crowd with some of his own hits.

But then there was Johnny ("Part Time Love") Taylor, a family friend who f[illegible]ed Sam into the Soul S[illegible]rers and records on Sams SAR label — and now he was singing his fallen friend's "Rome Wasn't Built In A Day."

L.C. looked as if he'd as soon be miles away. As if ready to make that true, he started down a side aisle toward the rear of the Coliseum.

He was still walking back when Taylor went off and a local deejay started introducing him.

THE TIME had come. L. C. was skipping up the stage steps and the Upsetters, led by Herman Nash, the first and last band to back Sam Cooke, picked up the beat.

The number was Sam's "Twisting The Night Away" and most of the crowd was clapping and swinging with L. C. Some had a mixed look that said happy but sad.

"I guess I'd rather sing his-songs than others," L. C. had said an hour before.

His other number was Sam's popular, "That's Where It's At.

ANYONE JUST back in the country and who didn't know Sam was dead, might have lost money betting it was Sam.

The voice was close enough, if you didn't know it was L. C. to shrug it off and say you'd heard Sam have better nights but to concede you were getting your money's worth.

The greatest difference you'd note would be that L. C. leaned more to the religious fervor; lacked a bit of the casual, good - natured showmanship that endeared many to Sam.

Some fans moved forward with cameras.

Some stood at their seat to clap.

L. C. knelt over his mike, a man at work on one of the songs he wanted to sing but some times found hard to do.

He got a thunderous roar as he left the stage and latter many of the other stars on the bill gathered around as he changed to say things like, "mellow cat man."

Put together by Herman Nash and S. R. Crain, of Atlanta, the tour hit Baltimore, Danville, Atlanta Newark, New York, Norfolk, Philadelphia, Richmond, Washington and Chicago.

It featured the Soul Stirrers, the Highway Q C's, Harmonizing Four, Meditation Singers, the Impressions, Jerry Butler, Burke and the Taylors.

Kitty Broady of Radio WWIN emceed the first half of the show and Johnny O of WWIN and Bill (Sparky) Mullen of WSID handled the final part.

L. C. told the AFRO he hopes to "stay in the business until I get ready to retire" but quickly added the public will have the last word about it.

He said his "Put Me Down Easy" and "Take Me For What I Am" went pretty good.

Just out and being watched anxiously now is his newest, "Do You Wanna Dance?" backed by "I'll Wait For You."

Just as he wrote many of Sam's songs, L. C. wrote both sides of his latest effort on the Destination Label.

LOOKING BACK over the years, L. C. recalled that all the Cooke children, five boys and three girls, started out as "The Singing Children."

Until December when Sam was shot to death, he held the limelight. Now, in addition to L. C., whose stage age is 26, only the baby brother, David, 23, appears obliges autograph seekers Miss Susie Hough, Miss Dorothy Henderson and Andrew Hill, Panel three interested in singing as a career.

They both know it's a steep climb to where Sam went from the days of "The Singing Children."

"Sam picked those boys up when they had nothing and made stars of them," the slain singer's mother recalled.

Cooke, 33, a former gospel singer who skyrocketed to fame and fortune as a "pop" singer, was shot to death on Dec. 11, 1964, by a Los Angeles motel manager, who charged that the singer broke into her office searching for a girl who had registered with him at the motel.

THE WIDOW, reportedly wearing a large diamond ring, a gift from young Womack, lives in a plush $200,000 Hollywood home, built by Cooke.

The slain singer's estate has been estimated at close to $2 million in cash and property.

stigma of anything immoral.

During his testimony, Russell did not deny any of the charges lodged by Chief Inspector George J. Murphy and Capt. Frederick T. Dunn, Commander of Southwestern.

He admitted the first report of his encounter with the couple was false; that he had failed to patrol his post, when he spent about 20 minutes "relaxing and talking" with Officer Carroll in the vacant lot; and that he had driven Mr. Brown two blocks in a post car, thereby violating departmental regulations.

MISS ADAMS testified it was Patrolman Carroll who made the advances toward her while he was seated in the front seat of her companion's car.

As she testified Miss Adams sat next to Officer Russell.

When asked to identify the officer whom she charged, "made advances" and offered to release her if she cooperated, Miss Adams told the Commissioner that officer was not in the room.

Carroll, along with several other witnesses, was in the room adjoining the Commissioner's office as Miss Adams testified.

Mr. White contended that the only thing Russell was guilty of was attempting to protect a fellow officer.

resident shot, wife charged

The normally quiet Morgan Park community was shattered with excitement early Thursday evening when a 36 - year - old man dashed out of his house and collapsed on the lawn of Dr. Maurice Adams, 2506 Overland Ave.

Edward L. Tucker, 2200 block E. Coldspring Lane, had been shot in the chest with a .22 calibre pistol.

Taken to Union Memorial Hospital, he underwent emergency treatment and later surgery. Northeastern district police reported his condition as fair early today (Friday).

His wife, Mrs. Patricia Tucker, 32, has been charged in the shooting.

the properties to be used, in order to meet certain building specifications.

The BURHA Commission has recommended that the city agree to the requested sale.

Earlier, an official of the Community Facilities Administration in Washington assured attorney for the corporation that federal funds would be available for the project, should the application be received prior to the coming June 30.

The law firm of Nicholas and Gosnell is handling this phase of the corporation's bid.

Approval for amendments to the Harlem Park project to allow acquirement of parcels of adjacent properties by the St. James Terrace corporation must also come from the Planning Commission and the City Council.

Modern Jazz Quartet at Morgan on Sunday

The Modern Jazz Quartet, which has been described as "the finest pure concert ensemble in jazz," will appear at Murphy Auditorium, Morgan State College, at 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 14.

Presented by the Morgan Concert Hall Series, the quartet is composed of John Lewis, Percy Heath, Milt Jackson and Connie Kay.

The group has in its repertoire compositions by Jackson and Lewis, including works taken from Lewis' film score for the French film "No Sun at Venice" and the Belafonte film "Odds Against Tomorrow."

During the past year, the quartet has appeared at the Monterey Jazz Festival, San Remo Jazz Festival and the Bled Jazz Festival in Yugoslavia.

At Christmas, M Q gave its annual concert in Carnegie Hall.

THESE ex - members of the Dizzy Gillespie big band have given performances during the past year with the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra, the Minneapolis Symphony Orchstra and the Kalamazo Symphony Orchestra.

From last March to June, they made a three - month concert tour of Europe. This was their seventh European tour.

The appearance of the MJQ is the second event in the Morgan Concert Hall Series.

Others will be the Puccini Festival on March 7, Nelson and Neal on March 21 and the Turnau Opera Players on April 23.

Dr. R. Hayes Strider, head of the Morgan music department, is chairman of the series.

Fashion revue week March 14-20

The Home Economics Department of Cherry Hill Junior High School, Seamon and Cherry Hill Rd., will hold a spring revue, 'Fashion ABC's,' on Tuesday, Feb. 16, at 2 p.m. in the school auditorium. James R. Hite is principal.
