Tree's bark worse than bite of dog

By STERLING A. PAIGE

What might have been a typical boy-meets-dog story fizzled out Tuesday and ended up with an amusing episode which found the dog gone down the street, the boy gone up the tree and firemen coming round the corner in a hook-and-ladder truck with a 100 foot ladder to rescue a six-year-old, four-foot lad who was trapped two feet up in a 20-foot tree.

The scene: the 4000 block Kathland Ave.

The lad was little Shawn Mohammed, a pupil at School 64.

It seems that young Shawn was playing on the sidewalk when along came a little playmate who had a little dog who wanted to play with Shawn.

"He's only a little teeny dog, Mister," the playmate told the AFRO. "He came to my house last night and I let him in and fed him. He lik to play."

It seems the doggie started for Shawn who started for the big tree. The doggie forgot to explain that he only wanted to play and to little Shawn, who's afraid of doggies, he looked awfully big.

So up the tree climbed Shawn. He got about two feet up in the air before he was caught, not by the dog but by the tree.

The tree caught the knee. The little boy cried and the little doggie ran. And the more Shawn struggled to get free, the tighter the tree held the knee.

Shawn cried and cried. Other little boys pulled and pulled but the mean old tree held on to the knee.

Finally a neighborhood resident heard Shawn's screams and called the fire department.

AS THE FIRE truck sped to the rescue, excitement reigned in the neighborhood. Lt. Elwood Fletcher, in charge of the crew, sized up the situation and decided to used a hydraulic jack to force open the twin trunks of the tree.

"Bring the axe," he told firefighter Van Thomas.

Thomas seized the axe and Shawn saw the axe.

Shawn screamed louder than ever. But Mr. Thomas only chopped a place in the tree to set the jack.

In a few minutes, Shawn's knee was free - thanks to the Fire Department. By this time, Shawn's mother, Mrs. Ellen Mohammed, 3300 blk. Oakford, rushed home from her job following an emergency call.

"I was so upset when I got the call. I didn't know what to expect," said Mrs. Mohammed to the AFRO.

It was a story of a youngster running from the bite of a dog and getting caught by the bark of a tree.

Young schedules press conference

Whitney Young, executive director of the Nation Urban League, and chief speaker at the 40th annual dinner meeting of the Baltimore Urban League, will hold a press conference in the Terrace Room on the first floor of the Sheraton - Belvedere Hotel at 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

A reception will follow at 4 p.m., with the dinner scheduled at 5 p.m.

At the Baltimore dinner Mr. Young will be introduced by Walter Sondheim Jr., a framer of the city's war on Poverty.

Teacher support kindergarten bill

The 5,700-member Public School Teachers Association of Baltimore has announced its support of legislation pending in Annapolis which would, if enacted, include for the first time state aid for public school kindergarten.

Baltimore City has conducted public kindergarten education at full expense to the City since 1901 when sixteen kindergarten classes were established. Today 15,957 pupils are enrolled in kindergarten in the City.

Support growing for planned parenthood aid

Support increased this past week for a resolution before the State Welfare Board which would encourage case workers to make family planning information available in families where it appears desirable.

Today (Friday) the board is expected to act on the resolution which would allow referrals "to the local health department, to the family physician, to any hospital where the service is available or to the Planned Parenthood Clinic."

The Baltimore Chapter of the Americans for Democratic Action stated in a letter to the welfare department that it should make such principles and procedures available "to all mothers."

"We believe," the ADA said, "that the time has come when the problem of unplanned parenthood must be attacked by every societal agency that has any degree of involvement whatsoever."

• • •

IN ANOTHER move, the Charles County Welfare Board unanimously adopted a resolution that "caseworkers should be authorized to refer any public welfare clients to planned parenthood clinics."

The Charles County board communicated its action to State Welfare Director Raleigh C. Hobson and announced its intention soon to provide such a clinic.

In addition, a resolution has been introduced in the Maryland House of Delegates which requests the welfare department "to disseminate family planning information to all recipients of services and financial aid" under the provisions of aid to dependent children.
