4TH GRADERS, SCHOOL 101, VISIT AFRO — Youngsters from the Elmer A. Henderson School, Biddle and Wolfe Sts., visited the AFRO Building Tuesday. They were accompanied by their teacher, Mrs. Mattie Blackwell and Mr. Younger. The group included Sandra Johnson, Delores McNair, Kathleen Edwards, Florence Williams, Thelma Queen Lillian Spencer, Denise Street, Deborah McGee, Nataleen Davis, Evelyn Godsey, Carolyn Crosby, Barbara McDaniels, Theresa Phyall, Audrey Donaldson, Larry Hall, Roy Roosevelt, Anthony Crowder, Steven Brown, Russell Staten, Kenneth Harris, Joseph Ferges, Marion Anderson, Larry Street, John Munford, Nathuniel Pedd, Audra Sommerville, Tyrone Robinson, James Edwards, Bernard Tutardo, Odell Dixon, Michael Williamson, Winfred Dawson, Allen Randall, Hezekiah Brown and Henry Langley.

Councilwoman sees housing dream start

Havre De Grace's lone City Councilwoman, Mrs. Mildred Gore Stansbury, initiated the project that led to approval of the Federal Housing Authority for the town's new 120 - unit low-rent housing development.

The plans for the project access beauty as well as healthful environment and were designed by Mrs. Stansburg and members of the Havre De Grace Housing Authority, Thomas Hatem, Alfred Marisi, James Owens, Jacob Hecht and Italy Overton.

Mrs. Stansbury's fight for the project began in 1964 as she pointed out to the community how the housing development could help the historic town being a program of planning and development for a prosperous future.

The first aim, she indicated, was to obtain better homes for segments of the community long neglected and ignored.

She said, "Citizens plagued by blighted neighborhoods can never rise above substandard living conditions unless the community takes profound interest in eliminating blighted areas."

• • •

NOW THAT the housing project is scheduled to become a reality, Mrs. Stansbury reminds the community of the Greater Havre De Grace she envisioned earlier, an attractive city, where new industries might build their plants and commerce might flourish.

Therefore at the announcement of government approval of her project, Mrs. Stansbury called upon Havre De Grace as a whole to become inspired by the new project soon to go up and make special effort to remodel and beautify the entire city.

"This is just the beginning," she said.

"As we help those who can not help themselves, we can also help our city become a better place to live."

Institute dates fashion shows

"Yesterday, Today an Tomorrow" is the theme for this spring's 30th annual fashion show presented by the fashion arts department of the Maryland Institute, College of Art.

The public is invited to attend its two showings, the first at 3 p.m. on Sunday, April 2, and the second at 8:15 p.m. on Thursday, April 6. Modeling takes place on the stairway and in the court of the Institute's main building, 1300 Mount Royal Avenue.

Hints for Homemakers

INEZ KAISER

Spring has come—and all thoughts are turned to looking as lovely as possible. With Easter only a few days away, most women are interested in buying a new Easter bonnet. But in order to show it off to your best advantage, ladies, may I remind you that it is important for you to have a smooth, soft complexion.

One of the best ways to assure it is to wash your face daily with the new LUX BEAUTY SOAP. You will be amazed to see how it will soften as it cleanses. The lotiony lather just seems to go down deep into the pores to remove the dirt and moisturize your skin at the same time.

When you go to shop for LUX, be sure to notice the new wrappers. They come in white, and delicate shades of pink, green, yellow or light blue to match the color of the LUX inside. Once you remove the wrapper, the delicate, fluted shape of LUX BEAUTY SOAP, which is available in regular and bath sizes, is revealed. This new look is not only pleasing to the eye, but is much easier to handle, too.

May I suggest that you start using this beauty bar. See if you do not agree with me that your skin will blossom forth as a tulip in springtime with a beautiful, soft, delicate look that only LUX BEAUTY SOAP can make possible.

Why work hard scrubbing your pots and pans? Just start using new pink lotion SWAN and you will find that it will cut grease with little or no effort on your part.

Now I know that with all your household responsibilities, saving time is most important. Scouring pans and removing grease from utensils can consume many precious moments that might be used to better advantage.

This is why I suggest that you keep either a regular, giant or king size bottle of SWAN on your shelf. Unlike other detergents that lose their cleaning power after a short period of time, SWAN's effectiveness lasts from the time you begin washing the most delicate glassware until you get to the greasiest pan in the house. As a result, not only will you save time from scrubbing, but it will not be necessary for you to change your dishwater several times.

SWAN costs the hardest grease without any difficulty in either hard or soft water. In addition, it does a good cleaning job without roughing up your hands. This new pink lotion SWAN LIQUID is a "must" for every homemaker to have in the house.

If you really want to know the truth, just ask a teen-ager, and you are sure to get an honest answer.

At the recent meeting of the Executive Board of the Woman's Auxiliary to the National Medical Association, Lever Brothers was host to a luncheon. After the scheduled activities, I asked the women if they read my column. There was a choral "yes" from the group. One member responded that she had recently started using COLD WATER "all" and loved the way it kept the colors of her colored clothing bright. She said that certain fabrics had less shrinking, that stains no longer set permanently as they do in hot water, and there was less wrinkling of her laundry.

Another added she was able to save hot water for other uses.

Following the informal chat, persons were allowed to draw a prize. One of the winners was the 12-year-old daughter of a board member who chose a bottle of COLD WATER "all." Asked why this was her choice, she very calmly stated that she had read about COLD WATER "all" in my column, and she had found that even a teen-ager can use it and get results.

We all agreed that if you ask youth a question, you are sure to get a logical answer.

You would be surprised to know that using the right brand of tooth paste can make all the difference in the world in the way your teeth look. If you want to be one of the lucky persons who has a pleasant smile all the time, then change to PEPSODENT today. It is the tooth paste just made for people who like to smile.

The cleaning ability of this dentifrice is the result of much research and testing conducted at the Lever laboratory.

During my visit there it was interesting to note that PEPSODENT outbrightens every other leading tooth paste. I was able to make a firsthand observation that it gets teeth their whitest. PEPSODENT's newly patented formula makes it possible for you to be able to smile with confidence, knowing that your teeth are their whitest.

You know it is very important to be able to smile, whether you are a housewife or a career woman. Everywhere you go, you meet people, talk to them or just exchange a smile. The way your teeth look can help decide what kind of impression you leave with them.

Another point I might also stress is that PEPSODENT is a tooth paste that is ideal for both adults and children. And there is a size just right to meet your family needs.

Urge Tawes veto for liquor bill

The office of Gov. Tawes Wednesday was barraged with telegrams from Baltimore civic and civil rights organizations asking him to veto House Bill No. 740.

The bill, sponsored by Del. Marvin Mandel, (D., 5th), Del. Alan M. Resnick (D., 5th), and Del. Murray Abramson (D., 4th), provides for a new type seven-day liquor license.

The NAACP said in its telegram signed by Dr. Lillie M. Jackson, local branch president, that the license will:

"... Automatically permit a seven-day liquor license in our residential neighborhoods.

"Such a law will tear down communities faster than the churches, the "War on Poverty," Urban Renewal, the NAACP and all other civic, religious and educational programs can build up."

Dr. Jackson said that the NAACP was alarmed that the bill was "slipped" through the Legislature

Phillips, Hamilton head mental hospitals

Dr. George McK. Phillips, former clinical director at Crownsville State Hospital since 1958, took over his new office Thursday as acting superintendent of Crownsville.

The appointment, announced by Dr. Isadore Tuerk, commissioner of mental hygiene, fills a vacancy that has been standing since the dismissal of Crownsville's former head, Dr. Charles S. Ward.

The firing of Dr. Ward as superintendent at Crownsville was upheld in a decision rendered Tuesday by Judge James K. Cullen in Superior Court.

The new acting superintendent is a graduate of the Howard University Medical School and started working at Crownsville in 1955.

Simultaneous with the elevation of Dr. Phillips,

Twenty percent employment of colored personnel with the 30th of June as the date concrete action is expected is the schedule asked of Baltimore commercial banks by the Baltimore Chapter of CORE.

CORE terms this the "minimum acceptable goal" for employment in white collar positions in banks that new employ only 138, or 3.5 percent colored among a total of 3,975 employees.

The militant organization cited figures showing 36 percent colored among the 11,900 classified employees in Baltimore City; 26 percent among the 5,800 accounting operations employees of the Social Security Administration at Woodlawn; 24 percent among

Veney raids arguments over, decision awaited

By WILBUR L. PINDER

Whether it is unconstitutional for police to raid the homes of citizens without search warrants now rests in the hands of the Federal Court's Judge Roszel Thompson.

The NAACP's historic request for injunctive action against such raids concluded Thursday.

James M. Nabrit 3rd., NAACP National Legal Defense Fund attorney, and W. A. C. Hughes Jr., local NAACP lawyer, contended that the raids violated sections of the 4th and 14th Amendments of the Constitution.

They said uncontested facts in the case revealed police entered more than 300 homes of citizens seeking the Veney brothers without search warrants.

• • •

MR. NABRIT further pointed out that although police maintained that in almost every case consent had been given, there was no evidence given to substantiate their position.

Mr. Nabrit said the conduct of the police during the raids was like that which one would expect to find in a "police state".

NEW BALTIMOREAN—Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin presented Dr. Martin Luther King with a key to the city and made him an honorary citizen this week. Wednesday, when the key was presented, also was proclaimed Martin Luther King Jr. Day in honor of the Nobel Peace Prize winner by Mayor McKeldin.

Leaders puzzled over his motives

WASHINGTON

What is Elder Solomon Michaux trying to prove by his attacks on Dr. Martin Luther King?

This was the question being asked in Washington on Thursday by leaders and in the community at - large after the minister took a bus load of people to Baltimore to picket Dr. King.

Some 65 singing, chanting, marching, sack-clothed demonstrators swooped down on the Lord Baltimore Hotel Thursday to picket against Dr. King and the board of his Southern Christian Leadership Conference, convening in Baltimore.

The pickets were led by Elder Michaux, minister and evangelist.

The Elder had prepared press releases which were handed out to further confused reporters who were fast getting nowhere in their vain pursuit with him.

QUESTIONS directed to Elder Michaux as to his reasons for picketing against Dr. King brought biblical quotations and unclear but lengthy ramblings concerning "Communist infiltrators" and "God's kingdom for every body way up on another plane."

As close as could be determined, the demonstration was a protest against Dr. King's call for an economic boycott against the State of Alabama.

"This would bring about dissatisfaction among both white and colored people and would hurt the colored people of Alabama," said the evangelist.

HE SPOKE of troubles leaders turning their backs on God and that being why everything is so wrong.

Q. — Are you saying, sir, that Dr. King has turned his back on God?

A. — Well, I say Dr. King has turned his back on the plans that God gave him to lead his people. That's why he is wrong and why

King sets big drive for June

By GEORGE W. COLLINS

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference, headed by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., will render a crucial decision at noon today when it decides whether to proceed with the planned economic boycott of Alabama as originally announced or modify it as is being urged by many civil rights supporters and some government officials.

When the two-day annual convention opened Thursday following a tribute to Dr. King Wednesday night, leaders were freely predicting that the proposed crippling boycott of Alabama-produced commodities would be pushed.

However, an informal survey early today revealed a

Mrs. Juanita de Lomba Jones, a Baltimore divorcee and owner of a North Ave. wig shop, admits she is "the kind of person things happens to."

Indeed, she is!

On Wednesday afternoon she went straight through Baltimore Security Police VIP lines, stood by the airplane as Dr. Martin Luther King alighted and was mistaken for the wife of the celebrated civil rights leader.

According to Mrs. Jones, who resides at 2001 Wabash Ave., here is what "happened" from shortly before the Nobel Peace Prize winner arrived at Friendship Airport until the end of the strange incident;

1. "I was upstairs in the airport and men that looked like guards were all around like crazy. I wanted to get down to the plane where Dr. King was due to get off. I wanted an exclusive story on him.

2. "Up there on the upper part of the airport I saw a man that works for the airport and you know how women are, I charmed him. I twisted his arm.

3. "I said I wanted to get by the crowd and he said, "Ok, I'll take you down so you won't have to walk." We

WHAT THEY SAID AT TESTIMONIAL

Church in the hotel as Dr. King spoke

By BETTYE MOSS

It was like church in the Lord Baltimore Hotel Ballroom on Wednesday evening.

Shouts of 'Amen,' and 'tell it,' could be heard frequently as the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., addressed a dinner audience estimated at 1200 persons, many of whom stood throughout the two and a quarter hour program.

Due to start at eight o'clock, the program was delayed 35 minutes while the overflow audience tried to find seats.

Some eventually moved to the balcony, where tables where also crowded. Many stood.

• • •

THE SHOUTS of 'amen' and 'tell it' came at several points during Dr. King's speech — the most enthusiastic ones as he concluded with a ringing call for economic pressures, a job he described as 'our moral responsibility.'
