"Nonsense!" Rowan replies

MINNEAPOLIS (NPI) — "Nonsense!"

That was the reaction of Carl T. Rowan, director, U.S. Information Agency, to rumors that he may step down from his post in the very near future.

Rowan, a former prize-winning journalist, was in the city to speak at a University of Minnesota convocation.

He was appointed to the USIA post a year ago by President Lyndon B. Johnson to succeed Edward R. Murrow.

Before taking over the $30,000-a-year post, he had served as American ambassador to Finland.

Accused lyncher collapses in Miss.

MERIDIAN, Miss., (UPI) —One of the 18 men charged with plotting the murder of three civil rights workers last summer collapsed on a street corner here Wednesday and was rushed to a hospital.

Alton Wayne Roberts, 26, a salesman for a window company, was taken to Anderson's Infirmary. His condition or the nature of his illness were not immediately known.

Roberts is free on $5,700 bond, along with 16 other suspects accused of violating the civil rights of the three slain civil rights volunteers. The 18th defendant's case was transferred to U.S. District Court in Atlanta, where authorities said he would plead either guilty or no contest to the charges.

• • •

THE 17 OTHERS, including Roberts, pleaded innocent before federal Judge Harold Cox. Trial dates have not been set.

Roberts' brother - Meridian' policemen Lee Roberts —said they met for lunch and Alton complained of not feeling well. The patrolman said his brother did not eat any lunch.

After lunch, the brothers separated and Alton Wayne Roberts stepped off a curb and collapsed on the street. Emergency first aid was administered on the scene and witnesses said a druggist from a nearby drug store gave the victim a tablet.

Roberts, a 250-pound ex-marine, was involved in a fight with a CBS cameraman last week in front of the federal building here. The incident occurred during a break in hearings on defense motions in the case. Roberts is married and the father of three children.

Plea sent LBJ to aid Selma

FRENCH LICK, Ind., (UPI)—Two National agencies of the United Church of Christ Wednesday asked President Johnson in a telegram to "intervene in Selma, Ala., to protect the rights of citizens seeking to register to vote."

The Council for Christian social action and the United Church board for Homeland ministries sent the message to Johnson in sessions held during a four-day assembly of 450 leaders of the denomination here.

Spokesmen said members of the denomination have been working with Dr. Martin Luther King in the Selma desegregation movement and some of them have been arrested. "We have a very great interest," a spokesman said.

Four tan students seek Fla. U. posts

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (NPI) —A new political party on the University of Florida campus has fielded a racially integrated slate of candidates for the first time in the history of the university.

Four colored students are seeking seats on the student legislative council under the Freedom Party banner. They are Samual Taylor, Gainesville; Richard Oliver and Mike Sherfield, both of Jacksonville; and Susan Lockhart, New Smyrna Beach.

Wilkins sees rights marches fading

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Roy Wilkins predicted Wednesday night that civil rights demonstrations will be fewer this year than last but delays in stopping racial inequalities "will continue to stimulate protests."

Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP, gave his estimate in a speech before 900, mostly college students, at the University of Florida.

He deplored current difficulties in Selma, Ala., and said Alabama restricts voting "through all the usual devices, but principaly through a fantastic questionnaire."

• • •

THE questionnaire "could easily defeat a college political science student," he added.

"If all the white persons on the Alabama voting list have answered these (100) questions correctly, then the state has the best informed electorate in the nation," Wilkins declared.

If Alabama voters are best informed, he continued "the mystery as to the election of Gov. George Wallace deepens."

• • •

WILKINS said the next phase in the civil rights program would be concentrated on getting political action.

He praised both Florida and Texas for having led the South so long in the number of registered colored voters.

Concert goers, CORE made richer by Octette

Concert goers as well as the Baltimore Chapter of CORE, the beneficiary of the event, were richer by the excellent concert given last Sunday by the Etude Octette at First Unitarian Church.

The eight singers, who were organized in 1961 through the efforts of Wendell Wright, are maintaining their original aim - "to sing and enjoy the wonderful music literature given us by the old masters and musicians from the modern school."

Within these four years the Octette has developed techniques in interpretational skills of increasing proficiency that place the group in the upper bracket of the local choral ensembles.

At Sunday's concert, underwritten by over 300 patrons and sponsors, the program gave broad resume of choral music, from the early madrigals which were sung often with the participants seated around a table.

Motets by William Byrd, early English composer and Johann Sebastian Bach, portrayed a religious form of the madrigal and were especially rewarding for the Octette, with its accurate and clear voice leading.

Challenging contrasts and rich tonal effects marked the difficult Brahms motet, based on the 51st Psalm.

Of the modern' compositions, by far the loveliest was Thompson's "Choose Something on a Star", with the finely sustained sopranos of tone against the vibrant choral background and the imaginative piano accompaniment, by J. Spencer Hammond.

The rollicking "Just as the Tide Was Flowing" (Vaughn Williams) and a group of "Songs of Faith and Devotion," displayed exuberance and warmth without any loss of musical qualities.

The spiritual, "My Lord What a Morning," was sung as a memorial to Mrs. Wright's mother.

• • •

MR. HAMMOND, as guest organist gave a perceptive reading of the majestic Bach "Prelude and Fugue in F minor", the "Adagio" from Mendelssohn's "Sonata" and the elaborate variations on the hymn "Holy God We Praise Thy Name".

The Octette personnel included Barbara Jones and Gloria Walker, sopranos; Sara Moore and Louis Wright, contraltos; William Banks and Wendell Wright, tenors, and William Griggsby and Murray Schmoke, basses.

At the conclusion of the concert the octette presented John Burleigh, CORE executive board, with James Griffin, is president of local CORE. The Octette is managed by Murray Schmoke and Wendell Wright, III.

Many local music lovers will recall Louis Vaughn Jones, the distinguished violinist who was was presented here in highly successful concerts some years ago. He was long a member of the faculty of the School of Music at Howard University. Funeral services were held Thursday for him in Washington.

The polished performances of this gifted and handsome musician, set a high standard in instrumental music. It is to be hoped that string players of our present generation will follow his example of dedicated study and accomplishment, in preparation for new opportunities opening now for the proficient instrumentalist.

Job Corps plea nets 75,000

WASHINGTON, (UPI)—More than 75,000 young men and women volunteered for the domestic job corps in the first month of recruitment, Sargent Shriver, head of the anti-poverty program, reported Tuesday.

Shriver, director of the office of Economic Opportunity, announced the figure in a speech to the agency's national advisory council at its first meeting here.

Those accepted for the job corps will work at conservation centers and in urban projects. The applicants, between 16 and 21 years old, will receive job training and educational help.

Shriver praised the voluntary contributions of newspapers, radio and television stations, voluntary organizations and individual entertainers for encouraging interest in the program.

He said that "opportunity cards" in which volunteers indicate their interest in the job corps are coming in at a rate of between 4,000 and 5,000 a day.
