Bridge House needs help

By WILBUR L. PINDER JR.

There is a "house by the side of the road" in the 1500 block Madison Ave., where men with a common problem — alcoholism — find the strength and the courage to face the future.

Symbolically the Bridge House, 1516 Madison Ave., gives to those with a sincere desire for a sober life a chance to cross over the bottomless pit of self destruction.

"The Bridge House is not an old folks home. Its purpose is simply to help men get a new start on the right road," says Roland Henson, president of the Bridge House Auxiliary Board.

He explained that once a man learns how to combat the alcohol problem, finds and keeps a job, he is ready to leave the house and go back into the world, as a new man.

• • •

THE "GOLDEN RULE" at Bridge House is "Stay Sober." To violate it means expulsion.

"Since coming here in January I have been able to find a new life," said a resident who had not known continuous sobriety for more than 30 years.

"Before I came here I had known nothing but institutions, jails, prisons and sanitariums," he stated.

Each resident must pay his own way. To live in this home is not free. The man who stays pays rent according to his means.

Bridge House officially opened Dec. 14, when Mayor McKeldin signed City Council Ordinance No. 1084.

"The signing of this ordinance was a major turning point which climaxed a two-year struggle. It provides us, on a temporary, loan basis, a City Urban Renewal house," Mr. Henson said.

Mr. Henson declared that the men primarily responsible for helping them to get the Bridge House was Mayor McKeldin, City Comptroller Hyman Pressman, Fourth District Councilmen Walter T. Dixon and Maurice Soypher.

THE IDEA for a Bridge House was conceived by Mrs. Juliette Nickens and several others concerned about the fact that colored persons with an alcoholic problem had no place to turn for help.

Mrs. Nickens contacted Mr. Henson and the Auxiliary was formed.

Members of the Board now include: Robert Allen, George W. Conway, Willie M. Jainer, Jessie Hollingswith, Mrs. Edna DeCoursey Johnson, Parren J. Mitchell, and the Rev. Robert Newbold.

Mrs. Gertrude Nilsson, Mrs. Anne F. Reed, Mrs. Isabel Shuman, Lee Stokes, the Rev. Frank L. Williams, the Rev. Marion C. Bascom, Joseph Delliger, Mrs. Margaret Gillespie and Walter Holbrook Jr.

Alfred "Jefferson, Del. Clarence M. Mitchell, the Rev. Harry E. Shelley, Mrs. Shelley Murphy, the Rev. Father Thomas E. O'Connor, Mrs. Queen Ester Waters, Dr. Furman L. Templeton and Dr. H. Maceo Williams.

"BRIDGE HOUSE needs the support of every citizen interested in the welfare of his fellow man," Mr. Henson pointed out.

"We have a house, now we need help to make it work."

$1,500 cash exchanged for play money

A 60 - year - old woman was film flamed Monday by two well - dressed men who tricked her out of $1,500.

The victim, Mrs. Jannie Patterson, of the 1300 block Myrtle Ave., told police she met the men last Saturday in the Lexington Market Garage.

One of them claimed he had just found a pocket book containing a large amount of money and two diamond rings, she told police.

Mrs. Patterson said they told her they would share the money if she could produce a bank book as a sign of good faith.

She gave the men her bank book and was told that she was to return home and they would meet her at the market Monday, Mrs. Patterson said.

Mrs. Patterson went to the Lexington Garage on Monday, met the two men, went to the bank and withdrew her money.

SHE SAID she gave the money to one of the men who gave her a white envelope in exchange and instructed her not to open it for at least two days.

When she got home, Mrs. Patterson stated she became curious and opened the envelope and found it filled with thousands of dollars in play money.

Methodists in historic assignment

At the conclusion of the 26th session of the Peninsula Annual Conference of the Methodist Church, which has been in session since last Thursday at the Grace Methodist Church, Wilmington, Bishop John Wesley Lord appointed nearly 300 pastors to pulpits in a newly - integrated conference.

Highlight of the four - day meeting was the actual merger of 84,000 white Methodists and 15,000 colored Methodists into one organic conference, the first major step toward the total elimination of segregation within the Meinodist denomination.

(A similar merger in June will unite 205,000 white and 45,000 colored Methodists in the Baltimore Annual Conference, which will meet at Washington, June 16-20.)

The Kitten-Eye, Bikini and the Peking—that's what women want

By STERLING A. PAIGE

Bikini, Sabrina, Butterfly, Cat-eye, Jo Ann, Tear-drop, Kitten-eye, Peking — these are not the names of movie productions or adventurous books.

They are only a few of the names given to types of frames the ladies buy for their eye glasses.

As is usually the case, names are chosen to catch the ear and sentiments of the feminine sex who seem to be greatly influenced by frame styles and odd - sounding names.

"The better to see you with, my dear" has now become "the prettier to look through at you, my dear" when it comes down to glasses worn by modern women.

• • •

THE NEW saying is kind of foxy, too, when you find that the wile of women and glamour of optical - styling woos attention away from weak eyes.

The delicate dears tell me that glasses must be decorative and kind of seductive — as well as functional.

In the words of one I talked to, "If I must wear glasses they must do something for me."

It is because of this glamour - consciousness that opticians carry a wide stock of fames in a variety of styles that are suitable to most any personity, complexion, hair hue or facial contour.

AT ONE optician's a doctor remarked: "You see, only the lenses are actually for the eyes; the frames are for the individual's ego, morale and personality. Men are not usually too concerned about

$774,500 given 17 counties, city for 'Head Start' project

Rep. Clarence D. Long (D., Md.) announced Wednesday that 17 Maryland counties have been awarded $672,000 in Federal funds to provide eight weeks of pre - school training this summer for children of the poor.

The Federal grants of anti - poverty funds are to be matched by $101,254 from State, local and private funds.

The pre - school programs called "Head - Start," seeks to give children from poor families an opportunity to overcome lack of early education and thus prepare them for first grade classes this fall.

Head - Start is a nation-wide program which is to enroll more than half a million children in ten thousand Child Development Centers.

Teachers, doctors and dentists to be employed by the centers will be assisted by a paid staff of poor people from the local community and by unpaid volunteers from within and without the community.

• • •

IN BALTIMORE County, Rep. Long said, Federal funds will pay $74,364 of a $92,164 program sponsored by the Board of Education. Twenty centers, staffed by 47 professional employees, 46 paid residents and 46 volunteers, will serve 608 children.

A similar $5,120 project sponsored by Park School will get $3,192 in Federal funds for a single center, staffed by 3 professionals, 3 paid residents and 17 volunteers, to serve 18 children.

In Carroll County, Rep. Long said, anti - poverty funds will pay $30,281 toward a $34,360 project of the Board of Education to establish ten centers, staffed by 22 professionals and 42 volunteers, to serve 183 children.

In Harford County, the Federal share of a $15,712 program sponsored by the Board of Education is $13,792. Four centers, staffed by 17 professionals, 4 paid residents and twenty volunteers, will serve 320 children, Rep. Long said.

Projects planned by other county boards of education in Maryland are:

Teen-ager faces life or death in murder case

A 15-year-old boy convicted last Thursday of first degree murder now faces either death or life imprisonment.

The youth Preston Hargis, of the 700 block Mt. Holly St., was convicted of beating to death George Beckman, 22, 700 block Edgewood St., during a robbery Sept. 28, 1964.

Prosecutor Bernard Silbert, who pressed for capital punishment, termed the murder "brutal and senseless" in his closing argument before Judge Myer M. Cardin.

Hargis during his testimony blamed the man's death on James Grayson, 17, of the 700 block Linnard St., who is awaiting his third trial.

Councilman Schaefer gets 'Statesman award

William Donald Schaefer, veteran City Councilman from the Fifth District, was honored Wednesday night as "The Civic Statesman of the Year."

Mr. Schaefer, former vice president of the council and current chairman of the Judiciary Committee, was feted at the annual dinner meeting of the Citizens Planning and Housing Association at the Church of the Redeemer.

In presenting the lawmaker with the organization's first Annual Civic Statesmanship Award CPHA president Harrison M. Robertson Jr. called him an "Uncommon man" who practices the political principle of "For the good of all the people."

Mr. Schaefer, often called the "workhorse of the council," is credited with spearheading passage of "meaningful legislation" for the benefit of all of the city's people.

Among those CPHA cited were laws covering civil rights, expressways, education, health and the current effort to get an open occupancy law in the books.

• • •

THE COUNCILMAN responded that he "was filled to the brim" and had never "felt so inadequate before."

James E. Lash executive vice president of the American Council To Improve Our Neighborhoods, was guest speaker.

Speaking on "Cities—Dead or Alive," he concluded that Baltimore is alive and urged his listeners to double their efforts to improve housing conditions by working to rehabilitate neighborhoods and eradicate slums.

Mr. Robertson was unanimously elected to a third successive term and 12 new members were added to the board by unanimous vote.

Other officers are:

Hans Froelicher Jr. honorary president; Solomon Baylor, Harry J. Casey Jr., David H. Fulton Jr., John S. Grimes, the Rev. William J. Lee, S. S. Russell R. Reno, Jr., and Charles L. Wangandt, vice presidents.

Also Jacques T. Schlenger counsel; Walter H. Kidd, treasurer, and Mrs. Frances Froelicher, secretary.

CHURCH REFUSES TO MARRY COUPLE

Ministers urge a new Dunbar

The Baptist Ministers' Conference of Baltimore this week sent telegrams to members of the School Board urging them to "view with favor the proposal for a new and adequately facilitated Dunbar High School."

First copies of the telegram, stating sympathies with CORE and Student CORE in their demands for a new inner city high school, went to board member Mrs. Elizabeth Murphy Moss and Chairman Eli Frank Jr.

"Signed by Conference president the Rev. George A. Crawley Jr., and Dr. Logan Kearse, chairman of the civic committee, the ministers stated:

"Thousands of students who are members of our churches and all of the citizens are adversely affected in their quest for preparation for higher education and for life by having to attend an inadequate educational facility.

"In a new and properly staffed building, it appears to us that functional, meaningful and practical curriculum could be executed to the benefit of the students, and therefore, to the city of Baltimore, to our state and our nation."

• • •

IN ANOTHER telegram written in his capacity as pastor of St. Paul Baptist Church, the Rev. Mr. Crawley asked that his church, "which is situated in relatively close proximity to Dunbar High School, sincerely believes it to be absolutely necessary and expedient that favorable consideration be given to the construction of new Dunbar immediately."

He noted that his church members have seen the "tremendous interest" students who were not exposed to facilities and curricula which stimulated them.

"Your favorable action upon the proposal in point would circumvent a repetition of this educational disaster."

In an additional communication, Dr. Kearse, pastor of

Wedding

WASHINGTON

A Polish delicatessen owner whose church refused to marry him and his colored fiancee announced plans Thursday to fight the church's action.

Daniel F. Gogolski, proprietor of the Midnight delicatessen at 470 Georgia Ave., NW called the incident "shocking for a city like Washington."

"I can't figure it out," said the 23 - year - old native of a small Pennsylvania town.

"I DON'T know what the h— is the matter with this country," Gogolski lamented as he reflected upon the action of a priest at St. Francis Polish National Catholic Church in refusing to perform the wedding on June 12.

Gogolski's 20 - year - old sweetheart, Gloria Shelton of Bristersberg, Va. expressed similar indignation.

"I feel very badly about it," she kept saying, "very badly."

Gogolski said he will enlist the aid of churches and civil rights organizations in correcting the situation.

Meanwhile, he explained, the wedding will be performed June 12 as scheduled at Peoples Congregational Church, 13th and Crittenden Sts., NW.

Father Thomas J. Gnat, the priest accused of refusing to perform the ceremony, has vigorously denied the allegation.

"The reason was not racial," Father Gnat said, as he noted that his church had taken no stand either for or against inter-racial marriages, and therefore he saw no "theological or spiritual reason" why persons of dif-

Hearing

Race - hate expressions, tempers flaring in sharp exchanges and general rowdyism marked the third and final public hearing Wednesday evening on two open housing ordinances by the City Council's Judiciary Committee.

And, as in a previous hearing for opponents of the measures, vilified attacks were leveled at Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin, sponsor of one of the ordinances, and Lawrence Cardinal Shehan, who is urging all Catholics to support fair housing legislation.

William D. Shaefer (4th), committee chairman, said afterwards deliberations will begin immediately to attempt to get action before the Council's June 14 summer recess.

The big question at the moment, he said, is the matter of favorable votes. He could count no more than eight, with any certainty, of the 11 needed to get the ordinance through the Council.

Already, there is Council talk of raising the number of unit exemptions from the three-apartment owner occupied homes set in the mayors ordinance, the No. 1063 that is being pressed.

The other, Ordinance No. 1 introduced by Walter T. Dixon (4th), would exempt dwellings up to five-family units.

• • •

PROPONENTS AND opponents gathered for the hearing Wednesday, and matters progressed more or less smoothly until the speakers opposing fair housing took the floor.

In the midst of this, Mrs. Juanita Jackson Mitchell, president, Maryland NAACP branches, and a group of the housing law supporters staged a walkout.

This followed a sharp exchange between Mrs. Mitchell and Mr. Schaefer, as she protested the manner in which he allowed the hearing

Deception exposed

By MAX JOHNSON

AFRO Political Analyst

Subterfuge and downright misrepresentation are being used to get voters' signatures in that Garmatz petition campaign to force Maryland's new congressional redistricting law to referendum.

It has come to the AFRO's attention this deception is being practiced by persons circulating these petitions in colored areas seeking signatures.
