second night of the tourney.

George and Kitty oppose a team representing AIBC Crown at 6:30 on Wednesday evening, and Percy and Jackie take on the team from Bowl America Cedonia an hour later. The winners of these two matches tie up on Friday night at 6:30 o'clock.

lee gained his place on the Woodlawn roster with a 6-game score of 1230 pins in last week's bowl - off for the man's position in the mixed doubles setup. Miss Chesson rolled a handsome 1123, to edge Rose Burnham by two pins for the woman's berth.

AT Walbrook, Miss McCoy was selected on the basis of her high average (172).

Mack also was chosen by the Walbrook management for his scoring potential over the year.

THE MID - Atlantic show will provide a stage for the city's junior bowlers.

Daily matches will be run off commencing at 5 p.m., on Tuesday's opening program.

Competing will be young - sters representing boys' and girls' leagues from Towson, Reisterstown, Walbrook, Cedonia, Ritchie, Dundalk, Glen Burnie and Normandy lanes.
