KEY PARTICIPANTS ABSENT

Matthew Henson School dedicated

The Matthew A. Henson Elementary School was dedicated last night (Thursday) in impressive ceremonies, but two of the key program participants were absent.

City Council President Thomas D'Alesandro substituted for Mayor McKeldin and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Moss, school board member spelled Eli Frank, president of the board.

By an odd coincidence both absent officials had encountered a hectic afternoon which ended shortly before the 8 p.m. dedication.

Mayor McKeldin presided over a stormy public hearing on amendments to the Minimum Wage Law and Mr. Frank presided over the school board meeting hit by a CORE-sponsored sit-in combined with a sleep-in which was still in progress when the dedication ended.

Edwin Stein, acting school superintendent, told the dedication assembly that "there are many problems in trying to cope with overcrowding. We need 83 new schools to take care of students."

THE SUPERINTENDENT added that every year the board asks for new schools. "We are looking for federal and state help," he said, "and it is forthcoming."

In order to modernize and replace old facilities, Mr. Stein said, required $20 to $25 million per year.

Mrs. Moss recalled the problem created by overcrowding in the neighborhood. "Children were going part time to School 142. Some went through the sixth grade without getting a full-time education because of overcrowding.

"Some said people in this area would be reluctant to vacate their homes for a new school. But they did, we found the site and this school was erected in record time."

With obvious reference to the school board meeting demonstration, where CORE is demanding a new Dunbar High School, Mrs. Moss declared:

"We hope it won't be too long before we get a neww Dunbar and many other new schools in the inner city."

Mr. D'Alesandro declared "we are living in a new era, one of transition and pain. It is incumbent upon all of us to see that our children get an education."

The school named in honor of the co-discoverer of Artic is located at Payson and Baker Sts.

DR. HERBERT M. FRISBY, sponsor of Henson Memorial projects presented the school a reproduction of the April 6, 1909 North Pole Discovery.

Other programs participants: — nine-year-Van Story Branch, who drew resounding applause for this thank - you remarks; Miss Mary Adams, Mrs. Elaine B. Nolan, vice assistant superintendent; principal; and Mrs. Mildred Pierson, principal.

Music was by the school choral group, directed by Mrs choral group, directed by Mrs. Nancy Goetze.

There was also an original tribute to Matt Henson, well done by the Verse Choir.

Also featured: a clarinet trio composed of Walter Royal, Larry Lambson and Nesbit Thompson.

Located at Payson and Baker Sts., the school was opened a year ago.

Vice principal named at Henson Elementary

The Baltimore Board of School Commissioners on Thursday appointed Mrs. Audrey Davis, now an elementary specialist, as vice-principal of the Matthew A. Henson Elementary School.

In other personnel changes the board named Frederick Kelly as teacher-in-charge of Highwood Cay Camp School and Mrs. Helen G. Lentz as principal of the Summer Enrichment Center to be held at Western High School.

In addition, these four persons were appointed to act as principals of the following review-summer schools:

Moses Appel, Baltimore City College; Joel Carrington, Douglass Senior High; James P. Curtis, Lemmel Junior High, and S. Wilson Heaps Jr., Baltimore Polytechni Institute.

At Eastern High School, Robert F. Williams will serve as principal of the summer adult evening center. Herman Epstein and John R Swift will act as vice-principals of the same center.

THE BOARD granted tenure to these 18 new teachers:

William Snyder III, Harold Henderson, Rodney R. Hardesty, Thomas R. Doyle, Chris D. Dyer, Robert Brown Jr., Pinkney A. Howell.

And Mesdames Pearl C. Boone, Janie L. Brown, Peggy Brown, Andena S. Dixon, Vera F. Green, Ruth H. Williams, Elizabeth Bankert, Alice N. Mayhew, Lynn B. McIntyre, Royse F. Mosley and Jerusalem Gargiuve.

Approval was given for leaves of absence for study, travel or personal business to these education personnel:

Mesdames Nanna M. Button, Leah G. Hasty, Charlotte C. Hott, Gwendolyn Howard, Lilly B. Warren, Doris Waters, Olga Fa'ver, Hazel H. Fleming, Sarah S. Glass, Minnie Heatherton, Rosa K. Silverman, Lillian F. Simmonds.

Pearl Van Wirkle, Mary O. Adams, Eleanor Valentine, Catherine Greene, Lois D. Lockard, Paige P. Nixon, Irene Rosen, Mary E. Shank, Florence M. Otel and Marginal S. Brinkley.

Also Walter N. Gantt, Paul M. Johnson, John B. Calder, Albert Silverman, Joseph D. Dorsey, Rosaid M. Gregory, Harry C. Hendrickson, Chester Kiser and Bernard H. Frese.

Resignations were accepted from Mesdames Dorothy Cooper M. King, Gloria M. Lewis, Patricia Louterbach, Roberta J. Smith and Eleanor Sokolove.

Four teachers were given leaves for injuries suffered in accidents in connection with their duties.

Dr. Humphrey to speak at health event

Dr. Melvin Humphrey, newly named executive director of the Baltimore Community Action Agency, will be the keynote speaker at a neighborhood workshop on Saturday, May. 1

The workshop, second in a series to be sponsored by the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, will be held at McCulloh Homes, 1010 McCulloh St. from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Theme of the day-long work and discussion session is "New Horizons in Health —the Role of the Citizen." The program will include sections on maternal and infant care, child care and mental health.

Attendance at the workshop is limited. Advance reservations for the workshop and box-luncheon will be honored on a first-come-first-served basis.

For information and reservations, call Mrs. Naomi Evans, at the Maryland Tuberculosis Association 685-6484.

BREAKTHROUGH FOR BLIND came Tuesday night when AFL-CIO officials agreed to seek representation for employees of the Maryland Workshop for the Blind with the workshop management. The drive to provide workers with a forum for grievances was sparked by six broom shop employees, who were threatened last April with the loss of their jobs by a decision to move the broom operation to Cumberland. Shown here is Chester Harrington, one of the broom workers, who after a year of waiting reports he is "still not sure whether I'll lose my job."

DPW pleased with new legislation

The State Welfare Department's program will be measurably enhanced by actions of the General Assembly, according to Ralieh C. Hobson, director of the department.

One of the most important steps taken by the legislature was the provision in the budget to increase the rate paid nursing homes for care of welfare recipients from $135 to $210 a month.

The legislature also enacted a provision, proposed by Gov. Tawes which will change the Victor Cullen Hospital to a training school for delinquent boys which will eliminate overcrowding at the Maryland Training School for Boys and Boys' Village.

THE NEW budget further provides funds, State and Federal, to finance an experimental project in psychological counselling services to young unwed mothers in the Baltimore area.

The General Assembly also authorized the establishment of a central registry of absent parents to assist in the location of fathers who have deserted their families.

Also approved were 19 new positions for the State Welfare office.

The legislature also provided for the building of a new cottage at the Montrose School for Girls, and planning money for doubling the size of the Maryland Children's Center.

Minister's wife among 8 on U.S. Grand Jury

A minister's wife, an electronic technician and a housing engineer are among eight colored persons serving on the March term of the Federal Court Grand Jury. Their terms expire next month.

They are: Mrs. Bernice E. Meade, wife of the Rev. Edmond Meade, pastor, Israel Baptist; Alonzo W. McBride; 824 N. Bentalou, who runs his own radio-television service; and Avon B. Collins, National Capital Housing Authority engineer of 6120 Rich Ave.

Others are:

Forrester C. Ferrell, 921 Poplar Grove St., a Social Security Administration clerk.

Haywood J. Musgrove, 1709 Bond St., stationary engineer.

Nathaniel R. Brooks, 3527 Denison Rd., a lithographic draftsman.

Ira T. Williams, 809 Bobby Rd., a shipping checker.

Mearland H. Brown, 2906 Aichentorely Ter., a Bethlehem Steel Company engineer.

Maternity center dedicated here

The Baltimore City Health Department dedicated its new Maternity and Infant Center Tuesday at the 211 W. Lombard St. location. Principal speaker was Dr. Arthur Lesser, deputy chief of the U.S. Children's Bureau.

Among others on program were the Rev. C. R. Coleman, pastor of Pennsylvania Ave. AME Zion Church; Dr. Gilbert Banfield, president of the Monumental Medical Society, and Mrs. Gwendolyn Lee, president of the Maryland League of Women's Clubs.

The center is made possible through a five-year grant from the Children's Bureau in an effort to reduce the city's high infant death rate and the incidence of handicapping conditions in the newborn.

If there is no family physician mothers-to-be may register at the Baltimore Maternity Center from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., Monday through Friday. The Center has been in operation since Feb. 23.

Tax information

On Monday, April 12, Tuesday, April 13 and Wednesday, April 14, telephone tax information will be furnished from 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m., according to Irving Machiz, district director of Internal Revenue for Maryland and District of Columbia.

To avail yourself of the telephone service in Baltimore, call 637-1040. In Washington, the number is REpublic 7-9750. Ask for Tax Information Service.

—Blind workers

assistant AFL-CIO director for Region 4, and P. J. Ciampa, international representative of the union's American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

It was announced that the AFL-CIO, along with the Interdenominational Ministers Alliance, would form a Joint Committee on Aid to the Blind to help the workers gain representation with management.

The workers' plight was summed up nearly a year ago to the AFRO by an employee of the broom shop who noted that "even sightless workers have unions."

PRESIDING over the meeting was Rev. Thomas P. Fraser III, who has been leading the alliance's investigation of the problem and who was picked as chairman of the joint committee.

According to Rev. Fraser, there are two alternative ways in which the AFL-CIO will seek to represent the workers.

Either it will fully unionize the workshop or will represent the workers without formal recognition, in which case the employees will not have to pay dues.

Rev. Fraser said that the action by AFL-CIO has "broadened, strengthened, deepened and intensified" the movement by the workers.

Later in the meeting the employees elected George Cooper, a worker in the broom shop, to represent their case before the union and management.

Conditions in the workshop first came to light in April a year ago when six workers in the broom shop complained that they would lose their jobs when the broom operation was moved to Cumberland.

The board of directors of the workshop, which decided on the move, has never explained that decision, nor retracted it, although the operation still remains in Baltimore.

"A year is long time to wait," one of the workers, Chester Harrington, told the AFRO. "We've been unsure of our jobs since last April and it has been a nightmare.

"We've been trying to meet with the board of directors of the blind shop since April, when we learned we would lose our jobs, but they haven't agreed to see us in all that time."

Rev. Fraser has twice tried to set up a meeting between the broom workers and the board and has twice been turned down.

On one occasion, John H. Mudd, chairman of the board, called such a meeting "pointless."

THE WORKERS report that if the broom shop is taken from them, they will not be assured of steady work.

An example of the insecure job status at the workshop is James Vincent, who worked in the broom shop for 12 years without missing a day and then was switched to another type of work.

Mr. Vincent, who would like to be returned to steady work in the broom shop, told the AFRO that "the last work they had for me was at Christmas, and then I made only $19 for 40 hours work."

In the past year, the workshop has been the subject of two investigations by federal agencies and the workers have been promised support by many public officials, including Mayor McKeldin, Senator Welcome and Senator Tydings.

The Maryland Workshop for the Blind is a semi-private organization which received $150,000 in state funds last year.
