After a discussion with Edgar Allen, director of geetics at the hospital, the neering committee of the auxiliary said a new type hot pack food system would be purchased.

The equipment will even- tually become part of the new hospital.

MEMBERS OF the auxili- Gudes Mesdames Martha Holmes, president of the auxiliary and ticket chairman; Flores Montgomery, co-chairman of the tea, and Madie Mitchell, chairman of hostesses.

Henry Whyte, hospital administrator, and Mrs. Virginia Brown, will be the program chairmen.

Other members of the committee include Mrs. Willia Bland, Mrs. May Thomas, Mrs. Mary Moody, and Mrs. Geneva Hicks.

LT. COL. MERLE J. SMITH, professor of Military Science, Morgan State College, will be promoted to the rank of full Colonel within the next year. Also selected to "wear the Eagle" is Chaplain (Lt. Col.) John W. Handy of the Army's Chaplain Board at Fort Meade, Md. There are 11 colored full colonels now on active duty in the Army.

Rec centers ready plans for holidays

The Bureau of Recreation has scheduled programs of fun for all ages for the coming holiday season.

Each playground and recreation center will have appropriate events for children and teen-agers for Easter Monday.

Children's programs will include egg-rolling, egg hunts, parties, games and contests for the morning hours.

The afternoon programs will include matinee dances, talent shows, All for Glory Track Meets, family picnics and cook-outs.

The schools are closed April 12-19, and each center has planned something special for each day.

Posters at each center list the planned programs.

IN SELMA

The mayor's version

SELMA, Ala., (UPI) — Mayor Joe Smitherman, stating he waited until he returned to Alabama to give the true version, said he and a local attorney were relieved of $107 in Washington by a "glib-tongued colored to club Selma over the head a man."

A man identified as James Edwards was arrested after the incident Sunday night and gave a different version of the occurrence. Police quoted Edwards as saying he was given the money by John Pilcher to find them "some entertainment."

Smitherman and Pilcher said Edwards' version was "ridiculous," and added that "it's another prime example of the press making a mountain out of a molehill to give Selma another bad eye."

SMITHERMAN, 35, gave his story to the Selma Times Journal because "I know anything we said up there would be further distorted by the Yankee press some more." He refused any further interviews on the incident.

The mayor, Pilcher, public safety director Wilson Baker and Times Journal Assoicate Editor Arthur Capell were in Washington to appear on a taped television show (David Susskind's "open end") against civil rights spokesmen.

Smitherman said he and Pilcher went hunting for a late meal around midnight but could find no restaurants open. He said they asked a uniformed building guard for information outside their hotel and, while conversing, a colored man (Edwards) came along and said he was a former bell boy in a private club patronized by congressmen.

"I told him we were respectable people—that I was the Mayor of Selma," Smitherman said.

THE MAYOR said he, Pilcher and the man got into a cab and rode to a building several blocks away. The man told the Selma men to wait outside while he went in.

"I paid the $2 cab fare, gave the man $3 to buy our membership in the club and a $2 tip for his help," Smitherman said. After a 15-minute wait, the Mayor said Pilcher discovered his money was gone from his pocket.

Smitherman said he did not report the incident because Pilcher was "concerned that the news services would pick up the incident because I am the Mayor of Selma."

—James Edwards

talking man who speaks the language of the con game, disputes both versions.

Frustrated by a court maneuver which prevented him from publicly disclosing his version of what happened that night, Edwards expressed amazement at accounts of the incident given the press by the Selma residents.

"If the mayor was looking for food, why didn't he go to a restaurant?" Edwards wondered, counting on his fingers the nearby restaurants in the area, one of them across the street from the scene of the encounter.

"And how could he have had his pocket picked when he gave me his identification and I put it back in his pocket."

EDWARDS SAID he met the two men at the corner of 16th and K Sts., NW and took them by cab to the Anchor Apartments at 16th and T Sts., NW where he abandoned them in the lobby.

"How could the mayor have been looking for a restaurant in an apartment building?" Edward said, pursuing the point. "That's very stupid."

EDWARDS STATED he was walking east down K St., near 16th when he "saw a fellow walking along. I asked him if he wanted any girls. "I told him I was a bellboy and I could get them."

The man declined. Mayor Smitherman and Pilcher were passing by during this conversation. Edwards stated, and one of them said, "Hey, boy."

"I took off my hat." Edwards said he asked the two men, "What do I know you're not cops?"

He quoted Pilcher as saying, "Do you know the mayor of Selma, Ala."

Edwards smiled. "I played dumb, I said, 'No, but I've heard of Selma, N. C.'

"They looked at each other and laughed."

IN THE lobby of the T Street apartment building, Edwards required the two men to "check" their money in an envelope which he provided and show identification. He took the envelope, switched it for another containing only paper and appeared to return the original envelope.

While the men waited for him, Edwards left, allegedly to make a contact, but instead he went out a back door.

Edwards said he knows nobody who lives at the apartment building which is one of several with convenient exits which con men use in the area.

EDWARDS TALKED with relish about the incident. On the way to the apartment building, he met another confidence man, he said, who indicated his willingness to join the action.

He refused help.

"I had two good fishes," he said. "If you meet a strong man, then you might need somebody but these were suckers. I didn't need to house 'em off," Edwards said, explaining that a second con man plays a role as an indignant "house man" in some versions of the Murphy game.

EDWARDS SAYS he has been in the "game" since he was 13 years old.

"One time I was in jail every two weeks until I learned not to mess with soldiers, sailors, marines and no young guys. You have to pick the ones who have something to lose and can't afford to complain.

"The only people you can con are those who are looking for something. Like, you can't get a preacher."

On reflection, Edwards corrected himself, "Oh yeah once I got a bishop . . ."

ALTHOUGH THEY yelled "foul" when police discovered what happened, neither the mayor or Pilcher reported the incident to police. Det. Glen A. Hilton arrested Edwards after the confidence man told some acquaintances and someone informed the police.

The charge of larceny by trick was nolle pressed in court by the Government. A spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's Office said the case may be reopened.

Edwards laughed.

"They wouldn't dare,"

Gov. Tawes signs liquor license bill

Ignoring pleas to veto a new less-restricted seven - day liquor license from civic, religious, and civil rights organizations from all over the city, Gov. Tawes signed into law Tuesday House Bill No. 740.

The Bill, which was classified as an "emergency," will permit a restaurant and amusement license holders to obtain the new license at a fee of $1,200.

Provisions under the new law eliminates a former restriction which require licensees to do at least 51 per cent of thier business in food, in a restaurant, or have three nights of live entertainment a week if a place of amusement.

Gov. Tawes said the law would be immediately effective.

LAST WEEK Dr. Homer E. Favor, among those protesting the measure stated:

"The likely effect of this bill will be that seven - day licenses will be easier to acquire and in areas where there is little organized sophistication concerning such matters, seven - day operations will be proliferated."

A Morgan State College professor and director of Morgan's Urban Studies Institute, Dr. Favor stated he felt the areas which will be adversely effected by the new license would be in Human Renewal and Urban Renewal areas.

Frontiers to host regional

"Our responsibilities to the great society" will be the theme of the 12th annual Eastern Regional Conference of Frontiers International, to be held at the Sheraton-Belvedere Hotel in Baltimore on April 9-11.

The luncheon speaker on Saturday, April 10, 12:30 p.m. will be Marcus Neustadter of New Orleans, International president of the Frontiers.

Representatives of many Baltimore Service clubs will attend the luncheon as well as officials of State and City government.

The banquet on Saturday evening at 6:30 p.m. will have as guest speaker Jay N. Goldman, operations manager of WBAL-TV, who will speak on "Communications in Civil Rights."

KING TWINS, Gail and Garland, children of Mr. and Mrs. William King, celebrated their fourth birthday, Tuesday.

Unitarian series

Newspaper workshop planned for teachers

A "Newspaper in the Classroom" Workshop will be held at Towson State College, July 26—August 5. Co-sponsors of the College are the Maryland State Department of Education, the Maryland-Delaware Press Association and member newspapers including the AFRO-AMERICAN.

The workshop will be designed primarily to provide public school teachers with background information about newspapers, so that they may better encourage pupils to become informed through the mass media and develop intelligent opinions on current affairs.

PARTICIPANTS will have a chance to:

(1) Attend lectures and discuss problems with outstanding practitioners on the use of the newspaper as a teaching aid.

(2) Visit sources of news such as local, state and national government offices.

(3) Take part in discussion groups where they will have opportunity to determine the best ways of using the knowledge they acquire.

THE WORKSHOP will be restricted to 100 students; preference will be given to teachers in Maryland and Delaware.

Prerequisite will be a college degree or the equivalent, or consent of the director.

Participants may receive three hours graduate or undergraduate credit.

Director of the workshop will be Vernon Wanty, assistant professor of English and journalism at Towson. Formerly a weekly newspaper editor, before coming to Towson, Mr. Wanty taught journalism at Michigan State University and Westminster College, Pa.

Cost of the workshop will be $15 per credit hour, plus $5 registration fee. Board Registration fee. Board and room will be available at $5 per day. Registration may be made by mail or in person with the Director of the "Newspaper in the Towson State College. Classroom" workshop at Towson State College.

Pamphlet tells federal hospital bias policies

The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights this week distributing a publication explaining federal anti-discrimination policies affecting health services.

The 11-page pamphlet is entitled "Equal Opportunity in Hospitals and Health Facilities: Civil Rights Policies Under the Hill-Burton Program."

The publication details the history and objectives of the Hill-Burton Hospital Survey and Construction Act, and defines the rights and responsibilities of individuals and institutions under current civil rights regulations.

THE DEPARTMENT of Health, Education and Welfare has developed regulations under Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act which bar federal financial assistance to facilities that discriminate in admission policies, access to facilities and professional staff privileges.

As of February 28, 1965 the Department of HEW had approved a total of 7,544 projects under the Hill-Burton Act. The total Federal share allocated for these projects came to $2,324,753,000.

First candidate loses in runoff

WAYCROSS, Ga. — The first person of color ever to run for public office in this town was defeated by almost a two-to-one margin in a runoff election Monday for a post of the city commission.

Lee F. Fluker received only 1,236 votes to 2,341 votes for his white opponent, Walter Vollenweider, an insurance agent. Vollewelder, 30, will serve out the unexpired term of Tom Gattis, who resigned recently "to take the post of city clerk.

High Court drops tradition of handing down once a week

(UPI) — Chief Justice Earl Warren announced that starting April 26 the Supreme Court will hand down decisions on any day it is in session instead of waiting for the long, traditional Monday session.

In the past — except in unusual circumstances — the court had not released the week's opinions and orders until "decision" Monday.
