last week has been replaced by Purnell Young of Douglass who held fifth place position last week. The remaining top five has remained the same with shifting in rank from week to week.

STILL AHEAD in the heated battle for first place is Lemmel's Hubert Arnold with a lead of 30,300 votes over his second place contender, Carol Mussenden of Pimlico. She has advanced from her fourth place position to second with 298,700.

Losing her second place position and now standing third is Benjamin Franklin's Joyce Taylor. Already mentioned Marcia Coleman of Western skipped to fourth place since last week and Booker T. Washington's Swannie Sneed slipped from third place to fifth place, leading the sixth contender by 6,400 votes.

children, three of whom are of school age.

Cradling a 7-month -old Infant in her arms, she told me:

"No one has said anything to me about what's going on in this building. I didn't know anything about it."

As for the anti poverty program, she knew nothing about that either. She only knows that with the welfare money she receives life is a constant struggle. There is never enough of anything.

Her eyes brightened up when she learned of the possibility of having a day-care center set up to provide free child care while the mother worked.

"Gee, that would be good. This program could do some good. Maybe I should find out more about it," was her comment.

JUST AROUND the corner on Durham St., the 800 block, was another family of seven. The father is out of work more than he is employed.

Last year he earned around $2700 according to his employers' statements, he told us.

It shows in the house crowded, poorly furnished loose wallpaper and badly in need of painting.

You could tell by the children's clothes, the tattered shoes, the rags on the baby instead of a diaper.

The mother gets a day's work now and then while the father is unemployed. Some days she makes $7-8 and carfare.

All in all it adds up to poverty—numbing, hopeless poverty from which these people see no out. It becomes a way of life.

But this family, too, knew nothing of the better life being readied for them.

Said the father: "I have seen boys working in the place and cars pulling up with some "city" tags on them. Some white man came through the block the other day and told some people about some jobs — said he could use some boys to help out:

"But I still didn't know what was going on. You get so you just don't pay no attention any more."

IN THE 900 block Durham St. lives Thomas Scott. Retired from Sparrows Point after 37 years, the 68-year-old resident was not aware of the reason for the activity at the building only a half block from his home.

"I see people from the building walking through the block sometimes. A man was by yesterday, said there would be some jobs. I'm too old for it to do me any good but it could help the younger ones," remarked Mr. Scott.

SAM SPICER, 900 block Durham St.: "Whatever it is, I hope it will do some good. A man came today to borrow a ladder. Right now they don't seem to have anything to work with."

AT 1829 EAGER ST. I found Mrs. Lillian Mont who commented:

"I heard this is to be a recreation center. I don't know much about it but I would like to see the program in operation and see it work."

IN THE 900 block of Rutland Ave., Mrs. Mary Trusty too had heard about the building being used for a rec center. She knows nothing about the anti-poverty program but expressed interest after a brief explanation.

A BLOCK from the headquarters, a housewife and mother in the 1800 block of Ashland Ave. talked to me:

"Please don't use my name, I am on welfare. No, I don't know a thing about the building. There was a crowd out there a few weeks ago, and some officials and photographers and television men, but I never knew what was going on.

"If this is anything to help me out of the way we are living then I am all for it. Yes, I read the newspaper, but I am not too much up with what is going on.

"Anti-poverty — what does it mean? Well, if it means against, I am certainly against poverty. Anti-poverty - that's me."

"NO, I DO not know what the building is to be used for," said Miss Marie Fitzgerald, 900 block Durham St.

"Well, if that is what it's for, it is a wonderful idea. I am 100 per cent for it.

"This type of thing is much needed. There are lots of kids who need help, too. Might help some of them and encourage them to go back to school."

BERNARD SMITH, a former government security guard, lives in the 900 block of Rutland. Someone told him there would be a recreation center at Ashland and Rutland.

He, too, has seen activities going on in and around the building. In fact he recalled, "I have offered my services to them to serve as guard, doorman or anything.

"When Mr. Hyman Pressman was over here I told him what a good thing it was. This is a good start in the right direction.

"It will help get the kids off the street, give them something to occupy them. You know, recreation and work, something to interest them," said Mr. Smith.

From Mrs. Smith came the following: "We should have had this years ago; we have been needing this so long. I am for it 100 per cent."

IN THE block west of the CAC building on Ashland Ave. an old-timer told me: "No, I ain't never heard of no anti - whatever you call it. But, mister, if what you say is right, what can they do?

"I hope some good will come out of it but most of these people don't work or go to school or nothing.

"They just want welfare, so you can't give them a job, kids all over the street and everything. Alleys all filled with crapshooters at night. They don't want nothing. And please don't use my name somebody might come after me."

He went on: "When I was younger nobody gave me nothing. I couldn't go to school because I had to work to help take care of the family — my younger brothers and sisters. These here kids got all the chance but they won't go to school and won't work neither. I'll just have to see."

SO THERE it is. There is a big job to be done. The people most to be affected by it know the least about it.

Anti-poverty — not really a program but a people. And the people must become involved in it.

Before they become involved in it they must learn what it is.

The big question remains: How? "Anti - what?"

superficial injury of the head in the struggle, police reported.

Mr. Wicks, who also faces a charge of discharging a gun within the city, was treated for a minor wound on the forehead, investigators said.

The wife told police that the struggle for the gun began around 8:10 p.m. after her husband came home.

After eating dinner, Mrs. Wicks told police, Mr. Wicks came in the living room where she was watching television and announced, "I want to have a brief talk with you."

Later, during an ensuing struggle, the daughter, who was on the front porch, came in and was shot accidentally when the gun went off.

Police reported they have uncovered no motive for the incident and Mrs. Wicks declined to discuss it with reporters.

Judge Arabian said she set a modest bail because a representative of the defendant's employer, a local milk dairy, assured his appearance when the case comes to trial.

Soft Whiskey. How do we soften it without lowering the proof?

A lot of people would like to know the answer to that one.

Distillers (and we're no exception) have been trying to come up with a Soft Whiskey since the year one.

Some thought lowering the proof would do the trick. No good! They got lower proof whiskey. Not Soft Whiskey.

And we're not so perfect either. We failed miserably with Soft Whiskey experiments. Finally after thousands of them, Bingo! A way of Softening whiskey without draining its strength.

An 86 proof that could do anything any other 86 proof could do. Only do it softer.

86 PROOF

Calvert Extra swallows easy. It's gentle going down. It sort of walks softly, but carries a big stick.

As for letting you in on how we soften Soft Whiskey, this much is safe to tell. We do things with Calvert Extra that some distillers wouldn't hear of. Like doing some distilling in small batches as opposed to large ones.

You really can't expect us to tell you more. Not after all that work.

That soft we're not.
