MUSICAL MOMENTS

St. James show at Lyric scores a decisive success

By ADAH K. JENKINS

Clyde Turner and his Broadway Theatrical Extravaganza scored a decided success at the Lyric last Thursday, under the sponsorship of St. James Episcopal Church.

The sparkling, well-timed and professionally polished performance solicited hearty appreciation from a good-sized audience.

Mr. Turner and his vocal sextet seemed as thoroughly at home in opera, Broadway shows and folk music as in the delightful spoofing from three Gilbert and Sullivan productions.

Vocally, the personnel of the company, all of whom are professionally trained and experienced musicians, proved to be soloists of distinction.

Joey Blackett, possessing a contralto of notable quality and production, was enthusiastically received, both Victoria Harrison and Jane Moody were in able command of their soprano resources, with the exception of the latter's coloratura passages, which seemed unnecessarily forced.

Clyde Turner, of considerable experience in American and European opera and musical companies, brought to the tenor solos an excellent voice and perceptive projection of the various roles.

Cortez Franklin, tenor, Wanza King and Dennis Parren, baritones, were especially effective in excerpts from "Carmen Jones" and "West Side Story".

Benjamin Gray, at the piano, proved to be accompanist of rare ability, as well as a technically brilliant soloist.

Handsome gowns and colorful costumes, especially in the Gilbert and Sullivan excerpts, enhanced the enjoyment of the extravaganza.

This is Mr. Turner's third project in Baltimore, having been here for the last two seasons at the Lyric and at Murphy Auditorium (Morgan) under the auspices of the Oblate Sisters of Providence.

Heading the St. James Committee were Mrs. Agnes T. Underwood, Sinclair Swann, co-chairmen; Mrs. Edna F. Lane, coordinator, and Father Donald Wilson, rector.

WITH SAUL LILENSTEIN on the podium and 110 musicians occupying the stage of the Pimlico Junior High School, the Jewish Community Choral Society and the Maryland Youth Symphony Orchestra gave a highly creditable performance of the Haydn Oratorio "Creation".

The chorus, now in its fifth year, showed evidence of careful study and was heard to fine effect in the famous "The Heavens Are Telling".

Altho at times the orchestra was overpowering for the vocal participants, the young instrumentalists handled the Baroque difficulties of the score with surprising security.

The choice of soloists was particularly rewarding, with Ruth Gatto's well-placed, flexible soprano and the dramatic projection and excellent diction of cantors, Abraham Denburg, tenor, and Abraham Salkov, baritone. The recitatives were accompanied by Hugh O'Meagher, harpsichordist.

THE YOUTH Symphony of 80 players from local high schools, now in its second season, was directed by Angelo Gatto. Both chorus and orchestral are interracial.

Coordinating the performance was Mrs. Joseph Sherbow, chairman of the JCC Music Committee and the Board of the Youth Symphony.

The event, which attracted a large attendance, was in honor of the 21st annual Jewish Music Festival and was sponsored by the JCC Adult Services, of which Irving Sattell is director.

Hints for Homemakers

INEZ KAISER

Flattery will get you somewhere, and I am a living example. For years I have been writing columns directed to women. They have sent me scores of complimentary letters, cards and messages.

But not until I attended the Midwinter Workshop of the Publishers about this column, which runs in their papers each month, I asked one of them if he used any of the fine Lever Brothers products which I write about. He laughed and said, "Certainly. I use Lever Brothers' laundry detergent, WISK."

It was interesting to me that this heavy-duty liquid detergent had made such an impression on his male mind. However, he quickly reassured me that he did not do any housework. He said that while his wife used it for laundering, he had found WISK a perfect cleaner for his whitewall tires. I knew then that he really has been reading my column.

But he really convinced me when he told me how his 20-year-old daughter had also used it to remove lipstick stains from the collar of her prized party dress.

So why don't you make WISK a habit, too? It is so versatile you can use it for all your cleaning chores.

Valentine's Day has come and gone, but I have a suggestion that can win you expressions of love and admiration from your family the year round. Just serve them hot cakes, waffles or French toast smothered in MRS. BUTTERWORTH'S syrup as a breakfast or luncheon treat.

I realize that it may take a few extra minutes to prepare these hearty, satisfying dishes, but the pleased response from your family is ample reward.

Whichever treat you decide to make, just be sure to serve it with MRS. BUTTERWORTH'S. It's the syrup with the rich, buttery, maple flavor that hits the spot with young and old alike.

Another important thing you will like about MRS. BUTTERWORTH'S is that it will not turn rancid or separate between uses. It has a special patented process which prevents this from happening. The consistency remains the same to the very last lip-smacking drop.

Furthermore children are really fascinated with the distinctive bottle. Little old lady, I'm told they remember it as a piggy bank or make little doll outfits for it.

Modern detergents and washing machines have made "Blue Monday" a thing of the past. Still, one laundering chore that most homemakers have to tend to themselves is ironing. But now Lever Brothers has made even ironing easier by giving us FINAL TOUCH, the fabric softener which makes clothes whiter, brighter, and rightly soft to the touch.

If you haven't already discovered FINAL TOUCH for yourself, I urge you to do so. You'll find your towels, sheets, shirts, blouses and everything else you wash not only whiter and brighter — but far easier to iron. The iron seems to just glide over the fabric with very little effort on your part.

The secret of FINAL TOUCH's dazzling brightening effect is Solium Plus, an exclusive brightener developed by Lever's laboratory wizards. And it can be used in any kind of washing machine, whether a wringer type, automatic or hand type. You simply pour a little FINAL TOUCH into the final rinse water, according to directions on the label.

FINAL TOUCH comes in a distinctively shaped light blue plastic bottle and is easy to find on any grocery-store shelf. Take my advice and see for yourself how much more pleasant and easier ironing can be.

Your taste buds can't tell. That's what I have learned after trying to find a taste difference between IMPERIAL MARGARINE and the higher-priced spread.

But it is easy to understand why they taste so much alike. For IMPERIAL is a nutritious blend of light, pure vegetable oils which gives you both corn oil goodness and all the wonderful fresh, delicate flavor you love. And it costs so much less, too.

You'll recognize IMPERIAL by the attractive gold, blue and red package with the crown on the cover. Each of the four quarter-pound sticks inside is wrapped in laminated foil to preserve its freshness and flavor and to protect it from refrigerator odors.

You'll find IMPERIAL equally good for cooking, baking and frying. It also makes tempting sauces for vegetable and fish dishes, to give them added flavor and goodness. Each stick wrapper has handy measurement markings that are very helpful when you are preparing a special dish or following a special recipe.

So take my advice and adopt IMPERIAL MARGARINE as your table spread. The money you save can help to pay for other family needs.

Corn cakes

When two favorite dishes combine you're sure to create a third as in these Chili Corn Meal Cakes.

Corn meal pancakes have always been special for breakfast. Now, filled with spicy chili, they form the basis for a hearty supper dish, too.

Use convenient canned chili or prepare your own homemade. Complete the menu with a green vegetable, fruit salad, bakery-fresh cookies and a beverage.

• • •

THESE CORN meal pancakes are so easy to make when self-rising corn meal and flour are used. Self-rising corn meal and flour with leavening and salt added save sifting and measuring steps.

And everytime you bake with these convenience products you add three essential B-vitamins, thiamine, niacin and riboflavin and the minerals, iron and calcium to your family's diet.

Chili Corn Cakes are made with 1 cup enriched self-rising corn meal, 1 cup sifted enriched self-rising flour*, 2 eggs, beaten, ¼ cup melted shortening or oil, 2 cups milk, 1 can (5½ oz.) chili or 2 cups homemade chili.

Lightly grease and preheat griddle. In medium-sized mixing bowl stir together corn meal and flour. Combine eggs, shortening or oil and milk. Add liquid all at once to corn meal mixture, stirring until blended.

For each pancake pour about ¼ cup batter onto griddle. Bake until golden brown, turning once. Heat chili; place 2 to 3 tablespoonfuls in center of each pancake. Roll up, securing with wooden pick, if desired.

IF YOU DON'T sift, and in the absence of other directions, spoon flour directly from container into a one-cup dry measure, level off, then remove two level tablespoonfuls.

Isador Oglesby to do recital

The program is being sponsored by the Holy Trinity Choir Guild.

Mr. Oglesby will be accompanied by Norman Ross, organist and choirmaster of the church.
