A NATIVE of Orangeburg, S. C., Mrs. Higgins was the daughter of Lawrence and Cornelia Garvins.

She is survived by her husband, Gug Higgins, a Camden Railroad employee; two daughters, Mrs. Ruth Carter, Baltimore; and Mrs. Beatrice Edwards, N. Y.; and two sons, Freddie Higgins, Charlotte, N. C.; and Rodney Higgins, Baltimore.

A brother, Sidney Garvis, Baltimore; three sisters, Mrs. Mildred Robinson, Baltimore; Miss Sarah Garvins and Mrs. Lucille Mack, both of Winston-Salem, N.C.; and 18 grandchildren, also survive.

Bishop Carr's churches mark 20th anniversary

The Rehoboth Church of God in Christ Jesus, Apostolic, 700 Popular Grove, is hosting the 20th annual international Convention of the church here this week.

The more than 200 delegates and visitors, in daily business and special religious sessions from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., include bishops, ministers and representatives from Massachusetts, New York, Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Florida, the British West Indies, Jamaica and other islands.

The Church of God in Christ, Apostolic, was founded by Bishop Randolph A. Carr of Baltimore in 1934. He and Bishop Monroe R. Saunders, head of the church here, will give the Annual Convention Sermon Sunday noon to highlight the convention which began June 2 and continues through June 9.

Among nationally known officials of the church is Bishop Thomas Gibson, New Rochelle, N. Y., who is scheduled to speak during the meeting. Morning sessions begin at 11 a.m. and extend through 4 p.m. Evening services are from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Climaxing the week-long event is the Wed., June 9 Holy Communion Service, an impressive annual occurence attended by more than 3,000 additional members from churches on the East Coast.

The Rehoboth Church has more than 600 local members and is one of the most progressive in the city. Recently completed is their Rehoboth Education and Welfare Center, a $500,000 showplace built in Carroll County under the FHA program.

The 12 structures, set back on the largest single plot of land in the area, include convalescent and nursing home, a residence for the aged and a school.

Mrs. Brown, longtime Sharp St. member

Mrs. Adele Satterfield Brown, 86, died Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Ammons in Mt. Vernon, N.Y.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at Sharp Street Methodist Church, where she was a longtime member.

Burial was in Arbutus Memorial Park.

A native Batimorean, Mrs. Brown went to Mt. Vernon to live shortly after the death in 1944, of her husband, Henry Brown. For years, the family lived at 1720 Druid Hill Ave.

In addition to her daughter, Mrs. Brown is survived by two sons, Richard Brown, Mt. Vernon and Wilson Brown, Connecticut. There are also four grandchildren.

The Hollard Funeral Home handled arrangements.

Newspaper strike ends after 47 days

BALTIMORE — Striking employes of the Baltimore Sunpapers Thursday accepted a management proposal to submit disputed issues in the 47-day-old walkout to binding arbitration and began returning to work.

A spokesman for the Baltimore chapter of the American Newspaper Guild (ANG) announced the decision shortly after a vote by more than 400 striking editorial, photography and clerical workers. The workers voted by a 9-1 margin to accept the Sunpapers offer of a general amnesty to all strikers pending the approval of arbitration.

The major stumbling blocks in the strike have been union security and wage scales at the papers. The strike began April 17. The papers resumed publication on May 27 using non - union editorial workers and members of the International Telegraphers Union (ITU) who crossed guild picket

Fire kills 3

Brenda, 6, and Charlotte, 7.

Mrs. Payne finally walked blindly from the room.

The witnesses Sgt. Derrenberger, Nurse Feeney Patrolmen Charles Browers, Norman Mike and William Sheldon, "Gene," and the reporter followed her.

"I don't want to talk to anybody. My babies are dead," Mrs. Payne repeated.

"I lost my job, I begged and I begged. I could only get 75 cents to feed them. Now they are dead," her voice trailed off into bitter sobbings.

Following the agonizing act of identifying her dead children the mother paced the floor and cried.

Nurse Feeney, upon learning the victims were Catholics, called a priest. At 1:30 a.m. Father Simms of the Basilica of the Assumption entered the emergency room and administered final rites.

* * *

"GENE," as Mrs. Payne called him, is actually Eugene Patterson of the 1100 block Woodyear St. He confirmed police reports that Mrs. Payne was in a cafe at Carey and Baker Sts. when tragedy struck.

"She was with me," he told a reporter, "I'm just a friend."

The woman's husband is Frank Payne, a former AFRO composing room employee.

Lt. Roland Barthelmes of the Fire Department said there was neither gas nor electric service at the house. An "illegal kerosene heater was found in there," he told newsmen.

"At this point," he added, "we don't know what happened."

MRS. PAYNE was brought to Maryland General after leading police, relatives and newsmen on a merry chase.

Sobbing hysterically, she dashed out of Provident Hospital "to go where my other children are." For more than a half hour no one knew where to find her.

Sergeant Derrenberger finally took her in tow when she reappeared at Provident. She also disappeared briefly at the scene of the tragedy only to show up at the hospital without anyone knowing how or when she left.

This, of course, was not important.

Mrs. Payne put it best:

"Is it my fault that there is no gas, electric or food? I guess it is. But my children are dead and nothing matters anymore."

State gives poor better anti-poverty policy role

BY ED ALSTON

No matter what you hear, poor people outside of Baltimore City have a lot more to say officially at this point about how the antipoverty programs are to be run.

In Baltimore, the top officials, including CANDO chairman Morton Macht, and program director Melvin Humphrey, keep talking about how the program is geared to the needs and desires of the city poor.

The facts are though that the CANDO board of 11 is not legally acceptable under federal requirements that poor people be used where feasible at the policymaking level.

Not one member of the current CANDO board falls into the $3,000 or lower bracket.

* * *

HOWEVER, figures released by the Maryland Office of Economic Opportunity shows that of 464 members named to boards in 21 counties, 66 of them qualify as "poor" and 97 of them are colored.

Representatives of poor residents in Baltimore already have started challenging the policy making setup in the city and the AFRO has been informed by federal authorities that when the issue comes to it for settlement, poor people will have to be included or funds will not be available for subsequent programs.

Writers, artists back Lowell

NEW YORK (UPI) — Six more Pulitzer Prize winners and a group of nationally - known writers and artists joined Pulitzer poet Robert Lowell Thursday in voicing alarm over U.S. foreign policy which they said "seems increasingly belligerent and militaristic."

Lowell announced yesterday that he will not take part in the upcoming White House Festival of the Arts because he views President Johnson's foreign policy with "dismay" and fears nuclear war will be its outcome."
