—First degree murder

that for about three weeks prior to her death the murdered woman was sharing the two-story townhouse apartment with Miss Odessa Quickley, the common - law wife of the defendant.

George J. Helinski, deputy state's attorney, told the court in his final argument that Williams killed Mrs. Harris because he felt she was responsible for causing Miss Quickley to reject him.

Williams, represented by John R. Hargrove, testified that the shooting had been accidental.

He said, "I was standing in the hallway taking my clothes out of the closet when the came flying at me.

"She had her hand raised about to hit me when I turned around and took the gun from my pocket.

"I didn't mean to shoot her but when I hit at her with the gun it went off."

ACCORDING to the convicted man, who said he earned from $6,000 to $7,000 annually, his troubles began the day Mrs. Harris moved into the house.

He told the court Mrs. Harris was "... always meddling in my business" and matters which concerned his relationship with Miss Quickley.

MISS QUICKLEY, 29, who now lives with her mother in the 1200 block N. Broadway, testified that she invited Mrs. Harris to move in with her when the German woman told her she had no place to live.

"I couldn't just let her go around with no place to stay," she stated.

A friend of Mrs. Harris for more than a year, Miss Quickley admitted that the defendant gave her money to pay the rent and other bills.

"Mack and I weren't getting along. Him and I were breaking up anyway," said Miss Quickley.

She stated she and Williams had several arguments concerning Mrs. Harris's presence in the house.

MISS QUICKLEY told Judge Sklar that one of the arguments occurred on July 12.

"Inger was upstairs getting dressed. We were going to see a movie and Mack didn't want me to go," she testified. "I told him 'You're not married to me and he hit me in my stomach."

She obtained a warrant for his arrest.

Williams said he was found guilty of the assaulting Miss Quickley and fined $20.

He said that after this incident he decided to move from the house.

THE NIGHT before the murder he stated he sent a friend to the house to get his clothes.

"But she (Miss Quickley) didn't send me all my clothes and I called her and told her I was coming over that night to get the rest but she told me not to come until the next day," Williams said.

He testified that on July 22 the next day he went to the house about 11 a.m., and found the front door open.

"I just walked on in and yelled 'Hey hello, anybody here?," Williams recalled.

Mrs. Harris came down the stairs and said, "Oh, it's you. I thought Odessa told you not to come back here anymore," he said.

"I didn't pay any attention to her because I could see she was in a mood," Williams told the court.

CONTINUING, Williams stated he went upstairs and began gathering his clothes.

Mrs. Harris followed him.

He testified, "She told me that I wasn't going to take anything out of the house or I was going to get hurt.

"I went to the closet. Inger ran at me and I grabbed my gun to hit at her and the gun went off.

"I didn't mean to shoot her.

"I never had nothing against Inger. Nothing against her period."

WILLIAMS REVEALED that he had purchased the gun before the shooting at Gamerman's Sporting goods store at Eastpoint shopping center (Baltimore County).

He told the court, "I didn't have to go out there to buy the gun. I could have bought one here hot. But I wanted everything legal."

WILLIAMS said his reason for getting the revolver was to protect himself.

"Odessa told me lots of times that if I did anything to her or if something happened between us she was going to get her brothers to beat me up," he said.

"I was afraid. She had told me how her brothers and mother and everybody had beat up her husband. She was all the time throwing it up in my face."

Patrolman Joseph Schaech, of the Eastern District testified that about 2:30 a.m. on July 23, 15 hours after the shooting, he found Williams lying on the sidewalks in front of 1042 Bond St.

"I asked him what his name was and he said Mack Williams," Officer Schaech said.

"I remembered hearing the name during roll call but I couldn't remember what he was wanted for.

"A lady came to the front door of the house and said he was her brother and that he was wanted for murder."

AFTER BEING taken to the Eastern Police Station Williams was then sent to the Northwestern District where he was questioned by Lt. Frederick C. Koenig.

At this time the defendant gave an oral and written statement, said Lt. Loenig.

He refused to sign the statement," the lieutenant testified.

Therefore the written statement was not admitted into evidence.

MR. HARGROVE contended throughout the proceedings that the murder had not resulted from premeditation, malice or fore-thought, the rule for first degree murder.

He argued that his client's actions were aggravated when Mrs. Harris attempted to attack him while he was taking his clothes from the second floor closet.

"If he came to the house with the intention of killing Inger, he could have done so when she came down stairs upon his arrival," Mr. Hargrove stated, in asking the Court to reduce the charge to second degree murder.

Admitting that possession of the loaded gun in itself proved to some degree "malice," the lawyer maintained that the malice was not aimed at Mrs. Harris.

JUDGE SKLAR in making his findings took the opportunity to recommend that a state-wide law be enacted which would control the sale of deadly weapons, particularly in Baltimore County.

He said "This case presents a tragic example of the dire need for such a state-wide law."

Mr. Hargrove said he planned to appeal the court's decision.

at its prooper pace at this time and this unfortunate development soon will be cleared up."

Mr. Zumbrun said that he and his investigators had never seen homes in such poverty - stricken conditions as those of some of the girls they have visited in the probe.

In one home, he said, there was no furniture and the children were in blankets on a cold floor.

It would not take much enticement, he surmised, to persuade one of these girls to become a subject in an indecent photograph.

N. Y. rights group,

NEW YORK (NNPA) — The New York City Commission on Human Rights announced Thursday it has reached "a cooperative agreement for the advancement of President's Committee on mutual objectives" with the Equal Opportunity in Housing.

The agreement was contained in a memorandum signed Thursday by Stanley H. Lowell, chairman of the human rights agency, and Gov. David Lawrence, chairman of the President's housing committee.

was evident his words could be taken two ways.

He could have meant that he was aware that the court in Alabama had ruled against giving Martin Luther King's followers the right to register, but that the White House would have the last word.

The other alternative was the correct one — namely the court was going to order the Alabama registrars to enroll the colored applicants, and what's more, the White House is behind the court.

Martin Luther King wanted to attend the inauguration of his friend, the President. Instead he sent regrets and began the demonstrations in Selma, Dallas County and nearby Alabama areas.

With 1000 demonstrators, including Dr. King in jail for picketing Selma voting places, Judge Daniel H. Thomas' decision favored the NAACP.

Dr. King then called off all picketing in order to give election officials an opportunity to comply with the court's order.

Judge Thomas ordered the Dallas County Board of Registrars to speed up voter application processing to at least 100 a day, and to stop using a controversial section of the registration test.

Thomas also announced that a federal referee would process voter applications made at Selma by July 1 which are not handled by the board by July 31.

His order, issued in Mobile, said "This court wishes to make it clear that any rejected colored applicant from this date forward may apply to this court for registration."

The Rev. Andrew Young, King's lieutenant, said the order was a "Great disappointment" because it took no action against Sheriff Clark, who has made most of the nearly 3,000 arrests in the two-week-old drive.

A short time before Johnson broke his 16 - day silence on the Selma situation, a Congressional delegation announced plans to fly to the troubled area Friday. A delegation spokesman said, "Some of us just can't understand the difficulties."

BOTH developments came as the worsening situation in Alabama saw demonstrations spread to two new counties resulting in the biggest wave of mass arrests since the Birmingham crisis. Besides Selma, arrests were made in Perry and Marion counties.

Police have arrested 900 persons in two days in Marion County. About 1,000 were arrested altogether yesterday. Those arrested include Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who touched off the demonstrations by leading a registration march two - weeks ago.

Taking note of these developments at his news conference Wednesday, President Johnson said, "Nothing is more fundamental to our freedoms than the right to vote. All ... ought to be indignant when one ... is denied the right ..."

JOHNSON pointedly commented that the "basic problem in Selma is the slow pace of voter registration for colored persons qualified to vote."

The President noted that one case of legal action already had been brought in the Alabama community and was awaiting trial.

Later when asked further about the Selma situation, the President declared "We will use the tools of the Civil Rights Act" to guarantee the right to register and vote.

He said the "basic problem in Selma is the slow pace of voter registration for colored persons qualified to vote." The President declared that he intends to "see that the right to vote is secured for all our citizens."

REP. Augustus Hawkins, (D - Calif.), speaking for the Alabama - bound House delegation, said, "Our object is to survey the situation under which some persons apparently are finding it impossible even to attempt to register.

"We would like to see whether any legislation is needed to improve the process of registration and voting. Some of us can't understand why it is so difficult."

Malcolm X, the militant black nationalist leader, also turned up 40 miles from Selma at Tuskegee, and held a "news conference." The Black Muslim leader spoke in Tuskegee Tuesday night and predicted the Black Revolution" this year will be long, hot and bloody.

"I didn't come here to stir up any trouble," Malcolm X said, but added, "I think the people would do well to give Dr. Martin Luther King what he is asking for before another group comes in and tries another way."

He said he was "against any form of non - violence." He predicted King "will be forced to abandon the non - violent approach."

"I am 100 per cent for any effort by black people in this country to secure the ballot," the Muslim leader declared.

He said President Johnson promised in his campaign to uncover the Ku Klux Klan and that the President should "live up to his promises."

"If the Federal Government can't stop the KKK I will organize as many black and white men as possible to give them a taste of their own medicine."

He was awarded the $10,000 damages in a Superior Court hearing here before Judge Shirley B. Jones and a jury.

Company attorneys, carrying the case to the Court of Appeals, argued that there was insufficient legal evidence to a jury, and a verdict in favor of the company should have been directed.

The Court of Appeals, in a 5-2 decision, upheld this contention and upset the lower court's ruling.

The Supreme Court, however, in a brief statement on the petition for certiorari, gave this conclusion:

"The Court of Appeals improperly invaded the function and province of the jury in these cases."

Which means there should not, as the Appeals Court held, have been a directed verdict in favor of the company to the jury.

Ask suspension of Miss. deputies

JACKSON, Miss. (NPI) — Demands for the suspension of five deputies involved in the slaying of an 18-year-old colored youth in a jail block of the Hinds County Jail, continued here this week despite a court ban on mass protest demonstrations.

The victim, Oliver V. Shelby, of nearby Flora, had been arrested on charges of making "indecent gestures" towards a white woman, and was sentence to six months in jail.

Charles Evers, Mississippi NAACP field secretary, said a mass courthouse demonstration was called off after attorneys advised compliance with a four-judge injunction banning the protest march.

However, Evers said the injunction would be appealed and that efforts to have the five deputies suspended, pending a complete investigation of the boy's "murder," would be continued.

Students set Miss. project

JACKSON, Miss., (UPI)— Several hundred northern college students will flock to Mississippi during the Easter Holidays to help rebuild burned churches, it was disclosed Wednesday.

The project is similar to one undertaken by the "Christmas Carpenters," a group of students from Oberlin College, Ohio that spent the Christmas season rebuilding a church at Ripley

Dr. William F. Davis, man of an inter-faith committee of concern, said he had extended invitations to interested students and had received "wonderful" response. He said several hundred have volunteered.

The committee had set a goal of $300,000 to rebuild the churches burned during the height of racial turmoil in the state last year. About $54,500 of that goal has been raised.
