THE CORRIDORS of the Morgan State College Science Quadrangle buildings echoed the tramp-tramp of little adventurers in science - the seven and eight - year - olders of Jack and Jill Club who visited the campus on Saturday, February 6th, to have a little fun with science.

The bright - eyes, curious youngsters peeped into laboratories, visited the vivarium with its pungent odors and the luxuriant terrarium. Mr. Charles Robinson, Instructor of Science Education, patiently answered their queries, explained machinery and equipment, and teased their science quotients (Why is the sky blue?), demonstrated the model of the solar system, and created some chemical concoctions resembling orange juice and strawberry soda. Their scientific cups filled to the brim, the children carried away magnets as mementos of their delightful session.

Children attending were Michael Abrams, Keith Neal, John Braxton, Barbara Braxton, Bernard Christmas, Angela Griggs, Illona Sheffey Minna and Yancey Whittaker Denise Julian, Rodney Alston, Celonia Walden, Lisa Moore, Shirley Carroll, Carole Boston, Robin Hillen, and Daryl Jones.

Moms about were Fannie Alston, Carolyn Boston, Marguerite Carroll, Vashti Christmas, Joslyn Braxton, Rebecca Griggs, Rosearl Julian, Ruthe Sheffey, Christine Moore, Joyce Neal, and Helen Whittaker.

Marguerite Carroll and Rosearl Julian were co-chairmen for the activity. Vashti Christmas is chairman of the age - group, and Helen Whittaker is president of the club.

At Pentagon

Dr. Martin Jenkins, President of Morgan State College, was among the seven college and university presidents invited by the Secretary of the Army to attend a one - day meeting of the Army ROTC Program at the Pentagon, last Friday.
