—Mother, son shot

next to where Mrs. Brewer lived, 1038 Argyle Ave., in the Murphy Housing projects, was Mrs. Mary Hanna, 34, 1036 Argyle Ave., who has been charged with both shootings.

"I ignored her because ever since last summer she's been acting kind of strange," Mrs. Brewer said.

"I told the police about it and they told me to get a warrant . . .

"But I wouldn't do it. She's sick and needs help. If I were sick I would want someone to help me too."

Mrs. Brewer stated she had also talked to the project authorities about her neighbor and was instructed to ignore her.

"So I ignored her and started to go in the house when she suddenly came after me. I saw a gun in her hand and started running away from her," she said.

The mother said she saw Charles standing in the door of her home and yelled for him to get back inside.

"I SAW IT all, but you won't use my name will you?" a witness told the AFRO.

"It sounded just like a cap pistol. She was running behind that woman just pulling the trigger. Then I saw the boy run out of his house.

"He kept yelling, 'leave my mother alone, leave my mother alone. Don't kill my mother!'

"Then all of a sudden the woman with the gun turned and shot at the boy. My God, I know I heard at least three shots."

Charles fell to the ground. His hat came off and he started to crawl toward a nearby house.

"He crawled right up to the door and started gasping for breath. His face began to swell up and his neck too," the witness continued.

PATROLMAN Fred Lutharcit who was the first officer on the scene, told the AFRO:

"When I got there he was lying on the floor. I helped him outside and could see the hole in his neck where he had been shot.

"He was frantic and kept gasping for breath so I told him to start breathing from his nose."

The witness said she got a towel and wrapped it around his throat in an flort to stop the bleeding.

"His mother knelt down beside him. She had been shot too, in the upper part of her hip," she said.

"I wasn't concerned about myself. I just kept praying that God would keep me by alive," Mrs. Brewer stated.

Both mother and son were taken by ambulance to Provident Hospital and admitted.

Thursday, the boy's condition was still listed as fair.

THE ACCUSED woman is mother of seven children.

"I don't know what made her like that. I used to like her, then one day she just changed. But whatever made her do what she did God knows and He will help her," Mrs. Brewer declared.

by members of the Steamship Trade Association of Baltimore nor are there any walking under contract to the association.

The criticisms were attacked Wednesday by John Condon, chairman of the Civil Rights Committee of ILA, who accused Mr. Brailey of being interested in "creating unrest along the waterfront."

Mr. Brailey, answering Mr. Condon's remarks, said:

"These complaints were brought to us by rank-and-file members of ILA locals. We would have known nothing about this if they had not complained to us.

"Evidently they have nowhere to turn within the union with any hopes for settlement of their complaints."

Dock workers were shocked by the attempt to use Haile's election to international vice president as an example of port integration, pointing out that white locals here voted against him while colored units, which outnumber the whites, went down the line for Haile to put him in.

DESPITE DENIALS of discrimination, offered by other ILA officials, the instances of separate locals in the port of Baltimore were brought to light by the AFRO during the recent strike of dockers early this year.

It was during this labor strife that John Bowers, executive vice president of ILA, came to Baltimore on orders from the international president, Thomas Gleason.

Following the dockers vote against acceptance of a contract that would have ended the strike, it became apparent that the local port had a racial problem as well as one of labor - management.

At that time the AFRO learned that plans were discussed by ILA officials considering moves to completely integrate the Baltimore locals by transferring members from one local to the other.

Despite this indication of a realization of racial problems here, Mr. Condon this week minimized the situation by shifting blame for the charges to Mr. Brailey.

JOHN KOWALESKI, business agent for Local 1355, denied discrimination exits in his local by saying that no colored workers have ever applied for membership.

Marty Kruger and other officials of Local 953, accused of refusing to admit colored workers to membership, had no comment.

Meanwhile, the Steamship Trade Association and representatives of the ILA are attending hearings before the Regional National Labor Relations Boards in answer to complaints filed by the Association against the union.

THE SON of a door fitter on a Ford Motor Company assembly line, Lawrence is a strong civil rights supporter. He has been president of the 500 - member Manhattan NAACP Youth Council for the past two years.

In an interview in Senator Javits' office Tuesday, Lawrence said his group's last project was a sympathy demonstration in support of Dr. Martin Luther King's Alabama march.

An aide to Senator Javits joked Lawrence about his civil rights activities. "You can't demonstrate here," he gently ribbed the youth. "Senate rules don't allow it."

Lawrence said he was "excited about his appointment and felt that it provided him a great opportunity to gain 'first hand' knowledge in fulfilling his educational and political aspirations.

He wants to major in political science at Columbia University and then move into politics. "I would like to become mayor of New York City," he said.

SUPREME COURT sources recall that four Capitol pages have been assigned there in the past ten years. Presently, Supreme Court pages include Ernest J. Wilson II, of 214 Rittenhouse St., NW and Frazer Walton Jr., of 1913 D St., NE.

Wilson was appointed in February, 1963 and Walton in September, 1964.

Supreme Court pages attend the same school as House and Senate pages but are required to lodge with parents, relatives or guardians in the District. As a result, the majority of Supreme Court appointments are local.

While patronage is the major factor in appointments to the House and Senate, merit is the only consideration when pages are selected for service at the Supreme Court. Recommendations are usually made by schools and candidates are selected based on their school records and extra curricular activities. Their appointments are approved by the Chief Justice.

Wife wins divorce in two-year fight

Two years of litigation, some of which set court precedents, ended in a divorce this week for Mrs. Catherine D. Newsome, 2227 Koko Lane, from her husband, Willie L. Newsome, tavern keeper.

Mrs. Newsome, who filed a suit for divorce in 1963, charged her husband with cruelty and desertion. She later filed a supplemental bill adding the charge of adultery.

THE LATTER ACTION grew out of a charge that the husband was father of a child born to one Miss Betty Massenbury.

In an effort to substantiate the charges, attorney for Mrs. Newsome had Miss Massenbury summoned to court, and when she failed to appear she was ordered to show cause why she should not be cited for contempt.

When she did appear, she refused to answer questions put to her on the grounds that answers to the question might tend to incriminate, degrade and humiliate her.

HER ATTORNEY contended that the Declaration of rights of Maryland states "that no man ought to be compelled to give evidence against himself in a criminal case, and that if the witness was required to answer the questions put to her she could be charged with the crime of adultery.

It was then argued that adultery is defined as criminal intimacy with a married woman, and that since the person in question was not married, testimony could not incriminate her.

ALVIN SOLOMON, attorney for Mrs. Newsome, argued that privilege may not be invoked to protect a witness from all possible detriments which may result from disclosure, but only to protect against a disclosure that may lead to criminal prosecution and punishment.

Thus, said he, where the answer will not subject the witness to punishment for crime he cannot invoke the privilege and refuse to answer, although disclosure may subject him to a civil disability, may embarrass him or disgrace or degrade him.

The attorney argued that therefore the witness could not refuse to answer a relevant question from mere caprice or sentiment, or because disclosure is personally distasteful.

THEREUPON, Frank V. Segliński, attorney for Miss Massenbury, pleaded that the court refused to compel her to answer the questions, adding that if she did, she might be charged with operating a disorderly house, prostitution or having been delivered of a bastard child.

Said he, "The rights intended to be provided by the Constitutional provision that no person shall be compelled to give evidence which will tend to incriminate him is so sacred and the pressure toward its relaxation so great when the suspicion of guilt is strong and the evidence weak and obscured, that it is the duty of the courts liberally to construe the prohibition in favor of personal rights, and to refuse to permit any steps tending toward their invasion.

THE COURT ruled that Miss Massenbury should not be compelled to answer questions propounded to her.

Attorney for Mrs. Newsome than entered as an exhibit a photostatic copy of a birth certificate which gave the young woman as mother and Mr. Newsome as father of a baby girl born at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

MRS. NEWSOME was granted a divorce, and their 13 - year - old son given into her custody. Mr. Newsome is to provide $15 per week for the boy until he is self - supporting or reaches maturity. He is also to provide medical dental, and hospital costs when needed.

Mrs. Newsome received the family home on Koko Lane, and he the Prentiss Place property where his business is located. She received ownership of a Chevrolet automobile and he retained a Cadillac car.

She became owner of all the furnishings of the home with the exception of living room furniture, a TV set, a kitchen stove and a breakfast set.
