Accused to plead guilty in Miss. lynching case

MERIDIAN, Miss (UPI) — A federal judge jolted defense efforts Tuesday by announcing an admitted Ku Klux Klansman will plead guilty, or no contest, to charges brought against him and 17 others in connection with the slaying of three civil rights workers.

The disclosure was made by U.S. District Judge Harold Cox during a hearing on motions seeking to have charges dropped against 16 of the defendants on grounds the Federal Government has no jurisdiction in the case.

Cox identified the man who will either plead guilty or nolo contendre (no contest) as James Edward Jordan, 38, a former Meridian mechanic.

Jordan will enter his plea before a federal judge in Atlanta, Cox said, but no date for hearing the plea has yet been announced.

• • •

JORDAN and another suspect, Horace Doyle Barnette, reportedly have given the FBI confessions concerning their part in the case.

Sheriff's deputies in Hinds (Jackson) County previously tried to get Jordan out of federal hands to answer a minor traffic charge in Meridian. Federal marshals would not permit service of the subpoena.

The conspiracy charge, with a maximum punishment of 10 years and a $10,000 fine, is the maximum the federal government could employ in the case. There is no federal murder charge except on government property.

The 18 suspects were indicted on two federal charges — conspiracy to violate the civil rights of Michael Schwerner and Andrew Goodman, both white New Yorkers, and James Chaney, a Meridian, Miss., colored man.

• • •

A SECOND indictment accuses the 18 of a misdemeanor — participating in a conspiracy with law enforcement officers to inflict "summary punishment" on the civil rights workers without due process of law.

The bodies of the three civil rights workers were found buried under a farm pond dam outside Philadelphia, Miss., Aug. 4, 1964, about two months after they dropped from sight while investigating the burning of a colored church at Philadelphia.

There were reports at the time that the FBI had paid an informer as much as $25,000 to lead them to the bodies.

Among those accused in the crime were Lawrence A. Rainey, sheriff of Neshoba (Philadelphia) County, his deputy, Cecil Price and a Philadelphia policeman.

Hints for Homemakers

INEZ KAISER

There is nothing like a sincere compliment to give you a lift. The other day I met the mother of six small children on the street. She had been a patron of mine on several occasions, so we stopped a minute to exchange greetings.

It was gratifying to know that she read my column and had used FINAL TOUCH, the fabric softener which gives your clothes a whiter look and softer feel.

One of the points she stressed was that it made her large ironing an easier task to perform. The big boys' shirts and four girls' dresses and blouses, she said, seemed so much brighter since she had been using FINAL TOUCH. I suggested that she purchase the economy size since her family was so large.

It was amusing to hear the mother comment that she had instructed her husband to be sure to pour FINAL TOUCH in the last rinse water when he assisted her with the family laundry.

As men will, he wanted to put it in at the beginning and really could not understand the importance of using the required amount. She finally convinced him, and he conformed to her request. Now he reminds her to buy a bottle of FINAL TOUCH when she shops.

We both went our different ways, feeling we had made each other's life a little happier that day.

Resolve to start the New Year right by seeing that your family enjoys a tastier breakfast during 1965.

Now, this resolution is not easy to keep if you work or if the family eats at different times. But there is Sunday when you can plan something different—like waffles or French toast.

Your family will especially enjoy either of these "breakfast specials" if they are served with MRS. BUTTERWORTH'S SYRUP.

You'll be surprised how this syrup improves the taste of your breakfast. It has a rich, creamy, butter flavor with a mapley taste that makes waffles more delicious than ever before. In fact, it is the Original Buttered Syrup.

Why not prepare another Sunday-morning treat? Cook a favorite hot cereal, like oatmeal or farina, and pour heated MRS. BUTTERWORTH'S SYRUP on top. The flavor is good hot or cold because of the patented formula of MRS. BUTTERWORTH'S SYRUP. It does not separate or become rancid.

You can buy either a 12- or 24-oz. size and store it indefinitely. Before the month is over, be sure to shop for the syrup in the interestingly shaped bottle so that you can start the year off right. Make yours a happier family.

• • •

Time marches on and brings about change. As the New Year gets under way, it might be wise for you to take stock and determine if the detergent you are using for laundering does the best cleaning job possible. If you find it does not, then make a change NOW.

May I suggest that you change to "all," because I know it actually outcleans all other leading detergents. I assure you that my knowledge of this product is not based on hearsay, but on many months of personal experience using it.

In these days of push buttons, the Space Age and progress, a lot of high suds in the washing machine are as outdated as the flat iron or potbellied kitchen stove.

To maintain a controlled suds level is the up-to-date way to wash. "All" has this quality. Use the amount indicated on the package for your wash load, and you will have no worries.

Another reason why I recommend using "all" is that it works well in all washers, whether wringer, front loader or top loader. Clothes come out of all three clean as a whistle. You have my word for it.

Try adding the detergent you are now using and try "all"—either in the concentrated or regular form. I know you will agree with me it "outcleans them all."
